The Elliotts enjoyed Clover Point slumber.

BUT POLICE VIGIL RELAXED

Curbside Is No Pad For Camper Nappers

A Victoria bylaw forbids overnight camping on streets and in parks, but no one informed Mr. and Mrs. Rick Elliott of Bellevue, Wash. who spent Wednesday night parked on Clover Point.

Victoria traffic inspector Richard Berry told the Times early in August that policy was to tell campers to move on if they appeared to be settling in for a curbside snooze.

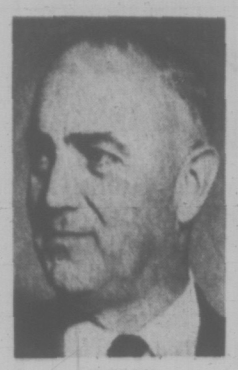
Berry said police would help overnighters find other accommodation. Today, Berry admitted some campers are permitted to stay overnight in the Beacon Hill Park area on Dallas Road.

"If they come in so late and they're bedded down and they're peaceful, we don't like to disturb them. You've got to bend a little bit. It's just a matter of common sense."



BERRY
let 'em sleep

The easy approach of city police does not satisfy Marvin Beaveridge of 1035 Belmont and other citizens who have complained about the campers.

In a letter to council, Beaveridge said at least five camper trucks are parked along Dallas Road each morning. He also said persons sometimes sleep in the park in sleeping bags.

City manager Bill Hooson said Tuesday campers who are not settled in are referred to the Mayfair shopping centre for the night.

Berry said this is done because an all-night restaurant and toilet facilities are nearby. No problems are expected in September after school begins, Berry said.

Boat Escapes With Captive

United States authorities are pondering the case of an American gillnetter which escaped Canadian custody and fled to Washington State with a Canadian patrol boat engineer aboard.

W. R. Hourston of Vancouver, Pacific region fisheries director, said today he has not yet heard from the Americans about their decision and no decision has been made on Canadian charges.

The gillnetter, the My Linda, was one of five vessels seized Monday for fishing in Canadian waters south of Bonilla Point in Juan de Fuca Strait.

Gerry Plotkin, second engineer aboard the patrol vessel Atlin Post, was put aboard the My Linda and was to stay there while it and the other four boats were escorted into Sooke to face charges.

The My Linda, however, set course for Neah Bay, Wash., where it was seized by the U.S. coast guard. Plotkin was returned to Canada Tuesday.

Hourston said normally a fishing boat can be escorted back but this time there were five so crew members were put aboard each of the five.

"You can't ride herd on five vessels. The fifth turned around and ran for Neah Bay. She only had to run a short distance before she got into U.S. waters," he said.

How did Plotkin feel?

"He wasn't going to argue. We don't arm our people. He went along for the ride, he didn't have much choice."

Two of the American fishermen were fined $1,000 each and their salmon catches confiscated.

The fines and seizures were ordered in Sooke court by Judge Eugene Murphy. Charges against two other U.S. fishboat skippers will be heard in the same court next Tuesday.

Gillnetters Leslie Nelson of Seattle and Donald Stanley of Anacortes were apprehended in the strait Monday. Nelson lost 460 fish and White 292 in addition to the fines.

GOLF PROFITS HELP PAVE PARKING LOT

The municipally-owned Cedar Hill golf course is making a profit and $10,000 of it will be spent to pave the parking lot at the course and landscaping at the Gordon Head recreation centre.

"As we hoped and expected, the course is generating dollars for use there and elsewhere in the municipality without affecting the tax rate at all," said Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

The golf course is part of Cedar Hill Park, formerly known as the McRae Estate, which Saanich purchased for $1.2 million in late 1967.

Wallace Bolt Nets Second Resignation

A second Oak Bay Social Credit Association executive member resigned Wednesday in support of MLA Scott Wallace who quit the party Tuesday night.

"Scott Wallace is our man and I'll follow him wherever he goes," said executive member L. F. Dawes after joining association president Mark Preston in quitting the group.

Wallace, who left the party to sit as an independent in the legislature, was immediately invited to join both the Liberal and Conservative parties.

But he indicated he will remain as an independent, for the present.

EXTRA WEIGHT

B.C. Conservative Leader John de Wolf said Wallace would carry extra weight and would get additional speaking time in the legislature as the official house leader of the Conservatives if he joined the party.

The standings in the legislature following Wallace's resignation are Social Credit, 37 seats, New Democratic Party, 12, Liberal, 5, and Independent, one.

Premier Bennett, meanwhile, declined to comment on Wallace's decision but after being pressed for a statement he recalled that another Social Credit MLA had once crossed the floor and "faded into oblivion."

He added he didn't necessarily mean that would happen again.

"DICTATORIAL"

Mel Bryan, a North Vancouver MLA, quit the party in 1958 during a bribery scandal that eventually led to the jailing of Robert Sommers, lands and forests minister.

Wallace quit the party because he was dissatisfied with the role of government backbenchers in policy formation and because of "dictatorial" tendencies in the government, he said.

Oak Bay association executive J. H. Britton said Wednesday he still supports Wallace but was still considering his position in the party. He said he felt Wallace could have accomplished more in the long run by staying in the party.

City Planning 'Chaotic'

Pollen Demands Better Response to Wishes

The city's efforts in planning today were termed "uncoordinated and chaotic" by Ald Peter Pollen.

He recommended a special meeting to tackle planning questions.

Pollen won unanimous agreement from council's A Committee after a brief argument over the form such a meeting will take.

In making his surprise presentation, Pollen said he thinks "it is about time the community planning department in the city of Victoria became much much more responsive to the wishes and desires of the city."

Pollen ran into trouble for criticizing the planning department, which Ald. Robert Baird said should be present to "refute" Pollen's comments. Community planning director Geoff Greenhalgh was not at the meeting.

Pollen said "I am not saying this for the crucifixion of anybody."

SPECIFIC ANSWERS

"What I think we should be doing is looking for specific answers which we can act upon in the next five, six or ten years."

He said he has tried and failed to get informatim on a number of planning matters essential to making good decisions.

He said "we have reached the point that our planning is so chaotic and unco-ordinated that the citizens are becoming resigned to not being able to do anything about it."

"With no adequate information," he said, "we are not able to exercise a wholesome choice."

CLOSE LOOK

Pollen called for a close look at questions of sewage, James Bay traffic and recreation, the oil tank farm on the west side of the Inner Harbor, the CPR property along Bellville Street, the Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., the McKay Cormack property, Black Ball ferry terminal and Wharf Street traffic plans.

Pollen said the city should squarely face the fact that there are "Secret or quasi secret plans to punch one or two roads through Beacon Hill Park."

He said he has heard no mention of plans for increasing recreational space in James Bay despite the "fantastic buildup" expected in the area.

TRIAL BALLOON

He said he wanted to know more about the "trial balloon" development plans of Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., which he said has a "negative working capital of well over $300,000."

He wanted to know what is the status of Inner Harbor leases which have been transferred from Canadian Pacific to Canadian Pacific Industries to Marathon Realty to Grouse Mountain. The decision to grant certain leases in the Inner Harbor area, he said, lies with "some faceless bureaucrat" in Ottawa.

At one point Baird interjected:

"Are you really saying our community planning department is not doing its job?"

NOT ADEQUATE

Pollen answered that "I am getting no adequate information" on planning decisions. He said he was unable to get information when he was community planning chairman last year, and added nor are citizens able to get information.

When Baird said he knew the answers to many of the questions asked, Ald. Tom Christie interrupted:

"If you have heard the answers to the sewage problem, let's hear it."

Baird replied the provincial government is studying sewage and the city is waiting for the results.

The aim of the meeting of council as a committee of the whole would be to "bring the planning of the city to a much more disciplined approach."

At another point Pollen said he wanted a "more comprehensive" and "more detailed" approach to city planning.

Pollen brought up the topic as A Committee formed itself in health and welfare committee of which Pollen is chairman.

Pollen's motion was described by him but Christie put it before the committee. Ald. Percy Frampton and Ald. Clyde Savage joined Pollen. Baird and Christie in voting for the move.

No date was set for the meeting.

Car Trunk Spillage Causes Fire

A car trunk erupted in a blaze Wednesday when a cigarette ignited spilled gas.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today damage to vehicle and contents was about $500.

Coates said owner Jan White had the cigarette in his hand when he opened the trunk of the car, parked at the rear of 1250 Acton about 10:25 p.m. White was unhurt.

The gas spill came from an outboard motor that had tipped over in the trunk, the deputy chief said.

City fireman were also called to put out a kitchen fire in an apartment suite at 2508 Douglas about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Coates said Mrs. V. C. Hanson escaped injury in the $200 fire caused when combustible materials on the gas range caught fire and fell to the floor.

Uvic Scientists Will Dig For Clues to Lost Tribe

A team of University of Victoria archaeologists will start a dig next week at Witty's Lagoon looking for clues to solve the mystery of a lost tribe.

Don Abbott, Provincial Museum curator of archaeology, said the Metchosin site was at one time inhabited by the Ka-kyaakan people who mysteriously disappeared during the latter part of the 19th century.

The experts will excavate the remains of an old midden for artifacts which may provide them with some information about the tribe, such as the age of the village site and what it was used for by the Ka-kyaakans.

"We are not too hopeful of finding such material," Abbott said. "Most of the midden has been destroyed over the years, but something interesting may turn up."

Historical records disclose little about the tribe which once occupied all the territory from Point McGregor to the inlet of Whoyung.

Whoyung is the Indian name for Pedder Bay.

There are no records of how many villages they occupied, but the site at Witty's Lagoon may have been one of their larger ones. It included a fort which has long since disappeared.

When Fort Victoria was established by Sir James Douglas, the Ka-kyaakans were on their way out. Hudson's Bay Co. documents show the population numbered about 32 in 1850.

Douglas bought their lands for 52 blankets — not a bad bargain for the whole of Metchosin district, including the lagoon which is now a capital regional park.

Furniture and Equipment Needed for Youth Centre

A supervisor at the youth attendance centre in James Bay appealed today for furniture, personal effects and recreational equipment.

"We are in an old church school which is dilapidated, has little to offer, and there really is no budget to improve it," said Philip Perry.

The centre, at 520 Niagara, operates under the Greater Victoria family court.

The centre offers a rehabilitative program for boys 17 and under who must attend as a condition of their probation.

Perry said it is designed for youths who shouldn't go to institutions like Brannen Lake "and hopefully prevent them from going there." The program included group discussions, camping, swimming and athletics.

"It really teaches them responsibility, how to deal with others and communication skills," he said.

Anyone wishing to donate to the centre is asked to telephone 388-6123.

TIT-FOR-TAT TRADE WAR

Connally Slaps Canada's Wrist

Meany Blasts Nixon Measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor leader George Meany called on Congress today to take control of the United States economy away from what he called President Nixon's "mismanagement" and urged all unions to cancel contracts where workers lose money under Nixon's wage-price controls.

Meany, after a plea from top administration officials to co-operate with Nixon's new economic program, told a news conference "We're not going to co-operate."

Meany had some tough words for Treasury Secretary John Connally and Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, both of whom have said that Meany is out of step with American workers.

Of Hodgson Meany said: "I don't pay much attention to the secretary of labor . . . If you have a problem with the landlord, you don't discuss it with the janitor."

Referring to Connally Meany added: "He wants the horsewhip concession so he can sell horsewhips. Connally doesn't know anything about people's problems."

Connally said it was "sheer nonsense" and "rank demagoguery" to argue, as Meany had, that Nixon's tax-cut requests favor business at the expense of the worker.

The Teamsters Union has announced "reluctantly" that they will go along with the wage-price freeze.

12% Devaluation Seen for U.S. $

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A rejuggling of the world's major currencies that would result in an average depreciation of 12 per cent in the U.S. dollar is the subject of intense negotiation here and abroad it was learned by the Washington Post last night.

Well-informed sources were optimistic that remaining disagreements would be straightened out in time for key exchange markets in Europe to re-open next week.

Depreciation Varied

If so, this major re-alignment of currency values would in effect be ratified by a meeting of the Group of Ten industrial nations over the weekend, possibly in Washington.

The dollar depreciation will not be the same in all of the world. Because the Japanese yen is considered to be the world's most undervalued currency, it would be expected to be marked up by at least five or six per cent, while the dollar would be marked down perhaps 10 per cent against the yen — or a total adjustment of 15 or 16 per cent in favor of the dollar.

Latin American and less developed countries will probably change their rates almost as much as the dollar.

For Europe as a whole, the dollar might depreciate 10 per cent or less, with a smaller devaluation against West Germany and Holland, whose currencies — via the float begun last May — have already appreciated about eight per cent compared to the dollar.

12 Per Cent Is Target

Officials have arrived at the approximate "target" of a 12-per-cent devaluation of the dollar by assessing how much of a change is needed to restore the U.S. balance of payments to "equilibrium." According to Edward Bernstein, an influential private expert in these matters, an improvement of $7 billion is needed.

Another approximation of the U.S. goal is indicated by the 10 per cent emergency import duty, designed to put a de facto devaluation of at least that amount into effect especially against Japan while a new system of parities is being worked out.

Each of the major countries affected is naturally protecting its interests and seeking the best deal. To decide on a new system of rates is not an easy task. But it is significant that the exchange markets have been kept closed, signifying that the authorities are co-operating in trying to evolve a new system.

$8 Billion Return

Once a new set of currency rates is arranged, eliminating the over-valuation of the dollar, experts suggest that there will be a return of $8 billion to $10 billion to the United States in the next six months, much of it speculative "hot money" sent abroad by American firms.

The first step expected on the road back to normality is merely a commitment to open the markets, with the intention of letting the currencies float toward the level agreed upon. Once de facto new relationships are stabilized, they can be made more formal through legalized parity relationships.

For its part, the U.S. could intervene in the exchange markets, if necessary, with other currencies that it owns or could borrow.

A way could be provided at the same time, to let countries convert dollars into Special Drawing Rights or some other reserve asset.

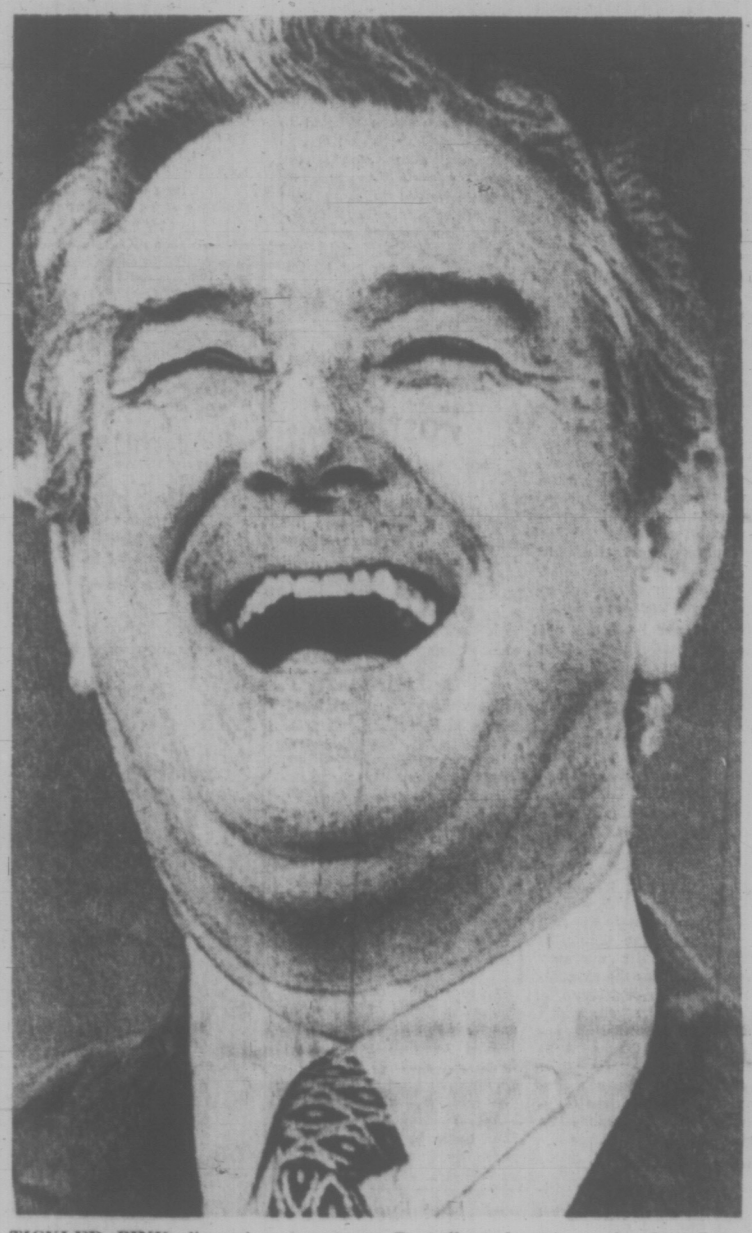
System Not Dead

It is assumed here that this is what U.S. treasury under secretary Paul Volcker had in mind Tuesday when he said on his return from Europe that the U.S. "intention is to re-establish convertibility," but not necessarily in the "same form as in the past."

There is a tendency in Washington to discount the observation earlier made by some that the Bretton Woods system is dead, killed off by the U.S. withdrawal of dollar convertibility into gold.

In all probability, the system will survive drastically altered to provide more flexibility and some form of composite unit that will provide a degree of gold convertibility.

A way for foreign central banks to cash in their dollar balances may be found through an expanded Special Drawing Rights System.



TICKLED PINK discussing aspects of President Nixon's wage-price freeze is U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally. The laughter was brought on by a suggestion that he might be Nixon's vice-presidential running mate in next year's election. Connally today meets the Canadian delegation which is asking for removal of the 10 per cent surcharge placed on imports from Canada. He has already indicated that he will take a hard line on such a request. (AP wirephoto)

Protests Likely In Vain

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally today launched a stinging attack on Canada's trade policies and indicated he would reject Ottawa's plea for an exemption from the new 10 per cent import duty surcharge.

He said Canada in 1962 turned down a U.S. plea for tax concessions.

"I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be," Connally said in a television interview.

A cabinet-level Canadian mission was meeting with Connally this afternoon to seek an exemption from the 10-per-cent extra levy on dutiable imports imposed by the Nixon administration. The surcharge would affect 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the United States, or roughly $3 billion annually.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin were in Washington for the meeting.

The Canadian government sought the exemption on the grounds that Canada does not impose discriminatory tariffs against the U.S. and has not undervalued its dollar to grab off trade.

RECALLS 1962 SITUATION

Connally said that when the tables were turned in 1962, Canada turned down a U.S. request for a similar exemption from their own duty surcharge. Also, he said, the United States imports $1.6 billion more goods from Canada than it sends there, compared with a $650 million U.S. surplus that existed in 1965.

Connally was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today show.

He was asked what outcome he predicted for today's meeting with Benson and Pepin.

"Well, they are going to come down and complain and ask that they be exempt from imposition of the surcharge," Connally said.

"We're certainly going to be co-operative. They are our largest trading partner in the free world—they are our friends. We won't want to irritate them or anger them, but I'm going to very frankly point out to them that when they imposed a surcharge in 1962 and we went up there to ask for relief for American products, they said no, and they never did it.

REFERS TO AUTO PACT

"I'm going to point out that in 1965, when they had real economic problems, we entered into an automotive agreement with them. At that time, we had a surplus trade balance with Canada of approximately $650 million a

STRETCHED FERRY CONTRACT AWARDED

A $2.4 million contract to stretch the Queen of Vancouver was awarded today by B.C. Ferries to Vancouver Shipyards Ltd.

Highways Minister Wesley Black said work will be carried out between Oct. 25, 1971 and March 20, 1972.

Installation of an 84-foot mid-section will increase the capacity of the ship from 140 to 200 cars.

It will be the third "stretch ferry."

Tenders for the fourth such job will open Friday after being recalled because the one tender previously received to stretch the Queen of Saanich was regarded as too high at $3 million.

The stretch ferries currently in use are the Queen of Victoria and the Queen of Esquimalt. All four operate on the Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen run.

Criticism Puts Army on Defence

BELFAST (AP) — The British Army, while claiming it is on the way to victory in Northern Ireland's shooting warfare, has been flung on the defensive by a sustained barrage of criticism over its conduct as peacemaker.

After a day in which two civilians were shot dead and two members of Parliament arrested by troops who had fought a pitched street battle with gunman, Lt.-Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, commander-in-chief, said Wednesday: "I still think events are going our way—except for the propaganda campaign against the army."

Accusations of brutality spearhead the campaign.

The Guardian, published in London, demanded an impartial inquiry into the allegations. The Irish Republic government is pressing Britain along the same lines. The charges are expected to consume a large part of today's discussions between British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Northern Ireland Premier Brian Faulkner.

A document published in the Irish Times of Dublin today was said to have been smuggled out of Belfast's Girdwood Barracks detention centre.

DESCRIBES BEATINGS

It described beating with nightsticks, clubbing with rifle butts, terrorizing by fierce dogs, the screaming and cursing of abuse.

Government and army officials said such assertions are "monstrous lies" and note that only 20 formal complaints out of a flood of unofficial allegations have been made to police.

The army late Wednesday night came under more immediate criticism for its behavior in scattered violence Wednesday.

A man killed by soldiers for ignoring orders to lay down a pistol turned out to be a deaf mute. Eamon McDevitt, 28, was shot in Strabane, 15 miles from Londonderry, after a civil rights meeting addressed by Bernadette Devlin, a member of the British Parliament.

John McKelvey, chairman of Strabane City Fathers, said he had 23 witnesses who would swear McDevitt was not carrying a gun, but a rubber bullet. These six-inch missiles are fired by soldiers to break up riots.

CROWDS RUN WILD

Crowds in Strabane subsequently went on an orgy of burning and stoning. Three people were arrested.

In Londonderry, where early Wednesday morning troops clearing barricades from Roman Catholic areas were fired on by gunmen 23 times in a devastating hail of more than 300 bullets, soldiers arrested Belfast MPs John Hume, a Catholic, and Ivan Cooper, a Protestant.

They were part of a crowd sprayed with purple dye from water cannon as they tried to obstruct barricade clearing operations.

Hume, Cooper and civil rights leader Hugh Logue were frisked then charged with obstruction and released on bail to appear in court Monday.

During one gun battle a baker's assistant, Eamon Lafferty, 19, was shot as he raised a rifle to his shoulder.

GRASSHOPPERS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (UPI) — Millions of grasshoppers clogged Montreal's streets today dodging traffic and clinging to pedestrians during the great 1971 hopper invasion.

With millions of insects lying dead in the streets, officials do not expect the invasion to last long as there is not much food in downtown Montreal and the hoppers will either starve to death or be killed by traffic.

Unemployment Declines In B.C., Across Nation

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Unemployment in Canada declined to 514,000 in mid-July from 551,000 in June. The number was also down on last July when 518,000 people were without jobs.

The July figure represented 5.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 6.2 per cent in June and 5.9 per cent a year earlier.

In British Columbia the job situation also improved with 59,000 of a labor force of 950,000 out of work. In June the number of unemployed was 66,000 and in July last year 76,000.

In percentage terms B.C.'s unemployment rate was still above the national average with 6.7 per cent without jobs compared with 7 per cent in June and 8 per cent in July last year.

A joint report by Statistics Canada and the manpower department said employment in Canada "showed the usual strength in July" as the number of jobs increased by 246,000 over the June figure to a total of 8,554,000.

The July labor force stood at 9,068,000, an increase of 209,000 over a month earlier.

The statistics are based on a survey of 30,000 households for the employment situation that existed in the week ended July 24.

The report said that persons in the 14-24 age group showed a greater-than-usual gain in employment during the month as 270,000 of them were absorbed into the working force. There was little change for men in the over-25 age group; the decline in employment for women over 25 — 40,000 — is

WHEEL OF JUSTICE

Police Pinch Scofflaws in New Boots

WASHINGTON (WP) — Wheel boots have proved so successful in bringing U.S. scofflaws to justice that Washington police are expanding their use.

During June and July, when five of the steel wheel locks were used on cars that had a record of unpaid parking tickets, police caught up with about $80,000 worth of violations, Lt. Joseph Mazur, head of the special events unit of the special operations division, said.

As a result, 20 more of the wheel locks were ordered and arrived last week to be put in use throughout the city.

The bright orange wheel lock is clamped to the rim of the front wheel of a car, preventing the car from being driven or the wheel from being removed. Only police can unlock it.

To free his car, the chronic parking violator has to cough up the fee for the charges outstanding against him. This can cost him $15—$5 for the ticket, another $5 if it isn't paid within 15 days and an additional $5 for the warrant if police shackle the car.

Mazur said that in some instances violators whose cars have been locked have paid anywhere between $200 and $400 in warrant fees alone.

Some people, he said, whose cars are old have just surrendered to the boots. These cars are impounded by police and sold later at auction.

Mazur estimated there are now about 250,000 warrants outstanding against parking violators.

He said police have one problem—they can spot a car with a record of violations but can only lock it if it is in violation at the time.

Some car owners become desperate and try to remove the wheel locks, he added. He cited three—one of whom tried to pick the lock, another tried to work it lose with a tire iron and a third to break it with a hammer.

The three were unsuccessful in their efforts and ended up facing another charge, that of attempting to destroy government property, Mazur said.

Principal Lassfolk Dies

Sidney Elementary students and teachers lost a good friend with the death Tuesday of principal Mrs. Barbara Lassfolk, 2261 Weiler.

Mrs. Lassfolk, who died while holidaying in Kamloops, was to retire next year. She had completed 27 years as principal of Sidney Elementary.

Under Mrs. Lassfolk administration, Sidney school registration grew from less than 200 to an over-crowded 674 and "Chris" as she was called by friends found herself teaching children of former pupils.

Moving with the times, she was ready to experiment and help her younger teachers to adapt to new techniques.

Discipline, however, was not sacrificed. Saanich School Board chairman Jack Armstrong said he was always impressed by the ordered, happy atmosphere of her school.

"Mrs. Lassfolk had a very shrewd understanding of children and maintained both their liking and respect," he said.

ORGANIZATION

Vice-principal Tom Boyd paid tribute to "open door" philosophy maintained by Mrs. Lassfolk. Communications between parents, teachers and children were stressed and as a result Sidney Elementary PTA has always been a flourishing organization.

Former pupil Carol Collins, 9651 Fourth Street, has three of her own children in the same school.

"Mrs. Lassfolk was a good friend as well as a teacher. She always had time to talk over problems with you."

Before coming to Sidney, Mrs. Lassfolk rad taught in the Kettle Valley area and in Fort St. John. Later she became principal of Mill Bay Elementary and was in charge of the school at Paldi and Comox.

Two sons, Jack and David Christian are teaching in the Victoria area. Mrs. Lasfolk is also survived by her husband Einar at home; one daughter, Mrs. Yvonne Mahrt of Courtenay; a brother, Richard Reaney of Kamloops.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Sands Chapel of Roses, Sidney.

Strickland Funeral

Funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Patrick's Church, 2054 Haultain, for Roger Philip Strickland, owner of the Yates Hotel, who died Wednesday in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Born in Lakefield, Ont., in 1895, he lived in Saskatchewan from 1910 to 1951 when he moved to Victoria.

Chairman of St. Joseph's Hospital board for a number of years, and owner-managing director of Georgia Properties Ltd, he was also a member of the Victoria Golf Club, St. Patrick's Church, Union Club and the Knights of Columbus.

His wife Olive died in 1966. He is survived by two sons, John of Victoria and Philip of Toronto, and three daughters — Mrs. B. (Peggy) Aust and Mrs. J. H. L. (Bobs) Gillis of Victoria and Mrs. D. J. (Joan) England of Saskatoon.

Duties Hurt Hog Man

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian hog farmers will be among those most seriously hurt by a recent boost in import duties by the United States, says the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Federation President Charles Munro said Canadian hog producers, "already suffering from disastrously low prices," have had all hopes for price improvements dashed by the new U.S. policy.

"It doesn't make any sense for the U.S. to disrupt traditional trade flows in Canadian farm products," he said in a statement.

The federation has asked the government for a $5 a hog payment to farmers for hogs marketed this year as compensation for low prices.

Hog prices have averaged about $22 a hundredweight in 1971, $2 less than farmers were receiving in 1960, the statement said.

"In the meantime farm costs have gone up more than 30 per cent."

Appeal Appoints Division Chairmen

Victoria postmaster Jim Deans and accountant Ronald G. Campion have accepted appointments as division chairmen for the 1971 United Appeal Campaign.

Campaign chairman Eric Charman said today Deans will head the federal services division and Campion the professional division.

Charman said Deans has promised to raise $53,000 by Sept. 15. Federal services consists mostly of armed services people.

At least a 20 per cent increase in donations can be expected from the professional division, Charman said. Last year, the professionals — lawyers, doctors, architects, etc. — donated $37,577 to the appeal.

Charman said early donations show a marked increase over 1970 figures. United Appeal staff are asking Greater Victorians to donate $758,723 in 1871 to supplement budgets for 23 community service organizations.

Even 10-Week-Olds Can't See This Film

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A "restricted" movie was out of bounds Wednesday for two Chatham parents who attempted to take their 10-weeks-old baby in with them.

The parents, who complained to the police, said the baby wakes at 90-minute intervals for feeding, and they could not afford a baby sitter at home.

Theatre officials said the "restricted" designation means that no person under 18 can be admitted to a movie, and no exceptions are made, even for infants in arms.

The parents told police the problem would be taken up with provincial Treasurer W. Darcy McKeough, MPP for Chatham-Kent.

year. Last year we had a deficit, a negative trade balance of $1.6 billion.

"So we've had a net change of $2.3 billion in our trade balances with Canada in the last five years. So I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be."

Does that mean he will say no, he was asked.

"Well, I don't want to prejudge what I'm going to say," Connally said, "but I think it is apparent that I'm not without some arguments to respond to their request for an exemption to the surcharge."

The Canadian government argues that since Canada is the United States' best customer, such a heavy impost as President Nixon proposed would be counter-productive because it would hurt two-way trade as well as jeopardize future markets for U.S. goods.

Indications that the mission would take a firm stand came in a statement by Benson in Ottawa Wednesday.

"I hope that we wouldn't have to use any pressure," he said.

"The argument itself is that by applying these import charges against Canada, they are not helping their own situation."

TASK MAY BE TOUGH

However, there were hints that the mission may face rough going.

U.S. Treasury Undersecretary Charles Walker said Wednesday he believes exempting any country from the import levy might violate rules of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs. The Common Market already has accused the U.S. of violating the agreement by imposing the tax in the first place.

Walker said he could not state authoritatively this view which would block Canada's request for an exemption from the tax—is a correct or final one.

The treasury is confident the surcharge does not violate GATT across-the-board, nondiscriminatory."

While the Canadian government sought the tax exemption, reports from Tokyo said that the Japanese government, which has purchased about $2 billion of U.S. dollars this week to maintain the rate of the yen to the dollar, is willing to let its currency float in return for the elimination of the 10-per-cent levy.

Floating of the yen, which generally is regarded as undervalued, would amount to revaluation. The Japanese government was awaiting decisions by the European Common Market on the monetary crisis before acting.

JAPAN MAIN TARGET

Japan was clearly a primary target of Nixon's decision to free the dollar from gold convertibility and allowing it to float. The move was aimed at forcing upward revaluation of the yen and, to a lesser extent, some European currencies.

Again Nixon was believed to have Japan very much in mind in imposing the 10-per-cent surcharge on dutiable imports, the aim being to check the flood of cheap Japanese goods and ultimately to force Tokyo to liberalize its own trade policies and let in more American products.

Other high-level conferences were called today in Washington and foreign capitals to wrestle with details and consequences of the U.S. economic bombshell.

The AFL-CIO's executive council, representing 13.6 million workers, was invited to the White House to throw expectedly hostile questions to three presidential advisers: George P. Shultz, director of the office of management and budget; Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson and J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation Service.

In Brussels, Common Market ministers expected to receive contrasting plans by France and West Germany on how to deal with U.S. dollars divorced from gold.

Paris has proposed a two-tier market in dollars, with one rate for official trading between governments and a punitive rate for speculation. Bonn, on the other hand, proposes to tie Common Market currencies together with fixed rates, but let them float upwards together in relation to the dollar.

Nixon's 90-day wage-price-rent freeze was bringing new headaches to the administration.

Labor chieftains reacted sharply to the freeze, and Nixon's request Tuesday for unions to end current strikes and not start new ones during the 90-day period.

Thousands of West Coast dockworkers and New York telephone workers refused to call off their walkouts, and so did construction men among some 150,000 workers in many areas involved in more than 300 strikes across the country.

The labor rebellion leaves the administration with the choice of carrying out its implied threat to seek court orders or levy fines, which it says it has the power to do.

Mafia Fasting

ISLE OF ASINARA, Sardinia (AP) — Thirty-six reputed Mafia bosses exiled on this penal colony entered the fourth day of a hunger strike today to protest what they called inhuman treatment by the authorities.

An order forbidding them to cook meals in their own rooms touched off the demonstration.

The men, in telegrams to the prosecutor and the newspaper of Sassari, the nearest big town, also complained of inadequate medical facilities, restrictions in using the island's only telephone, and the impossibility of seeing their relatives.

Not Exempt

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Treasury Secretary John Connally indicated today he is personally opposed to exempting the British Rolls-Royce engine for the Lockheed TriStar from the U.S. supplementary import duty of 10 per cent.

. . . WRIST SLAPPED

In San Francisco, Harry Bridges said the freeze has had a "definite adverse effect" on efforts to end the strike of his 15,000 longshoremen at 24 Pacific ports. And in Boston, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock served notice his union will consider contracts abrogated if wages controls extend beyond 90 days.

The UAW will meet with the AFL-CIO in Washington to propose that all big unions join in a court test of the legality of the president's freeze, Woodcock said.

In another development, the justice department established an eight-member team of lawyers to handle possible prosecution of freeze violators. Assistant Attorney-General Louis Patrick Gray III stressed "litigation will be instituted to secure compliance only after all avenues seeking voluntary co-operation have been fully exhausted."

CANADA POISED TO RETALIATE?

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Energy and Resources Minister J. J. Greene warned today that if the United States 10-per-cent supplementary duty on manufactured imports seriously hurts Canada's pulp and paper industry, "we might take some countervailing measures."

He said in an interview that Canada has a right to make changes in its trade arrangements with the U.S. but does not want to start a trade war.

The minister did not elaborate on what "countervailing measures" might be taken.

But he said Canada will be speaking from a position of strength when a Canadian delegation meets with top U.S. officials to discuss the U.S. action.

less than usual for this time of year, said the report.

Reporting on the increased employment activity, the report noted an "unusual increase" of 42,000 jobs in the services area "which appears to reflect the federal government Opportunities for Youth program." There were above-average gains in primary industries — up by 11,000 — in finance, insurance and real estate — up by 10,000 — and there were average gains in agriculture and trade.

There were below-average increases in the areas of public administration, construction, transportation and utilities.

Meanwhile, in Seattle, the unemployment rate is 15 per cent.

The United Kingdom today reported an unemployment rate of 3.7 per cent and Northern Ireland had 8.7 per cent out of work.

BENSON HEADS SOUTH to plead Canada's case in Washington for suspension of the import surcharges recently imposed by President Nixon.

Nixon Proves It CAN Be Done

By MICHAEL BARKWAY
Editor of the Financial Times of Canada

Nobody, this time, can accuse President Nixon of doing "too little, too late." His weekend announcement of emergency measures to defend the U.S. dollar almost justifies Mr. Diefenbaker's characterstic boast: "They said it couldn't be done."

Since the beginning of this month, and with growing intensity over the weeks, the rest of the world had shown that it had lost confidence in the ability of the United States to sustain the exchange value of its currency.

Uncounted billions of U.S. dollars have been floating around the world like quicksilver looking for a place to settle. They have poured, unwanted, into the official reserves of every country whose balance of payments looked better than that of the U.S.

PROTECTION

Canada was amongst them; though we had some protection because our currency was not pegged to a fixed exchange rate with the U.S. dollar. West Germany, also with a floating exchange rate, was more exposed because its economy looked stronger than ours. The most embarrassed countries were Japan, France, Switzerland and the low countries which were all trying to maintain their fixed exchange rate — pegged against the U.S. dollar in accordance with the rules of the International Monetary Fund.

In all these exchange markets the U.S. dollar had dropped as low as it could go by the international rules, and countries like France and Switzerland had taken emergency measures to stop their nationals from buying more U.S. dollars.

DEVALUATION

President Nixon, like every government facing a lack of confidence in it's currency (including Canada on past occasions) blamed "international speculators." This is the standard form. The fact is that nearly everybody — including governments and central banks around the world — had reached the conclusion that the U.S. dollar ought to be devalued.

They were looking at the United States in the same way that they have, on previous occasions, looked at Canada (e.g., 1962) and Britain. Here was a country which ever since the war had exported more capital than it imported; which used to offset this by selling far more abroad than it imported; but had now ceased to balance its imports with exports.

DEFICITS

This year the United States fell into a trade deficit for the first time in this century. Besides that, it gave every sign of being out of control.

The United States has been exhibiting an acute form of the disease which Canada has been fighting (so far with better success): growing unemployment combined with continuing inflation. The rest of the world could see little sign that Mr. Nixon was controlling either unemployment or inflation. Therefore the weakness of the U.S. dollar seemed chronic rather than temporary.

TOOK RISK

On top of this, most observers — both in Washington and abroad — believed that Mr. Nixon dare not risk his political prestige before the 1972 election by admitting that the U.S. dollar was overvalued. Even in Washington the knowledgeable people were discussing how the dollar could be devalued. But they still said it couldn't be done.

Mr. Nixon has confounded the prophets by attacking on all fronts.

He had done all that the United States can do to devalue its key currency (in which all the others are valued) by suspending the option of changing U.S. dollars into gold at $35 an ounce, or any other price. Now it is up to everybody else to decide what their currencies are worth in relation to a U.S. dollar unbacked by gold.

SIMILAR MOVE

He has tried to redress the blance of imports and exports by imposing a surcharge on most imports. It is a move very similar to one that Canada took in June, 1962, when our newly fixed rate of 92½ cents U.S. was threatened.

He has tried to remove the underlying inflation by his temporary wage and price freeze, his tax cuts and his promise of reduced government spending.

Nobody can tell how all this will work out. It is bound to be uncomfortable for all the countries which trade with the U.S. Canada may suffer as much as any, though we have certain advantages in such things as the auto pact and the U.S. need for our raw materials.

But against the shock and the immediately unpleasant consequences must be counted the dismal period of uncertaintly which had been expected by those who never believed that President Nixon could grasp the nettle so firmly.

Instead of fiddling around by ordering rest and champagne for a visibly declining patient, he has ordered surgery. It will hurt more in the short run. But the patient's ultimate prospect is better.

Canada's One-Day Mission 'Not the End' of Protest

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin flew to Washington today to argue for a Canadian exemption from new U.S. import duties.

But Mr. Benson said Wednesday the one-day mission is "not the end of our position" in trying to soften the effect of the new U.S. economic policies.

President Nixon Sunday ordered a 10-per-cent surcharge on all U.S. imports subject to duty, and this could mean $250 million to $300 million on total Canadian exports to the U.S. running to $12 billion. About one-quarter of Canada's exports to the U.S., mostly manufactured goods, would be affected.

On their return, the Canadian delegation leaders will report directly to Prime Minister Trudeau who, cut short a 25-day European tour with his wife to return to Ottawa today as a result of developments.

Mr. Benson would not predict what effect the surcharges would have on Canadian industry and unemployment until he knows what the United States will do in response to the mission's hardline request for an exemption.

CAN'T FORECAST MOVES

Also unknown, he said, is how long the surcharges would remain in effect, "and also what action the Canadian government might take."

This was the finance minister's first suggestion that the government might have some alternative in mind since his return early Wednesday from an abbreviated holiday in The Netherlands.

His remark, however, did not indicate whether he had some retaliatory action against the United States in mind, or some federal government plan to soften the blow of the surcharges on Canadian exporters.

"We'll have to decide this—what action the Canadian government might take after consultation with the United States," he said.

Mitchell Sharp, external affairs minister and acting prime minister, dismissed as unanswerable a reporter's question about what the Canadian government would do "if the Americans simply turn a deaf ear."

"It is my belief that the government of the United States does understand our situation and that these particular measures were not directed against us.

"That is the burden of our submission to them, and we are hoping—and I think with some justification—that this will appeal to the U.S. government."

The nub of the Canadian argument is that such heavy imposts on imports from Canada would be counter-productive. They would do so much harm to Canada that the growth of the Canadian market for U.S. goods would be jeopardized.

"I hope that we wouldn't have to use any pressure," he said. "The argument itself is that by applying these import surcharges against Canada, they are not helping their own situation."

Deeper Quicksands

THE SOCIAL CREDIT GOVernment's recent move to give Health Minister Loffmark the autocratic power to decide whether a doctor should have the right to use public hospital facilities or not was followed by a variety of explanations for the action. It was designed to prevent hospital boards exercising the authority of a clique to keep deserving doctors from using hospitals; alternatively, it was intended to force doctors to disperse their services into communities in the province which, it was claimed, were less abundantly served than the Vancouver, Victoria and Kelowna areas.

Among "reasons" not put out by government spokesmen was that which claimed the government's power was intended to place a political grip on hospital use by doctors—an iniquitous situation which cannot be divorced from such a power grab by government.

But now Premier Bennett, speaking in Dawson Creek, has apparently abandoned the argument that some centres in the province were deficient in doctors' services. He has also apparently abandoned the victims of this alleged injustice—which has been convincingly denied by the medical profession with statistics—by offering to let doctors have "full freedom" to practise where they like if, as a body, they will keep down the total of medicare costs for the province.

This is about as cynical a switcheroo as Mr. Bennett has pulled in a career resplendent with artful political manoeuvres. Either there is a deliberate intention by government ministers to becloud the medical issue with contradictory and poorly defined statements, or they are working in conflict with each other through ignorance or internal disagreement. In either case the public of British Columbia is being treated to a very shabby display of political juggling with an issue of vital importance and a principle of professional freedom.

Mr. Bennett's latest effort, reported by the Province, of Vancouver, caps them all. The noble declarations go by the board, the pious concern for the public's supply of doctors is dropped, if only the doctors of the province will undertake to keep the total of medical costs—never mind individual cases—down in order to get the government off the hook of rising expenses.

The sequence is a shameful one: Impose a legislated injustice on the medical profession and the public it serves, then bargain to lift it in return for a financial undertaking by the doctors. That is barefaced, unprincipled manipulation in the name of offering doctors freedom of choice. How much farther can this decaying regime go?

No Reform From the Inside

DR. SCOTT WALLACE, A SADder and wiser man than the enthusiastic candidate who accepted Social Credit sponsorship two years ago and won the Oak Bay seat Premier Bennett so dearly wanted, has made public his disillusionment with the provincial government.

He has resigned from the party not solely because of his differences with Mr. Bennett over recent hospital legislation, but because he has found that "under the system as now practised, the private member plays almost no realistic, active part in the formation of, or implementing of, government policy."

This must be a dismaying conclusion for the energetic campaigner who told the public, as he sought votes, that he intended to speak out and bring what influence he could, as a member of the party expecting to retain power, to the formulation of what he considered good legislation. That influence, he finds, has been negligible. He will be understood if he feels now that his importance to the premier resided almost entirely in his ability to win the seat withheld from Mr. Bennett's adherents by a 17-year succession of Liberal members.

Having accomplished the premier's purpose, Dr. Wallace was expected to jump through the hoop when the ring-master held it up. The doctor did not jump gracefully. Some critics may wonder why the dictatorship troubled him more than it does others senior to him in party membership and preferment. In any case, no one will deny that he was a forceful and useful critic of the administration.

The surprise is not that a man of Dr. Wallace's independent spirit should have come to the conclusion that he was little more than a cipher in a Social Credit system that ignores the private member. The surprise is that realization took two years to achieve. Scrutiny of the record and back-bench comments from both sides of the House should have brought the point home much sooner.

A Place for the Overnighters

A CITIZEN'S COMPLAINT against overnight camping in Beacon Hill Park shows up the lack of trailer or truck camping facilities in the Greater Victoria area. There must be sympathy for campers who, arriving at a late hour, are unable to find proper grounds for the night. But Beacon Hill Park is not the answer to this problem.

It is a mistake for police to permit camping along the Dallas Road waterfront of the park for this can only lead to further inroads on the park and the establishment of "rights" in this regard.

Surely the various government levels can now recognize that a new form of camping has arrived, and that camper trucks, trailers and other equipment must have space for overnight accommodation. Shopping plaza areas are not the answer either.

The problem should be faced while it is still in its early stages, so that campers can be directed to properly established emergency facilities when this is necessary. The public parks and streets are not a solution.

Pakistani Madness

COMMENTING ON THE CURrent trial of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, leader of the Awami League and champion of the autonomy of East Pakistan, Senator Edward Kennedy remarked: "I think the only crime Sheikh Mujib has been guilty of is winning the election."

The Secretary General of the United Nations, Mr. U Thant, warned that the trial of Sheikh Mujib could have repercussions outside Pakistan and was chided by Pakistan for not conforming to official procedure.

As leader of the political party which promoted the autonomy of East Pakistan the Sheikh demonstrated his political power beyond doubt in the national and provincial elections last December. The merciless civil war which broke out in March is a tragic epilogue to his able attempt to institute a political program constitutionally.

The horror of life in Bengal and the abominable behavior of the West Pakistan government and its troops should not be further compounded by a death sentence for Sheikh Mujib.

OTTAWA REACTION TO NIXON

A Soft Voice, Not NDP Stridency

By MAURICE WESTERN

THE sweeping economic and financial measures announced by President Nixon at weekend had the effect on Monday of emphasizing dramatically the divergent approaches to external policy of the Trudeau government and its NDP critics. First to the microphone and first to issue a public statement on behalf of his party was David Lewis. While the NDP is seldom hesitant to put words on the record, this precipitancy was almost certainly a mistake and Mr. Lewis must have sensed it because he did not appear to be his usual confident self.

A. Western

Any policy change in Washington of these dimensions is bound to have important effects on Canada. In the first six months of this year, nearly 69 per cent of our exports went to the American market. The United States is also our largest supplier; last year, with imports lagging rather noticeably, it was the source of about 71 per cent of our foreign purchases. In addition, it is our greatest source of outside investment and formidable competitor in many markets.

Thus, Canadian business is bound to be affected. Any leader of the New Democratic Party, which is peculiarly sensitive to American actions, would undoubtedly wish on the first appropriate occasion to express his views; to advise and admonish the present government and to put forward suggestions for a program in accordance with the NDP analysis.

Shooting From the Hip

But Mr. Lewis, acting perhaps on unwise advice, hurried to a press conference while the facts on which any judgment must be based were still far from clear.

He was fairly sure that certain goods — automobiles, oil, strategic materials — would not be subject to the American surcharges but what proportions of our trade would be affected he simply did not know. (In fact, the government itself on Monday night was not sure of the position in regard to strategic materials.) The NDP leader candidly admitted at one point that it might be a month or so before the prospects became clear. Nor was he clear as to the nature of the threat to our own currency; presumably the danger is that it will become too expensive but Mr. Lewis seemed to worry unduly about the possibility of withdrawal of profits by American companies, which probably would have the opposite effect.

Threats

Nevertheless, in the compulsion to prescribe, Mr. Lewis urged that we should be "very tough" (which is none too easy with our best customers) and suggested that we were not without weapons given the presence here of international corporations based in the United States. What we need is an agency to monitor their activities, making sure that they do not transfer production to the other side of the border and forbidding them, if necessary, from transferring profits earned here.

Much later in the day, Mitchell Sharp, the acting prime minister, commented on the basis of more comprehensive facts and a more serious appraisal of the new situation. Mr. Sharp did not pretend that the new policy would benefit us. But he was clear that the tariff surcharges would not affect goods previously not subject to duty; nor those under quantitative restrictions. With raw materials exempt, it appears that about 25 per cent of our trade with the United States is vulnerable, although in a good many cases the full 10 per cent levy (a maximum) will not apply.

Having set out these and other facts, Mr. Sharp proposed a policy course which seems altogether more likely to secure a relatively favorable outcome for Canadian exporters. This is based, not on a get tough policy nor on any new mechanism to intimidate American companies but on a fair recognition of the difficult problems with which Mr. Nixon is trying to grapple and careful analysis of what he actually said in the Washington announcement.

The key to this is the conviction that the president's case for the surcharges, on the basis of his own words, is not applicable to Canada. Their purpose is to bring to reason, and more sensible international arrangements, countries which maintain artificially low currency rates (thus securing unfair trade advantages at U.S. expense) or else rely on discriminatory trade practices. Since Canada qualifies on neither count, there is no reason to believe that action taken against this country, which would naturally injure over-all trade, would be of benefit to the United States in its current difficulties.

Thus the action proposed is the dispatch, almost immediately, of a team headed by ministers to put the Canadian case as strongly as possible before their American counterparts. In fact, as Mr. Lewis could not have known when he recommended his tough course, Mr. Benson has in effect already been invited in a letter from the president to Mr. Trudeau.

All this may be less dramatic than the hastily improvised NDP policy, based on a gloomy view that the world is plunging back to the 1930s and that the Canadian government must stop basing its plans on the expectation of American recovery. (Why? The United States has been in difficulties before but the Americans have survived and their neighbors with them.) But drama on the international scene, however emotionally satisfying, does not commonly pay off in jobs. Purpose does and the government on Monday sounded a grat deal more purposeful than Mr. Lewis.

Defending The Critic

So Mrs. Audrey Johnson is in trouble once again with her theatre reviews and her column.

Poor Audrey, a few years ago she was incurring the wrath of the Symphony Society also with her printed comments.

It may well be that none of us in Victoria are adult enough to accept and profit from Mrs. Johnson's penetrating comments.

As one who has in the last 20 years in Victoria in the theatre received both some high praises and many damnations from Mrs. Johnson in her reviews of my acting and directing efforts I am interested subjectively in my own reactions to what she has said.

Whenever she has praised me I have considered Mrs. Johnson to be omniscient, erudite, knowledgeable, perceptive, intelligent and above all—correct.

When I have been castigated I've thought her biased, ignorant, foolish, picayune and above all—incorrect.

Of course I do not impute these same reactions to anyone else, but I have never yet heard of any actor complaining that a self-flattering review was inaccurate or unfair!

One specific example may, perhaps, be related to the current controversy. Three years ago I directed "The Desert Song" for the VOS at the McPherson Playhouse. In her review Mrs. Johnson criticized the direction. She felt the show should have been played "tongue in cheek."

I decided to play it completely "straight."

"Desert Song" was sold out all week long. This certainly does not show that I was right and Mrs. Johnson wrong. What it does mean is that for the run of the show some thousands of Victorians were determined to see "Desert Song."

This perhaps is the greatest of theatre riddles — and a very intriguing one — why some shows ring the bell at the box office and some don't.

It would appear that, using theatre attendance as a yardstick, most people the world over go to the theatre primarily to be entertained and for this motive they will go either because of or in spite of the drama critic.

One final comment: from time to time when Mrs. Johnson comes under attack someone is always certain to question Mrs. Johnson's intrinsic knowledge of the theatre. Memories are indeed short but surely there must be many thousands of Victorians who well remember her superb and spectacular productions of "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "Murder in the Cathedral." Both played in the fabulous setting of Christ Church Cathedral — both playing to unanimous critical raves and packed houses.—Richard Litt, 2366 Zela.

Letters to the Editor

Run, Don't Walk

The other day I crossed Douglas at Yates, and, as everyone knows, the traffic light changes from "Walk" to "Don't Walk" when one is half way across. When I arrived on the other side of the street I was met by one of the overpaid and overzealous policemen and given a ticket for walking against the "No Walk" light, although there were still people walking behind me across the intersection.

I realize the police have to make up the losses in fines incurred while they were on their "slow down." Apparently they intend to do this by giving tickets to old age pensioners for crossing the street.

I have always been an admirer of the police, realizing they often have a very difficult and thankless task, but this little episode has changed my mind. It was a most unpleasant welcome to Victoria. — Edward Thorpe, 1035 Pendergast.

"Such a Disaster"

Your editorial of August 13 leaves no doubt that the proposed Reid development will ruin the character and charm of Victoria, if not with this proposal then with others that will follow. Is your newspaper just a chronicle of events with editorial comment not calculated to affect issues in any way? Or do you feel it is an instrument which not only keeps people informed but points the way or even takes a hand in remedying situations which are against the interests of the community it purports to serve?

If the latter is the case then you can publish details of how such a disaster as the Reid buildings can be prevented. Surely if all interested residents and people who live and work in the Victoria region can be reached in time, and their signatures obtained, there must be a legal way of forcing the City Council to withhold their approval of the plan or rescind it, until such time as an over-all plan for the future development of the capital city be drawn up and approved. If taxpayers can be consulted on street-widening projects, surely the future nature of the city is even more a matter for their approval. You could reach all your readers by publishing a request form for all readers or residents to sign, requesting a change in the proposal.

Alderman Pollen says there is no alternative to the agreed plan. I believe he is wrong. Just as the "Four Seasons" project in Vancouver was changed by public pressure so should there be public pressure to change this proposal. Who better to put on the pressure than the Victoria Times? — John G. Barnett, 3141 Woodburn Ave.

(Editor's Note: The Times continues to object to construction of high-rise towers on the Inner Harbor waterfront and feels that by publication of all available details of the plan, along with this newspaper's opinion and that of its readers, it is rendering a public service. Victorians who wish to carry their objections farther should also write to the mayor and aldermen of the city and so direct their protest where it will do the most good).

Those Polluting U.S. Yachts

Having observed the high interest in reducing pollution and the conservation of our wildlife recently, I am horrified by the steadily increasing pollution of the waters of our Gulf Islands.

I have just returned from a sailing holiday in our Gulf Islands, and of the hundreds of small craft observed, I would estimate that over 75 per cent were of American ownership. Tide lines and back eddies are littered with those indestructible thermo coffee cups and plastic bags full of garbage; also, there does not appear to be any check on catch limits for salmon or shell fish.

I am not inferring that the United States yachts are greater offenders than their Canadian counterparts, but with the percentage being higher, it would seem very probable that the greater percentage of the offenders are also visitors.

As most of the visiting craft are basically self-sufficient while in Canadian waters and add nothing to our economy other than to a handful of marinas, I would think that a system should be instituted to assess these visiting yachts. If a fee was charged when their cruise permits are obtained at the port of entry, these funds could be used to finance a system of garbage collection at Government wharfs and the hiring of additional summer personnel to help enforce conservation of our limited stock of sea life. — D. N. J. Wardell, 1335 Victoria.

Jack and the Weed

This is the second time in my memory that Jack Scott has attempted to glorify his assumption of martyrdom via the route of "no more waltzes with you, Lady Nicotine."

Some 20 years ago Mr. Scott's readers were subjected to a running commentary on his bloody battle raging between that great winged, scaly saurian monster (bastard child of Jean Nicot) and the little knight in shining armor whose only source of moral support was a typewriter and the captive reading audience.

The characteristic battle cry of these self-sung heroes thunders across the land, announcing to all us lesser mortals that their health has improved immeasureably since that last tearful parting.

Permit me to address myself to Mr. Scott: Hold your torch high, Jack, but I predict that its light will fade as it did on that other historic occasion, and when it finally sputters out, my prior knowledge of your other great battles should entitle me to be the first to know.

When next you enjoy your first embrace with Lady Nicotine don't expect her to be the panacea of all your troubles. Her middle name is Moderation, and she answers to it more kindly than to the ranking term of reference. You will swallow more poison following a city bus for a couple of blocks than could be contained in a whole pack of her capsule offerings.

So please, Jack, end this maddening suspense. Go ahead! Have a cigarette, but don't forget to "phone me." — J. D. Vallance, 7216 Brentview.

Busy Travelling

It is certainly good to hear that our "leader" is off on a vacation in Yugoslavia. Why it's been at least a few weeks since he went on his last one. He is such a busy person — Where does he ever find the time to work?

It makes me feel so good knowing that our Prime Minister cares so much for the well-being of his people. As a citizen and a taxpayer, I am proud and happy to be relieved of my money so the prime minister can have a good time travelling. But then, his continued absence can be easily rationalized as we look at his accomplishments.

I for one, am anxious for the arrival of the next federal elections. I doubt very much if the prime minister shares my anxiety! — William Deraad, 1605 Longacre.

Mayor Morley's very timely and valuable suggestion that an inquiry be undertaken into the high cost of living in Victoria was adopted by the city council last evening, despite some criticism and objection, and as commissioners to give effect to the council's desire for information, H. J. Pullen and John Dean were appointed to investigate existing conditions, collect data and make a report to the city council.

Amchitka Countdown

Tick Tick Tick Tick

Even on good days, which are very infrequent, Amchitka Island is depressing. Located 1,400 miles from the coast of Alaska and only 800 miles away from Siberia, this island, which is part of Alaska, is 42 miles long and less than five miles wide. The only access to it is by air.

It is cold, wet, barren, windy, treeless, surrounded by stormy and treacherous seas, and normally uninhabited, except for arctic birds and sea otters who live on the offshore rocks.

But since 1964, men have been on the island: Amchitka is a site for underground testing of nuclear bombs by the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defence.

In late September or early October, the most powerful and potentially destructive man-made explosion in history is scheduled to be set off at the bottom of a 6,000-foot hole drilled below the surface of Amchitka. The explosion, which is referred to as Operation Cannikin, will be caused by a five-megaton nuclear bomb, with the destructive power of approximately 10 billion pounds of TNT.

The devastating effects of that amount of nuclear energy are far beyond comprehension, especially when one remembers that the bombs that wiped out Hiroshima and Nagasaki were only 20 kilotons each, the equivalent of only 40 million pounds of TNT.

Only one result of the explosion seems certain: instantaneously, the explosion will blow out an underground cavity the length of two football fields in which, says the AEC, all the dangerous radioactive water and gas from the explosion will remain for at least a thousand years. About all other effects of the bomb bitter controversy rages.

On one side are scientists, conservationists, and peace groups, in addition to political figures from Alaska, California, Hawaii, Canada, Japan, and other countries either on the Pacific Rim or bordering the polar regions. All these individuals and groups oppose the test; only the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defence support it.

Much of the opposition to Cannikin comes from those scientists and environmentalists who insist that it may trigger, either immediately or later, a huge earthquake which could do very serious damage far beyond Amchitka and Alaska.

There are other dangers. The explosion may cause tidal waves; moreover dangerous radioactivity, in the sea or air or even both, may result, and if that happens, the fallout could easily drift over Canada

Cannikin contains other potential environmental perils: the explosion could kill birds, fish, and animals in the area; it may also drastically disrupt, and for a long time, the delicate ecological balance of life in the Arctic North.

Commission officials insist that the predicted dangers are exaggerated and that Cannikin will have "no major impact on the environment." But the AEC hedges on Cannikin's effects: according to the director of the AEC's weapons development division, Major General Edward Giller, the agency's panel of consultants has not said that "there will be zero possibility of some consequences." In fact, when it was charged that Cannikin could cause an earthquake, the AEC admitted that "because the understanding of earthquake mechanism is still developing and is not yet sufficient for exact calculations, the possibility of such an occurrence cannot be ruled out."

If the possibility of an earthquake cannot be ruled out, how then can the AEC justify taking such a risk? Well, the commission says, although it's true that large-scale underground explosions invariably cause earthquakes, such an occurrence in Cannikin's case might be an advantage.

That advantage, so the logic goes, is that if a natural earthquake is now building up there anyway, Cannikin would release some of the pent-up energy prematurely, thus cutting down on what might be a much more serious disaster.

An "unlikely possibility" also exists, the AEC concedes, that the radioactive water and gas created by the explosion wouldn't just remain quietly inside the huge cavity 6,000 feet below the ground. Instead, it might flow up to the surface, in two or three years, through the fractured rock and chimney system which the blast will create, and then mix with the ocean water.

If that happens, the water will be 1,200 times more radioactive than what is considered safe and the process will continue for an estimated 130 years.

How unlikely is the AEC's "unlikely possibility"? In view of its past track record, no one can have much confidence in the agency's ability to predict what happens in underground explosions. Prior to Operation Gnome, held in a New Mexico cave in 1962, the AEC insisted there was "zero possibility" that the test could vent radioactivity into the atmosphere.

Nevertheless it did, only moments after the shot. Project Long Shot, conducted at Amchitka in 1965, was not expected to leak radioactivity for hundreds of years. Nevertheless it did, only a few months later.

Moreover, 10 per cent of the underground tests conducted at the AEC's Nevada test site have caused radio-activity; none was predicted. Project Baneberry, for example which was detonated in Nevada in December, 1970, vented so much unexpected radioactivity into the atmosphere that the workers near the test site had to be decontaminated immediately and then evacuated from their homes, which remained unoccupied for months because of dangerously high radio-activity counts.

All these underground detonations were much, much smaller that Cannikin. Indeed it is not possible to have any data whatever about the effects of an underground explosion of as huge a scale as this. The AEC picked Amchitka Island as a test site largely because it could not experiment with such powerful bombs at the Nevada test site for fear of adverse effects on the surrounding population.

The first time the AEC tried to use Alaska for an alternate test site was in 1960, when the commission proposed blowing up a huge chunk of the state's isolated coast line in order to make a harbor. But nobody in Alaska wanted a harbor there so that project, named Chariot, was converted into an excavation of a large, useless hole in the ground.

Chariot was stopped by determined opposition from a few scientists who fought the AEC, and finally won. The uncompleted Chariot cost the AEC $2 million.

But Chariot, unlike Cannikin, had no ostensible military purpose and so could not be defended as in the interest of "national security." In the mid-1960s, the AEC returned to Alaska to carry out Project Long Shot, a small underground detonation on Amchitka, claiming that this was only a one-shot test, not the first in a series of experiments.

Nevertheless, within two years, the AEC was making plans to convert Amchitka into a full-scale test site. In 1969, a one-megagon bomb was exploded underground on Amchitka.

By that time, may Alaskans were becoming suspicious of the AEC and its claims. One of the more wary was the newly elected U.S. senator from Alaska, Mike Gravel, who discovered in 1969 that a presidential commission, headed by Dr. Kenneth Pitzer, then president of Stanford University, had been appointed to investigate the safety of such underground tests.

To Gravel's surprise, he discovered that he couldn't even get a copy of the Pitzer Report because it had been classified. Only after he threatened to open a full-scale attack on the commission at a hearing of the Foreign Relations Committee was the report finally released. Among other things, it contained warnings of severe earthquakes which might follow large test explosions.

At the end of May, the AEC held a three-day hearing in Alaska, partly in Juneau and partly in Anchorage.

In addition to AEC officials, 35 other witnesses, including some from Canada, appeared at the hearings. Of the 35 only one spoke in favor of the test and he is an AEC contractor. All the others, including scientists, Alaskan state government officials, California legislators, conservationists, and Canadian representatives, were vigorously opposed to Cannikin.

A few days after the hearing, the Alaska State Bar Association convention recommended that the state attorney general file a lawsuit, if necessary, to prevent the AEC from carrying out the tests.

The final decision about whether Cannikin will be carried out as scheduled rests with the White House.

The political risks to Nixon are great. Protests against the test have come from the governments of Japan, Canada, and Finland.

It is obvious that the president faces still another, greater, personal risk if he decides in favor of Cannikin; it could conceivably go wrong and trigger some kind of disaster. And if that happens, the political fallout on the career of Richard Nixon may be as great as the radioactive fallout on the population.

How Safe Is Safe for Nuclear Reactors?

By DR. J. E. TILL Science Forum

(Dr. J. E. Till is professor of medical biophysics at the University of Toronto. The article has been excerpted from Science Forum, a Canadian journal of science and technology.)

Proponents of advanced technology in the United States, still reeling from the rejection of supersonic transport, are now being attacked on another score. This time the issue is nuclear power, and in particular the liquid metal-cooled fast breeder reactor.

On 25 May, Margaret Mead, the anthropologist who is president of an organization called the Scientists' Institute for Public Information, held a press conference to announce a lawsuit against the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission. The AEC is charged with violation of section 102 of the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, which requires submission of an analysis of the environmental implications of all federally-financed programs.

The breeder reactors use plutonium as fuel, and by converting uranium-238 into plutonium are designed to produce more of this fuel than they burn. It is feared that, as power production expands, the environment will be contaminated by plutonium through catastrophic accidents, sabotage, or routine carelessness.

An additional hazard is the possible creation of a black market in plutonium for military uses.

On these grounds, the environmentalists claim that the development by the AEC of fast breeder reactors may not be justifiable, and that alternative methods of producing electric power should be considered.

They also claim that the desirability of rapid and continued growth in electric power production is open to question. Thus the broader issue of the relationship between economic growth and the quality of life is added to the technological and environmental problems.

The lawsuit could not have taken the AEC entirely by surprise. For the past several years, it has been involved in an increasingly vituperative controversy over the hazards of radiation and the safety of nuclear power plants. The individuals most clearly identified with this controversy are John W. Gofman and Arthur R. Tamplin, ironically enough research associates at the AEC's Lawrence Radiation Laboratory in Livermore, California, who were assigned by the AEC in 1963 to evaluate the hazards of radiation.

The have ended up as crusaders, issuing public warnings against the hazards of radiation exposure and the dangers of nuclear pollution. Their latest contribution to this controversy is a paperback with the provocative title Poisoned Power. The book is frankly polemical, peppered with sentences such as this:

"Yes, a nuclear juggernaut, responsive to no societal needs, has been moving across the land, threatening a nightmare for life on earth forever."

Such sentences can be quite disconcerting unless one has a taste for this sort of thing, and the temptation becomes very strong simply to dismiss Gofman and Tamplin as a pair of cranks. Instead, the reading of this long book has led me to think they may have at least one point that merits serious attention. This concerns the 'maximum permissible dose' of radiation allowable for the whole population.

In Canada, for individual members of the public not exposed in their occupation, the maximum permissible dose is 500 millirem per year, excluding medical exposure and radiation from natural sources.

The politically sensitive aspect of the maximum permissible dose arises from the fact that it includes a built-in risk-versus-benefit assessment. As Gofman and Tamplin point out, society has not really participated directly in this risk-versus-benefit assessment.

It has been made by panels of experts, who, no matter how scientifically competent, are not really qualified to pass value judgments, because they are not representative of the population as a whole, and are not directly responsible to that population for the consequences of their assessment.

This line of reasoning leads one to the conclusion that such decisions must be made by individuals responsible to the public, on the basis of information that has been subjected to assessment in public forum. One format for such an assessment has been proposed by Mike Gravel, a U.S. senator from Alaska who suggests that the principal scientists involved in the radiation hazards controversy should argue their cases before a special jury.

The two major hazards of radiation to the population as a whole (as contrasted with people exposed to radiation because of their occupation) are the genetic effects and the 'late somatic' effects such as the induction of malignancy. Of these, the genetic effects are probably the more important, because genetic damage induced by radiation can be passed on to later generations, while somatic effects are not inherited and only increase the risk to the invidividual actually exposed.

All experts appear to agree that, as far as genetic risks are concerned, there is no safe dose of radiation except no dose at all. They also agree that the total number of deleterious conditions suffered by subseqnent generations (extending over 80 generations or more) will greatly exceed that experienced by the first generation. Because of the very long-term effects on the general population of any increase in mutation rate, the genetic risk of radiation — or of any other environmental mutagen — must be taken very seriously indeed.

Gofman and Tamplin have suggested that the maximum permissible dose to the population at large should be reduced by at least 10-fold. Opponents of this view have argued that there is no urgent requirement for such a downward revision of the maximum permissible dose because the present levels released by power and research reactors are less than 1 per cent of the permissible level. They suggest that existing reactors could easily meet the requirement of a 10-fold reduction in permissible levels.

If this is the case, why not play it safe and lower the permissible levels by 10-fold? The principal objection seems to that not enough practical experience has yet been gained in the operation of power reactors and, since there is no pressing problem at present because there are few power reactors, it is better to defer such a decision until more information is available.

No doubt this view is influenced by the realization that, were the maximum permissible dose to be lowered, it might be extremely difficult to persuade the public to allow it to be raised again should the need to do so ever arise.

Another possible influence is the fact that the medical use of x-rays is currently by far the most important source of man-made exposure to radiation for the population as a whole. A 10-fold reduction in the maximum permissible dose of radiation could quickly lead to urgent pleas to reduce the medical uses of radiation. Until now there has been relatively little public concern about radiation when it is used for medical purposes.

It seems to have been generally accepted that the benefits resulting from such uses of radiation far outweight the risks that might be involved. This situation could change if the maximum permissible dose for other man-made sources of radiation were lowered.

One can conclude that the radiation hazards controversy is an excellent example of 'science politics,' analogous to other controversies like the one pioneered by Rachel Carson over levels of pesticides in the environment. Practitioners of the new craft of science politics are appearing in increasing numbers and are following in the footsteps of Linus Pauling and Rachel Carson.

Meanwhile, we need some ways, perhaps along the lines of the peer review system proposed by Senator Gravel, to make it possible to distinguish the visionaries from the charlatans within the swelling ranks of the science politicians. We must be able to test the quality of their science, and the quality of their policies.

The Mead lawsuit concerning fast breeder reactors and the Gofman-Tamplin controversy about maximum permissible doses are excellent examples. The policy questions are these: How much priority should be given to the production of more electrical power, and do the anticipated benefits really outweight the true social and economic costs when all factors are taken into consideration?

The main scientific question concerns the hazards of radiation: exactly how much biological damage would be caused if radiation in the environment were ever to reach maximum permissible levels? We need satisfactory answers to all these questions.

FUNNEL OF TERROR dips down to earth in Kansas. (AP Wirephoto)

TORNADO SPOTTER PUTS IT ON FILM

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — Henry Perez, a Kansas highway patrol trooper, has captured on film a spectacular sequence of pictures of a developing tornado.

On a stormy night in May, 1970, on the flat Kansas prairie about 25 miles west of Salina, Perez, 28, and a fellow highway patrolman pulled off Interstate 70 in their patrol cars to perform tornado spotter duty. This is a regular function of the patrol in this state, in the heart of "tornado alley."

Tornadoes develop along squall lines when cool northern air moving southward across the midwestern plains overruns warm, moist air which has pushed northward from the Gulf of Mexico.

A tornado is a funnel-shaped, ominously dark cloud with winds swirling counter-clockwise at up to 300 miles an hour. It travels along a path—usually southwest to northeast—at a speed of 25 to 40 miles an hour, leaving death and devastation in its dips into populated areas.

The tornado Perez photographed was in open country. It caused only minor field damage and downed a few trees before rising again.

Perez had with him a 35-mm Sears single lens reflex camera—a standard piece of equipment for the troopers to shoot highway accident pictures.

What Perez recorded was a bulge protruding downward out of a boiling cloud about a quarter of a mile from the two troopers.

"I got it right from the beginning, and just keep shooting as it progressed," he said.

Perez continued to shoot the developing tornado until its long elephant-trunk funnel had dipped to the earth and began stirring up dust.

He estimated he shot 20 exposures within five to seven minutes, with the camera set on automatic for both the exposure adjustment and the shutter speed.

Big Power Agreement Seen on Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — Representatives of the Big Four powers which administer West Berlin wrapped up a marathon 14-hour conference concerning the city just before 1 a.m. today and recessed on a note of optimism.

"We have made real progress," said U.S. Ambassador Kenneth Rush. "We have completed our review of all the points at issue. We have been going slowly because we want to be sure that any agreement has the complete support of all the four powers and the German people."

"End good, everything good," said Soviet Ambassador Pyotr Abrassimov.

Rush, Abrassimov, Britain's Sir Roger Jaeklin and Jean Sauvagnargues of France agreed to continue their talks Monday.

Rush said he was looking forward to Monday, but he said he could not say if agreement would be reached then.

However, West Berlin officials following the talks closely expressed confidence that agreement was near.

Confederation Dad Wowed by Frisco

MONTREAL (CP) — A hundred years ago, the fledgling government of Canada sent Hector Louis Langevin, one of the Fathers of Confederation, to report on the new province of British Columbia.

But his official report did not contain many of the observations on opium dens, gambling halls and prostitutes in San Francisco that color his 128 page diary, to be sold by auction next month.

"It is very different from the official report published in 1872," says Bernard Amtmann, dealer in old books.

"The research value is incontestable, and there is no doubt it should be published as soon as possible in both languages, as an important contribution to the knowledge of the history of Canada and British Columbia."

The small, leather-bound note-book, closely written in pencil, mostly in French but with some passages in English, devotes about 24 pages to the emissary's experiences during an eight-day stay in San Francisco — a visit with friends and a detective to the Chinese quarter where they saw opium smokers, a fortune teller and a gambling house.

Langevin also noted the brothels and commented that the prostitutes were shy because of the presence of the police officer.

He visited the Opera Francais and was appalled by the looseness of morals in a production of La Belle Helene. He wrote:

"I am no longer astonished by what is said of the moral disintegration of French society and the necessity for exemplary punishment."

While Langevin was in the United States, he was a private citizen and could enjoy himself, but when he reached British Columbia, he became the official delegate of the Canadian federal government.

Dancing Bill, Gum Boots Sally, Slippery Kate, Dirty Face Pete and Sleeping Jesus were among the notables of early British Columbia society met by Langevin.

Another mentioned in the diary was a Mrs. Wilson. "Connected with the family of Emperor of Russia as governess, now living with blacksmith Tomkins, she keeps saloon also theatre."

British Scientists Desperate for Cure to Dutch Elm Disease

By CAROL KENNEDY

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of England's "immemorial elms," celebrated in the poetry of Lord Tennyson and the paintings of John Constable, are dying of Dutch elm disease and British scientists are desperately searching for a way of combatting the fatal fungus.

Britain's forestry commission, beset by the country's worst outbreak since the 1930s, has expressed keen interest in reports of a new fungicide process developed by chemists at the University of Toronto.

Dr. John Gibbs, pathologist at the commission's research station in Surrey, said he planned to write for further information to Prof. Erik Jorgensen, head of the Canadian university's Shade Tree Laboratory.

The Toronto process, under wraps until fully tested and approved by the federal government, involves pumping a new kind of fungicide into elm-tree roots to combat the activities of the elm-bark beetle, carrier of the disease.

TRIED CHEMICALS

Gibbs, informed of Toronto newspaper reports on the developments said, his department had experienced setbacks with chemical treatments which started promisingly but turned out to be unsuitable.

"But we are ready to clutch at straws," he added in a telephone interview.

Dutch elm disease, first identified here in 1927, was dormant for many years but started its present spread in 1966. Now it is making inroads into the elm population of counties from southeast Essex as far west as North Devon. In bad areas, Gibbs says, the disease has "changed the face of the landscape."

"Instead of looking at splendid elms in the hedgerows, you now look at dead trees or the stumps of felled ones."

Dutch elm disease is so called because The Netherlands lost a high proportion of its elms earlier than other affected countries, and its scientists have done a great deal of research into the problem, including breeding a new train of elm more resistant to the bark-beetle.

Infected trees, recognizable by a premature autumnal appearance and sudden shedding of leaves, eventually become a breeding-ground for the beetles and have to be severely amputated or felled and the infected parts burned.

The forestry commission now is carrying out a systematic survey to determine the number of elms at risk. Gibbs says it is still a regional problem—where the beetle became established through historical accident—but now "quite large areas" are affected and the infection is spreading.

It still is not known why the disease surfaced again after a dormant period. British researchers believe climatic conditions may play an important part. Gibbs said the best way of halting the present outbreak would be a cold winter followed by a wet spring—conditions unpopular with the bark-beetle, which seems to thrive during fine, dry summer.

Meanwhile, some English regions are experimenting with non-chemical treatment. Civic authorities at Basildon, a new town in Essex, have imported a quantity of Austrian parasitic wasps, natural predators of the bark beetle. These already exist in England, but Basildon officials hope to tip the ecological scale by building up a large population.

Somewhat frivolously, perhaps, a correspondent to The Times inquired recently:

"What will they import to eradicate the Austrian wasp when it has eaten all the beetles?"

Drought-Hit Afghanistan Asks Help

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Reports reaching here say that in some parts of drought-ravaged Afghanistan people have started eating grass, while others have begun mass migrations in search of food and water.

The foreign ministry, appealing for international aid, said:

"Parched by back-to-back years of the most severe drought ever experienced in the entire recorded history of the country, Afghanistan today faces the black prospect of insufficient grain to feed its population of 16 million and not enough fodder to maintain its livestock."

An announcement said the country's staple wheat crop has been decimated, "causing production to fall an estimated 800,000 tons short of self-sufficiency over the past two seasons." It said that without "extraordinary relief" up to 70 per cent of 26 million animals could perish, with losses possibly reaching 100 per cent in such areas as the barren northwest.

China has offered 15,000 tons of wheat and 3,000 tons of corn. Officials say the United States is considering a request for 100,000 tons of wheat.

Rich Metal Deposits On Seabed

MIAMI (AP) — Marine scientists say they have discovered evidence that rich deposits of valuable metals, possibly even gold and platinum, may lie exposed on the mid-Atlantic's sea floor.

The Miami Herald reported today that the deposits include "extreme heavy encrustations" of manganese ore, along with nickel, copper and cobalt.

The scientists, who recently returned here after a two-month "exploration" cruise across the Atlantic to northwest Africa, said the geology of the deposits suggests that gold and platinum may be there, too.

Dr. Peter A. Rona, a marine geologist with the national oceanic and atmospheric administration, said the manganese ore was in exposed rock where earth movements have fractured the seabed.

Another scientist, Dr. Louis W. Butler, said the deposits apparently lie beneath water 3,000 to 14,000 feet deep, making them difficult to mine by current technology.

45 Dead

CASABLANCA, Morocco (Reuter) — Forty-five persons were killed and 30 injured when a rural bus plunged into a deep gorge on a country road 65 miles southwest of here Wednesday, police reported.

New Alliance Party Trying To Bring Ulster Together

By COLIN FROST

BELFAST (AP) — Amid the wreckage of Northern Ireland's social and political scene, a new group says it's having success in bringing Roman Catholic and Protestant together.

The Alliance party represents yet another attempt to mobilize the supposed majority of middle-minded people opposed to sectarian politics and street warfare.

The party as yet has no representative in Parliament, is still working out its political platform and does not know its membership total.

But it has a lively central organization and branches in 44 of Ulster's 52 parliamentary constituencies—more, it says, than any other party.

Basil Glass, the Protestant half of a joint chairmanship, is a lawyer who says he is certain people are tired of the old divisions and genuinely want a government drawing on both religious denominations and based on social concern.

"At the moment," he said, "Alliance is concentrating on people's immediate needs, combining political activity with social work."

FIGHT INTIMIDATION

"We help organize transport, food and accommodations for the homeless.

"We are organizing, too, a flying squad to combat the intimidation that seems to be growing even now, forcing people out of their homes.

"The growth in Alliance membership in the past weeks has been fantastic—sometimes 60 a day. We have one staff man full time on membership registration and he can't keep up."

Alliance emerged in April last year from the New Ulster Movement, a group set up in 1969 aiming to pressure existing parties into more moderate attitudes.

Alliance founders decided pressure was not enough—that the governing Unionist party would increasingly become the captive of right-wing Protestants, and the opposition groups the Catholic-based captives of hardline republicans with the outlawed Irish Republican Army in the background.

"We have always said that we emerged from the human situation in Northern Ireland and we are aiming to achieve government," Glass said.

"People now have only three choices—the Irish Republican Army, right-wing politics represented by Rev. Ian Paisley or the Alliance party."

Irish Officials Quit in Protest

LONDONDERRY (Reuter) — Thirty leading Roman Catholics in Londonderry's city administration announced today they were resigning in protest against internment and the arrest of two members of the Ulster Parliament during rioting Wednesday.

The resignations included those of the chairman and two other members of the police liaison committee, and members of the port and harbor commissioners.

Their move follows an incident in the Catholic Bogside district when two opposition members of the Ulster Parliament were arrested by British troops when demonstrators tried to stop soldiers from removing street barricades. The MPs were later released.

The 30 said in a statement that "we totally abhor and condemn the introduction of internment without trial as a gross violation of natural justice."

The two arrested members of Parliament were John Hume and Ivan Cooper, Social Democratic Labor party representatives for Foyle and Mid-Derry respectively.

AIRLINE MAY LOSE LANDING RIGHTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department says Irish airlines will lose the right to land in New York in a year if the Republic of Ireland does not let U.S. airlines operate in Dublin.

This is the first time the United States has told a foreign aidline it might lose landing rights and, state department officials said Wednesday, the ultimatum is in line with President Nixon's new economic policy calling for stronger action to protect U.S. economic interests abroad.

The officials said the action also conformed to Nixon's international aviation policy statement of June, 1970, which calls for vigorous action to give U.S. airlines a fair opportunity to compete with foreign carriers.

The United States said the three U.S. carriers that fly to Ireland—Pan American, Trans World Airlines and Seaboard World Airways—are at a disadvantage landing only in Shannon because more people want to fly to and from Dublin, the Irish capital.

Irish International Airlines general manager, Michael Dargan said the announcement "represents negotiation by economic muscle."

He said in Dublin that the three U.S. carriers, "not content with having full access to two-thirds of the Irish market through Shannon, want the remaining one-third as well."

"Three against one is apparently their idea of fair competition and the United States is apparently prepared to use force against us to back them up," he said.

U.S. officials said Irish airlines in 1969 received $26 million revenue from fares on its U.S. flights compared wits $8 million taken in by the three American airlines on flights between Ireland and the United States.

Irish International Airlines, also called Aer Lingus and Aer Linte, has been allowed to fly to New York, Boston and Chicago.

Agreement Signed

MOSCOW (Reuter) — The Soviet Union and North Vietnam have signed new agreements for Moscow to provide the Hanoi government with further military aid, Tass news agency announced Wednesday night.

Black-Ruled Malawi Aids Cause of White-Ruled Neighbors

By JIM HOAGLAND

BLANTYRE, Malawi (WP) — This small, black-ruled country is quietly co-operating in Portugal's military campaign against African guerrillas in the neighboring territory of Mozambique.

Malawi has recently turned over two gunboats it uses to patrol Lake Malawi to Portuguese naval officers now assigned here from Mozambique.

The 360-mile-long lake connects Malawi, Mozambique and Tanzania, where the anti-Portuguese gerrilla group known as Frelimo has its headquaters.

Exiled Malawian opponents of President Hastings Banda also live in Tanzania, and it is thought that the Portuguese sailors manning the two small patrol craft keep an eye out for both Felimo guerrillas who might try to infiltrate into Mozambique and any moves against Banda's government.

STRAGETIC

Although its own forces are militarily insignificant, Malawi's geographic position gives it strategic importance in the struggle between black guerrilla movements and the white minority governments of southern Africa.

Malawi probes like a long finger into the middle of Mozambique and would be an excellent sanctuary for Frelimo, But Banda, who is paying an official visit to South Africa this week, refuses to allow guerrillas to operate from his country.

Landlocked and poor, Malawi is dependent on Portuguese harbors and rail lines for its imports and exports. Banda has also publicly proclaimed his friendship for the Portuguese and southern African governments, which are encouraging investment for Malawi.

Banda's foes assert that he has already signed a secret defence pact with South Africa. The Malawi government strongly denies this charge, and was deeply embarrassed last year when a South African cabinet minister seemed to give it substance.

The minister, Carel De-Wet, said that South Africa would be able to use an airport Malawi is building with South African financial help as "our most forward departure point in the north" to fight guerrillas.

Diplomats here point out that the statement came in the middle of a tough election campaign and may have been designed to dampen white criticism of South Africa's loans to Malawi. But De Wet's refusal to retract the assertion keeps alive speculation on Malawi-South African security links.

South Africa's direct support from Malawi's security forces appears to have been limited to lending the Malawi police a few police-dog handlers, well informed sources report.

Malawi has accredited a South African military attache, one of three here. The others are British and American. Like their South African counterpart, they are thought to spend more time studying the guerrilla struggle in Mozambique than Malawi's minuscule military forces.

The country has an understrength army of less than 1,000 men, which is reportedly equipped with surplus Second World War British-donated material. The better equipped police force, which Banda relies on more than the army, numbers about 2,000, a Malawi government official said.

BRITISH OFFICERS

The army is run by British officers contracted to Malawi, which has depended on its former colonial ruler, Britain, for all its military assistance in the past. Malawi's decision to use secopded Portuguese officers on its gunboats is the first significant departure from that pattern.

Banda's government has feared for some time that the Malawi exiles, who mounted an abortive raid against Banda in 1967, would make common cause with Frelimo and attack Malawi. Frelimo is thought to have 6,000 to 8,000 armed guerrillas. The growing co-operation with Portugal, although it is still at a low level, may represent an insurance against that, sources here say.

Pullout Wanted

LONDON (UPI) — Icelandic Foreign Minister Einar Agustsson said Wednesday his government expects to begin negotiations with the United States early in 1972 for the phased pullout within the next four years of all American forces.

The minister said Iceland wants to remain a member of NATO but the new government, which came to power last June and embraces a coalition, including two communist members, does not want foreign troops on the island, he said.

And you thought economy meant compromise.

It's the things you don't have to give up that make the Mazda 1600 c.c. Sedan. Like driving. You can go all day without aching in your bones. Or in your pocketbook.

The Mazda 1600 is the most comfortable car in the class. It has a longer wheelbase. A wider stance. And the finest suspension system at any price.

For performance, the overhead cam engine is tough and efficient. You can climb mountains and cross prairies without strain. And you'll get top mileage on regular gas.

You don't have to give up on the interior. The Mazda 1600 is luxurious and roomy. With body contoured bucket seats. Wall-to-wall carpeting. Padded dash and fine instrumentation. And a back seat with plenty of legroom.

And unlike a lot of imports the Mazda 1600 Sedan doesn't give up on the outside. It's graceful with lines that flow instead of angles that jar. So it doesn't look like you're driving a bargain.

You could buy a lot of little cars for less. If you don't mind a lot of little compromises. Or you could buy a Mazda 1600 Sedan.

Billboard Firms Launch Ad Ban Fight

OTTAWA (CP) — Many national health and other voluntary agencies have received letters seeking support in a campaign against the federal government's plan to ban cigarette advertising.

The same letter reminds each agency that it was "assisted in the past" by the billboard advertising industry through donated billboard space.

The letter has caused concern in some voluntary health agencies who fear the billboard advertisers are trying to put pressure on them to discontinue support of the federal anti-smoking campaign.

"In no way was that the intent of the letter," said J. H. C. Penaligon, whose name as president of the Outdoor Advertising Association of Canada is attached to it.

"Our purpose was to get support for our position that if it is legal to sell a product it is legal to tell about that product."

Over the next few weeks, the letter is to come before the governing boards of the Canadian Heart Foundation, long a major supporter of the anti-smoking campaign; and the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada.

Other recipients include the Canadian Cancer Society, also a major advocate of anti-smoking legislation, the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, the United Appeal and many more.

The government's legislation, placed before the Commons June 10, would ban all form of advertising and promotion by Jan. 1, including broadcast, print, billboard, neon sign or store display.

Edward Dunlop, managing director of the Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, said he had not interpreted the billboard association appeal as a threat, only as a statement of fact. The society's governing board will consider the letter next month.

"They have been extraordinarily decent people over the years and not the kind to exert undue influence or pressure," he said.

I CONNED 'EM BOASTS TOM

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell said Tuesday he used reverse psychology in outwitting the hordes of young travellers who came to the city during the summer.

He said once a week he threatened a group of protestors and transients who occupied the site of a Four Seasons Hotels Ltd. project near the entrance to Stanley Park, and "up came the barricades."

"Everyone vowed to make a stand. They were outconned. I guess I can talk about it now because they'll be packing up and going back home as soon as the fall weather begins to settle in."

For two months a small collection of tents and makeshift huts have dotted the barren 14½-acre site of a 30-storey hotel and several apartment buildings. A plebescite to buy the site for parkland failed and the occupation continued.

City officials, police and the Four Seasons company have played down the occupation, hoping the occupiers would drift away at summer's end. But the number seems to have increased, with the property providing a handy downtown campsite.

Relief Begins to Flow To Typhoon Victims

HONG KONG (UPI) — Authorities launched relief operations Wednesday for thousands of homeless victims of Typhoon Rose which blasted Hong Kong with winds of up to 155 miles per hour and wreaked death and destruction throughout the British Crown colony.

At least 123 persons were feared dead. Another 286 persons were injured and at least 6,500 lost their homes or were evacuated during the storm Monday night and Tuesday morning.

Marine police recovered four more bodies from the S.S. Fatshan, a British ferry on the Hong Kong-Macao run, which went down Monday night near the island of Lantao. Four bodies were picked up earlier and four crewmen were known to have survived the disaster, leaving 54 still missing and feared dead. They included four British officers aboard the 2,600-ton Fatshan.

Thirty-seven vessels were driven aground by the storm, including the USS Regulus, a supply ship of the U.S. 7th Fleet. Six sailors were injured but the ship, badly damaged, appeared in no danger of sinking.

The storm was the worst to hit Hong Kong in almost a decade. In 1962, Typhoon Wanda left 130 dead, more than 600 injured and more than 75,000 homeless.

Treasure Seekers Needled

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — An archaeologist succeeded Wednesday in opening an old Spanish "treasure chest" which he found jammed with sail makers' needles.

"It's not a mixed consignment — it's probably 58,582 needles," Marine archaeologist Carl Clausen half jokingly told Foy Jordan, a stockholder in the Doubloon Salvage Company which found the chest buried under eight feet of sand off the Florida coast.

The 410-pound chest, largest such box raised from the ocean depths intact, was believed to have been aboard the Spanish vessel San Fernando when it went down in a hurricane off Marathon, Fla., July 15, 1733.

Between 17 and 22 ships of the fleet, which reportedly was returning from Mexico with 15 million pesos in silver, were lost in the storm.

Jordan said further digging into the delicate box will probably turn up other sail-making materials, such as awls and thread, but Clausen said he doubted this since the box apparently was not the San Fernando's sail repair kit.

"It's got too many needles for one ship — too many needles for one whole fleet," he said.

The needles might have been unwanted merchandise returned from Mexican markets, then dominated by the French, Clausen said, or perhaps was a shipment bound to Spain from China.

Old documents indicate the fleet had 1,300 boxes of silver aboard when the storm hit, but within three months after the disaster all but 200 of them had been recovered.

Clausen used a high-speed saw to cut through the chest, which initially was believed filled with silver "cones."

FREEWAYS SAFEST

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — If you are between 15 and 24 and drive without a seat belt on an urban highway in the Seattle area between 7 and 8 p.m. on a Friday in August, your chances of being killed in a car accident would appear to be excellent.

That's the statistical profile of the average highway traffic accident report just published for the year 1969.

On the other hand, the statics would appear to indicate that if you were a male passenger in a car on a rural freeway and it was raining, your chances of being involved in a fatal crash would be much lower.

There were 390 fatal accidents on state highways that year resulting in 469 deaths, out of a total of 723 fatal accidents statewide.

Of the 166 state numbered highways, only 80 had no fatalities. In terms of sheer numbers, inter-state freeways had the largest number of deaths.

Freeways were still statistically the safests place to travel because nearly one-half of the fatal accidents happened on rural, non-freeway type roads and almost another quarter on urban non-freeways. Freeways accounted for just over 26 per cent of deaths.

Well over half the fatalities happened in dry, clear weather, and more than a third happened in the daylight. At the same time, there were more than twice the percentage of fatalities on dry roadways than on wet or icy ones.

While nearly half the drivers involved in fatal accidents had not been drinking, 29 per cent had and in nearly 25 per cent of the crashes it couldn't be determined if alcohol was involved. But the report lists drinking drivers as the leading major cause of fatal accidents, followed by vehicles turning into paths of others, excessive speed, drivers falling asleep and failure of pedestrians to yield the right of way.

There were 1,024 persons in the cars involved in fatal crashes and just over half had seat belts available to them. Only 13.8 per cent were using them.

4 For Trial On Securities Charges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four men Wednesday were committed for higher court trial on charges of conspiracy to possess stolen bonds and conspiracy to trade in securities while not registered brokers.

Bail was refused for William Lemmon, 42, of Vancouver, while bail was set at $25,000 for Michael Zaduk, 42, of Guelph, Ont., $3,500 for Irwin Schubert, 37, of Richmond, and $10,000 for Frank Costello, 55, Hamilton, Ont.

Costello was also on $40,000 bail awaiting trial on a drug trafficking charge.

A defence motion to bar publication of preliminary hearing testimony was granted by provincial Judge Arthur Beirnes.

Alaska Pipelines 'Certain'

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Judd Buchanan, Liberal member of Parliament for London West and parliamentary secretary to the minister of Indian affairs and northern development, said Wednesday an oil pipeline from the north slope of Alaska through Alaska and a natural gas pipeline from the same area down the Mackenzie Valley in the Northwest Territories are virtual certainties.

He spoke to reporters here about his recent 17-day trip through the Russian North with Jean Chretien, minister of Indian affairs and northern development, and technical personnel.

He said he was told by an Alaskan official that moving oil across about four or five rivers in the North Slope area to the top of the Mackenzie Valley would be "damn costly."

He said Alaska was determined to have the pipeline go through Alaska, and the oil transported by U.S.-regulated ships, through international and U.S. territorial waters for delivery to a new refinery near Bellingham, Wash.

"You (Canada) can have the gas pipeline," Buchanan said he was told. The gas line, he said, was the simpler of the two lines.

Buchanan said a start on the gas pipeline probably is about two years away. He did not say whether any agreements had been reached, but indicated Canada was sitting back waiting to see the outcome of the U.S. political infighting which has surrounded the proposed pipelines.

The Alaskan official, he said, presented a strong argument against claims of possible ecological disaster resulting from oil spills in the Pacific. He said the official compared U.S.-owned and regulated ships favorably with others which have been involved in major spills.

He said he was told: "We can do it all. The oil pipeline and transportation on American soil, international waters and territorial waters if necessary."

Canada was on "pretty shaky ground" if it opposed the Alaskan pipeline plan too strongly, this U.S. informant said.

'Withhold Resources'

HALIFAX (CP) — The Canadian Voice of Women suggested today that Canada with its natural resources has "a powerful negotiating tool" in ts bid for exemption from new U.S. import duties.

In telegrams to External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and the Canadian delegation which flies to Washington today, the VOW says the true cause of the U.S. economic crisis "is monumental military spending, particularly in Indochina."

The group "urges the Canadian government delegation to Washington to withhold such essential materials as oil, nickel, power now supplying the American war machine."

Doukhobors Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two Sons of Freedom Doukhobor women were sentenced Wednesday to a total of nine years in penitentiary for burning the home of Freedomite leader Stefan Sorokin July 25.

Polly Chernoff, 52, of Krestova, B.C., was given six years and Vera Poznikoff, 44 also of Krestova, was given three years.

Judge William Evans said in passing sentence that the two belong to a minority group "determined to right any fancied wrong by taking the law into their own hands regardless of the consequences."

"The law allows for peaceful protest, but to try and protest by way of pressure and violence against innocent people . . . cannot and will not be tolerated."

In a joint statement read to the court, the women said they had burned the Sorokin home after peaceful demonstrations failed to win community support for three doukhobor women convicted of burning the home of orthodox Doukhobor leader John Verigin last year.

"We feel our own people forced us to protest in this manner," Mrs. Chernoff said.

Government policies and programmes can create a climate for growth. But Governments can't legislate public confidence. Nor can they control the private initiative and enterprise which will finally determine how far and how fast Canada grows. That's up to individual Canadians.

People. A guaranteed investment.

The history of Canada was written by generations of tough, self-reliant people who came here with the same determination to build something worthwhile.
Think of the incredible difficulties that faced the immigrants who first settled here. Read about the Canadians who literally forged this country together a hundred years ago, in mile after impossible mile of railroad track. And remember the challenge of Expo 67. How many people even dreamed that Canadians could put on the greatest show the world has ever seen?
People like that are still the most important resource we have. Unemployment is a waste of that resource — a waste that affects every one of us, at every income level.
If we can find enough confidence in ourselves to grow the jobs we need, we'll all be better off for it. As a nation, we'll be producing more and selling more.
As individuals, we'll be earning more and buying more.
Something else. When we give people a chance to build — a chance to fulfill themselves — we also give them pride and a sense of achievement.
And those are gifts too valuable to be measured in dollars and cents.

What are our chances?

Most economists agree that Canada is beginning a new period of growth.
In the past year, we've contained inflation more successfully than any other country with a free economy.
Things are moving.
Companies are expanding. Opportunities are opening up.
But we can still do much better. How much better depends on all of us; on how much we want to succeed.
We have the people. We have the skills. Now we'll find out if we also have what it takes to make use of them.

What Canada Manpower Centres can do.

Canada Manpower is the operating arm of the Department of Manpower and Immigration, responsible for the development and utilization of our human resources.
In other words, their business is matching people with job opportunities. Last year, for example, they helped more than 700,000 Canadians find work.
There are 390 Canada Manpower Centres across the country, all linked by Telex so that they work together as one cohesive force.
They can arrange the training and retraining of workers and help them relocate in opportunity areas. They also have access to the researchers, the economists and the statisticians needed by business and industry to take full advantage of existing opportunities and to create new ones.
Canada Manpower Centres are there to help every way they can.

What Canadian businessmen can do.

Our economy depends on the enterprise and energy of the private sector to create new wealth and employment.
There has rarely been a better time (or a more urgent need) to translate that fact into meaningful action.
Now — at the beginning of an economic up-turn.
Now — when thousands of skilled people are ready and anxious to go to work.
Now — when there are Government programmes available to help with all kinds of business expansion plans.
Canada's economic future is very much in your hands. The real stimulus for growth must come from your initiative and your confidence in the future of this country.

What Canadian workers can do.

If you think Canada Manpower Centres are just for unemployed people, you're wrong.
A Canada Manpower Centre is also the place to go if you're underemployed. If you're interested in learning a new trade or up-grading your present skills — the counsellors there can tell you all about Government sponsored retraining programmes. (In these days of constant technological change, they can make all the difference in the world to your future).
And if you want to find out about employment opportunities in other parts of the country — Canada Manpower is the place to get answers.
If you fit any of these categories, and haven't already registered with a Canada Manpower Centre, then do so now.

What the Canadian people can do.

Start by examining your own attitudes in the bright light of Canada's current economic prospects.
Right now, personal savings are at a ten-year high. Which simply means that people have been careful about spending — as people always are when times are difficult.
There's much less reason for that caution today. What's needed now is the kind of confidence that will persuade people to make those expenditures they've been postponing. Because when people start spending, manufacturers will be encouraged to expand into new markets and new product areas.
That's what keeps the economy moving. And that's what grows jobs.

Have we got what it takes to grow the jobs we need?

Freehold Suspended

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Vancouver Stock Exchange suspended trading of shares of Freehold Gas and Oil Ltd. Wednesday pending a statement from the company about the progress of oil drilling in East Kettleman Hills, Calif.

Since July 27 about three million of the shares have changed hands with Freehold regularly topping the most active trading list in the oils section.

Wednesday's last trade in the common stock was at $1.10, up .35 from Tuesday's close, and Freehold A warrants added 29 cents to reach 68. The suspension is still in effect.

Exchange president J. A. Van Luven said last week the exchange was examining the stock's trading pattern, which has ranged from a low of 46 shares.

Trading in the company's shares has led to the suspension of trading privileges for Malone, Lynch Securities Ltd., a member of the Toronto Stock Exchange, and West Coast Securities Ltd. of the Vancouver exchange. Both broker's problems stemmed from delayed clearing of transactions in Freehold.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

Corporate

Marked improvement in financial results is shown for the six months ended June 30 by Corporate Properties Ltd., of Toronto, formerly Sussman Properties.

Through commissions, fees, interest earned and other revenue, the company had income of $585,973 compared with $378,337 a year earlier, with profit after taxes netting $79,485 (7.9 cents a share) vs. $518 (00) in 1970.

Compared with a year ago, when working capital fell $8,679, the net increase in the first half this year was $2.12 million.

Digital

Higher sales and lower net income are reported for the year ended July 3 by Digital Equipment of Canada Ltd.

Sales were $146.84 million vs. $135.4 million, producing net income of $10.6 million against $14.4 million after taxes. This equals $1.06 a share vs. $1.51, with more shares outstanding this year.

Bethlehem

Bethlehem Copper Corp. Ltd. has made a major ore discovery on its Highland Valley property.

President Patrick M. Reynolds said "it is too early to estimate inferred tonnage but indications are that the deposit will be of substantial proportion."

The find is about two miles southeast of the company's mine-mill which in the three months prior to May 31 was operating at an average rate of 15,709 tons daily.

One of two preliminary test holes stopped at 1,517 feet in "ore grading at 0.72 per cent copper and 0.04 per cent lybdenum," Bethlehem said.

Dominion

First quarter sales nearly doubled from $171.3 million to $229.39 million and net earnings fell from $2.23 million to $1.93 million or 27 cents to 23 cents a share, reports Dominion Stores Ltd.

Working capital during the period went down slightly from the beginning of the year, but was $10 million more than a year ago at $26.76 million.

Trans-Prairie

Trans-Prairie Pipelines Ltd. had net profit of $1.63 million (92.8 cents a share) in the first half of 1971, compared with $1.6 million (90.8 cents) in the first six months of 1970.

President D. R. Brandt said the majority of the increase in profit was from improved gas sales by Columbia Natural Gas Ltd.

Trans-Prairie's gross revenue from operations in the first half of 1971 amounted to $5.95 million compared with $3.7 million for the period last year.

N. Canadian

Net income of $982,000 or 16½ cents a share for the first half of 1971 is reported by North Canadian Oils Ltd. In last year's first six months, the Calgary-based company had net income of $911,000 or 15 cents a share.

An interim report said an 18 per cent increase in natural gas sales produced record half-year revenue of $2.6 million. In 1970, revenue through June 30 was $2.35 million.

Central-Del

Central-Del Rio Oils Ltd. reports net income of $7.7 million (26 cents a share) for the first half of 1971 compared with $6.7 million (22 cents) in the period last year.

Gross revenue totalled $20.1 million against $18.3 million in the first half of 1970. Cash generated from operations amounted to $15.8 million, compared with $14.1 million.

Net income in the second quarter was $2.9 million (10 cents a share) against $2.5 million (nine cents).

Chinook

Stockholders of Chinook Shopping Centre Ltd. are offered $3 a share by Oxlea Investments Ltd. for all the outstanding shares of Chinook not held by Oxlea.

The latter company now holds 98.4 per cent of Chinook, in which the public market is extremely thin.

Nu-West

Nu-West Development Corp. Ltd. earned $431,990 (26 cents a share) during the six months ended June 30, an increase from $332,494 (20 cents) from the first half last year.

The income was on a gross revenue of $16.5 million up from $13.64 million.

Nu-West is basically a house building firm, with interests in landscaping and computer services.

Ranger

Ranger Oil (Canada Ltd.) earned $405,000 (11 cents a share) during the first half of 1971, compared with $165,000 (six cents) a year earlier.

Cash flow also rose to $677,000 from $374,000.

The company said it plans to begin drilling in the North Sea, where it owns 40 per cent of a 192,000-acre block, as soon as a rig is available.

Increased Tempo Forecast In Gas, Oil Exploration

CALGARY (CP) — The search for crude oil and natural gas will move at a quickened tempo during the remainder of the year and into 1972, predicts the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada.

Exploratory drilling declined sharply during the second quarter due to a long spring breakup, tight money, a flow of exploration funds to new areas and a lack of new finds in established production areas.

The association, in its mid-year review, said discoveries by Imperial Oil Ltd. in the Mackenzie River delta and Panarctic Oils Ltd. in the northern islands should couple with encouraging east-coast showings to speed exploration.

In the established fields, the lack of interest by larger companies would leave room for small independent firms to look after in-field drilling and the search for smaller pools.

Possible added protection for Canadian oil against imports in eastern markets and signs of relaxed quotas to the United States give a good outlook for future sales.

The demand for natural gas was being held in check only by the shortage of supply.

Sulphur, a byproduct of processing sour natural gas, had little chance of increased markets in the near future but moves by the Alberta government to practice inventory control could help prices.

Loss Report 'Nonsense'

SASKATOON (CP) — Reports that the Saskatchewan government may lose $20 million through cancellation of the Dore Lake pulp mill are "sheer nonsense," Liberal opposition leader D. G. Steuart said here.

Steuart was commenting on an article in The Financial Post which said the New Democratic Party government would have to pay that much to withdraw from the mill agreement signed by Parsons and Whittemore of New York and the former Liberal government.

Odlum Buys Toronto Seat

TORONTO (CP) — A Vancouver-based brokerage firm, Odlum Brown and T. B. Read Ltd., has purchased a seat on the Toronto Stock Exchange from the estate of Ewart Angus for $80,000.

The firm now must receive membership approval from the exchange's board of governors and existing members before it may begin trading.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA — Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollar was quoted by Royal Bank at 1.00 for cheques, 99⅞ for cash, 98⅜ for silver. Selling rates were 1.01½ for cheques and 1.01⅝ for cash.

BILL WALKER

The wire story from Boston said that Joe Kapp had left the training camp of the New England Patriots of the National Football League. Something to do with a contract hassle. Joe wouldn't sign a deal that calls for him to be paid $135,000 just for playing football. The Patriots could await his pleasure.

That was a couple of weeks back. Last Friday, the door to the new Wall and Redekop Motel in Vancouver was wide open, and standing in the entrance was the same Joe Kapp.

"I'm fit," he said, but declined to discuss the dispute — with anyone. "I understand that the Players' Association has backed me," is all he would volunteer.

A radio man attempted to press him further.

"Why don't you have a drink and enjoy yourself," said Joe. "I don't have anything to say. The next word has to come from the east."

Joe Kapp was being a perfect host for a new bar and restaurant in the motor hotel — the Joe Kapp Peanut Lounge and Time Out being the special sections under his supervision between football seasons.

But this wasn't the off-season. It was the in-season, and Joe was as nattily attired as need be as he greeted his guests with a wide grin, and a pleasant "Hello." Most probably knew it was his place, but they didn't know he had come all the way from Boston just for the party.

But even if Joe had planned it this way — as a surprise, it was only another chapter in his already unpredictable life as a football quarterback.

He had first come to Canada as a Rose Bowl hero. He had left California for Calgary Stampeders when he didn't even know where Calgary was. "It was a challenge," he once said.

At Calgary he got crocked and came down with a bad knee.

That led to his trade to the B.C. Lions, in a five-for-one deal. When that arrangement was announced, Herb Capozzi, then manager of the Lions, was considered a basket case. He had been taken, and had nothing to show for five fairly good football players, but a one-legged Mexican-American quarterback, named Joe Kapp. And how could Kapp ever be a Moses?

Besides, the Lions had been dead last in 1961. Now they would be worse. That was the thinking.

Well, time moved on, and Kapp got a new knee. The Lions started to win. And finally, in 1963, they won the west. That was the indicator. And the next year, sure enough, they got into the Grey Cup final once more.

What's more, they won it all.

Maybe it wasn't all Kapp, but Joe had a lot to do with it. He lashed that Lion club.

Then Kapp decided to pack up, and skip town. A crisis! If he didn't exactly jump his contract, he still managed to sign for Minnesota in the NFL. To hell with controversy. Kapp was doing his thing. In his way.

The same tale of success unfolds again.

The Vikings, who were 3-8-3 the first year he arrived, managed an 8-6 mark the next season. Then suddenly they were top dog, and had a 12-2 record. The Super Bowl beckoned.

Maybe it wasn't Kapp who did it all, but he at least proved that he was a winner.

Then he jumped the Vikings. As a free agent, he could make his own deal. He did. With the Patriots. But if it was late in the season when he finally got to play in Boston, it was even later in Minnesota. Without Kapp, they chucked it.

That's his selling point. That and the obvious fact that he wants to get all the traffic will bear.

Now he's on the loose again. If only temporarily, in a place he knows well — Vancouver. He's got varied interests there, including valuable real-estate holdings, it is said, and now this bar and grill. The latter is being run by his uncle, Juan Valencia.

Joe didn't appear worried about the possibility of a non-football career in Boston, or the $135,000 he won't get unless the Patriots can come to terms with his lawyer.

"If they want me, they know where to get me," he said, patting a flat belly. "I'm ready to play."

"Meanwhile, enjoy yourself."

For Joe Kapp, football could wait.

Attack Disappoints Keys As Defence Freezes Esks

VANCOUVER (CP)—Head coach Eagle Keys of British Columbia Lions wasn't elated after his club's 11-1 Western Football Conference victory Wednesday over Edmonton Eskimos but said "from the eyes of the coach, it was a good win and we needed it."

The Lions were never behind and sent a crowd of 32,454 home happy after moving into sole possession of second place in the west with a record of two wins and two losses.

Edmonton was left in the cellar with Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Saskatchewan Roughriders, all with one win and four losses.

Calgary Stampeders lead the WFC with four straight wins. The first meeting of the season between the Lions and Stampeders will be next Tuesday in Calgary.

DID AS EXPECTED

Keys said the Eskimos "did what we thought they would. They didn't fool us at all."

"We need more confidence to play that type of defensive ball club. Our offence didn't bust out at all."

The Lions scored only one touchdown, with quarterback Paul Brothers throwing a 25-yard scoring pass to Lefty Henrickson on the first play of the second quarter. Their other points came from kicker Ken Phillips, who converted the touchdown and kicked a field goal and a single.

Place kicker Dave Cutler scored Edmonton's point on a field goal attempt that went wide in the second quarter. Mike Wilson conceded the point.

B.C.'s net yardage passing was 107 while Edmonton's was 115. The Lions rushed for 155 yards and the Eskimos for 138. Final statistics showed B.C. with total offence of 262 yards and Edmonton with 253.

WELSH ANGUISH ALL IN A DAY'S WORK

Consolation from clubmates on touring rugby club from Brynammah, Wales, apparently wasn't doing much to relieve pain as Mel Leech expressed anguish after being injured during exhibition match against Balmy Beach in Toronto. It was all in a day's work for Welsh visitors, who outclassed rivals and coasted to 37-6 triumph. —(CP Wirephoto)

Don at Head of Class After Topping Gibson

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two years ago Don Gullett was in high school. Now he's at the head of the class in the major leagues, giving pitching lessons to fellows like Bob Gibson.

"It's some satisfaction beating Gibson," said Gullett, the Cincinnati Reds' 20-year-old pitcher who outdueled the St. Louis Cardinals' ace 5-0 Wednesday night.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh Pirates trimmed Houston Astros 3-2, Chicago Cubs walloped Atlanta Braves 7-2, New York Mets turned back Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 10 innings, Montreal Expos whipped San Diego Padres 4-3 and San Francisco Giants hammered Philadelphia Phillies 7-0.

Gullett's marks continue to be all the more impressive, since he wasn't even in professional baseball in 1969 and was used sparingly in relief in 1970.

The hard-throwing southpaw, 14-4, impressed Gibson Wednesday night.

"The kid pitched a fine game . . . he's a real good young pitcher," said Gibson, who authored a no-hitter last Saturday against the Pirates and has won two Cy Young awards as the National League's No. 1 pitcher.

Gullett's record has overtones of a possible 20-game victory season. But the youngster isn't thinking about it, he says.

"I never expected to come this far in the first place," he said. "I'm just going to take those victories one at a time."

MAY HITS HOMER

Milt May, who hit a home run to give Pittsburgh a temporary 2-0 lead in the fourth inning, delivered a tie-breaking single with the bases loaded in the last of the ninth.

Johnny Callison smashed a grand-slam home run in the eighth inning to key a five-run explosion for Chicago and keep the Cubs within 5½ games of the front-running Pirates in the National League East.

Ten-Point Spree Gives Title to Shuttleworth

By STEWART LANG

Wayne Shuttleworth, though visibly tired and wearing a leg bandage in the third period, came up with a spectacular performance Wednesday night to grab the Western Lacrosse Association scoring championship.

The husky Coquitlam Adanac star, who entered the final league game eight points behind Wayne Goss of New Westminster Salmonbellies, charged to the title by collecting 10 points while helping the mainlanders to a 15-10 victory over Victoria Shamrocks in Memorial Arena.

And not one of the nine assists or the lone goal was unearned as Shuttleworth edged out Goss, 143-141.

Shuttleworth was utilized as a playmaker by coach Bobby Marsh and removed from the floor whenever Adanacs lost possession of the ball. But when Adanacs were on the attack, Shuttleworth was certain to collect the ball from eager-to-help clubmates.

FINE NETMINDING

Only some fine goaltending by Victoria's Doug Thompson and a little carelessness prevented Shuttleworth from packing off the title in the first period.

He came out of the first 20 minutes with only three assists as Thompson made five assist-preventing saves, two clubmates were ruled in the crease and one of his own shots hit the pipe.

Shuttleworth set up both Adanac goals in the second period and picked up the pace in the third, trying Goss at 4:45 when a long shot of his own eluded Thompson.

TITLE CLINCHER

And the title was his at 10:02 when a pass to Mike Gates produced another goal.

Bill Bradley led Coquitlam goal-getters with four while Schumacher blasted in three. Kerry Gallagher and John Allen each scored twice while other singles came from Dick Crompton, Gates, and Doug Wallsmith.

Victoria was led by the three-goal production of Nirmal Dillon while other goals were added by Don McNeill (2), Frank Alexander, Ken Alexander, Ranjit Dillon, Dennis Somner and Mike Beaulac.

The Irish, who enter a best-of-five semi-final playoff against Coquitlam on Saturday, came from behind twice in the first period and once early in the second to tie the score but were never out in front despite a fairly good game.

One unusual feature of Wednesday's clash was the awarding of two penalty shots — one to each club. Allen failed to cash in his free chance near the end of the first period and McNeill bobbled Victoria's chance early in the third frame.

Shamrocks, beaten 19-13 in faceoffs, visit Coquitlam to open the semi-final series and return to Memorial Arena at 8 p.m. Sunday for the second tussle.

Emerson Escapes Towel-Bar Jolt

FORT WORTH (Reuter) Australian tennis professional Roy Emerson had a close brush with death Wednesday while in a bathtub in his hotel room here.

Emerson, who is taking part in the Colonial National tennis championships here, said that while in the bathtub he came in contact with a metal towel bar that was touching a 115-volt power line. As he collapsed, Emerson said, his weight pulled the towel bar from the wall, ending the brief but severe shock.

Doctors who examined the 34-year-old Australian said that had he not pulled down the towel bar he might have been electrocuted.

Because of the incident, Emerson's match with Ron Holmberg of West Point, N.Y., was postponed until today.

Two Victoria Players Chalk Up Tennis Wins

VANCOUVER — Victoria's Brenda Cameron and Glen Bradshaw chalked up victories here Wednesday in the Canadian closed junior tennis championships at the Jericho Tennis Club.

Miss Cameron defeated Lisa Eng of Vancouver, 6-0 and 6-1, in the girl's 14-and-under singles. Bradshaw took 6-1 and 6-2 decisions from Rod Young of Montreal in the boy's 16-and-under singles, and defeated Paul Clarke of Vancouver, 6-0 and 6-0, in the 14-and-under singles.

Victoria's John Morrison fell 6-0 and 6-1 to Scott Cathcart of Toronto in the second round of the boy's 14-and-under singles. Morrison was also defeated, 6-0 and 6-1, by Gerald Macken of Vancouver in the second round of the boy's 16-and-under singles.

In addition to competing for junior closed titles, more than 480 players are vying for a spot in the Canadian junior open championships to be held at Jericho starting next Monday.

The open tournament is limited to 32 Canadians, selected on the basis of their showing in the closed competition, and 32 foreigners.

BOXERS SWING BIGGEST PUNCH . . . . . IN DRIVE FOR TRAVEL FUNDS

Optimists Triumph in Financial Battle

Saanich Evening Optimists, open a bid for the world series 15-year-old Babe Ruth baseball championship Sunday in Albuquerque, New Mexico, had already chalked up one victory this morning as the squad caught a plane out of Victoria.

They had achieved a financial triumph when all the money they needed to meet travel expenses has been supplied by various organizations and individuals in Victoria following a hasty "grassroots" campaign by Wilf Sadler.

Sadler, a veteran Victoria sportsman and member of the international board of Babe Ruth directors, who wheeled a shopping cart around town Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday to bolster the fund, announced today that a total of $2,802.70 had been collected.

Donations, along with the approximately $2,000 from Babe Ruth headquarters, surpass the $3,700 goal.

Biggest kick to the drive was $500 from the London Boxing Club, which had given $150 to the club before its trip to Anchorage, Alaska, where they captured the Pacific Northwest title last weekend.

Evening Optimists, the baseball club's sponsor, boosted the fund by $300 while the Victoria Sports Cuncil and provincial government each contributed $200.

Saanich municipality, Saanich Kiwanis, radio station C-FAX, Unit 12 of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans and the Victoria Baseball Association each came up with $100.

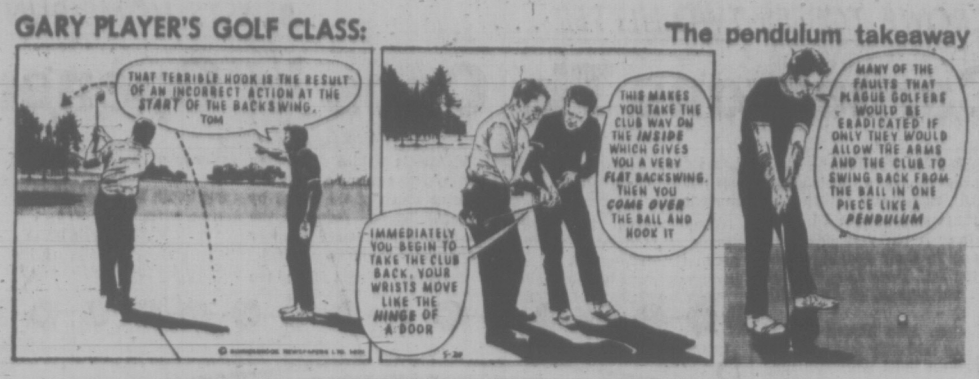
Dockyard Employees Association fired in $78 and the Babe Ruth Evening Optimist Auxiliary contributed $74.50. Kilshaw Auctioneers, Frank Kilshaw, Suburban Motors, Evenin Opti-Mrs., McDonald Bakery and Lake Hill Little League each chipped in $50 while $25 additions were made by Sooke Towing Co. and McCall Bros. Funeral Home.

Carrigan Lake Hill Drugs donated $20 and a bottle drive organized by Mrs. Mary Dool netted another $20 for the fund.

The heaviest contribution must have been the $6 worth of pennies saved up by Dave Worth.

Optimists, who are unbeten in 12 playoff games, begin competition in the nine-team, double-loss elimination tournament agaist the southeast United States representative from Sarasota, Fla., on Sunday.

Other squads in the tourney are four-time series winner New Orleans, a host squad from Albuquerque, Puerto Rico, St. Paul, Minn., Hamilton Township, N.J., Lomoc, Calif. and Mount Health, Ohio.



Hangover Follows Night 'Football Lost Its Head'

LONDON (AP) — England's soccer world woke up with a hangover today from a night of violence which saw three players sent off, 38 booked by referees and 34 fans arrested by police.

Tottenham Hotspur could have its stadium closed for hooliganism that almost put a goalkeeper out of the game. Top star Georgie Best of Manchester United now faces a three-month ban from playing because of a tussle with a referee.

"It was the night football losts its head," said The Daily Express.

OSGOOD FOR SALE

Best, idol of millions of British fans, sat down on the grass in disbelief when he was ordered off in his club's game against Chelsea of London. Opponent Peter Osgood, an England 1970 World Cup striker, also was told to go—by his manager who put him up for sale.

"The game is going crazy," said manager Joe Harvey of Newcastle United whose team was in the thick of a missile-firing assault by the crowd at Spurs ground.

Newcastle came under fire in the first half from catapults loaded with slugs of metal. Goalkeeper Iam McFaul was downed. "I thought I had been shot," he said.

The game was stopped, and referee Ray Johnson appealed for order over loudspeakers. He said afterward he will report the match—which ended in a scoreless tie—to the Football Association which can order Spurs' ground shut.

More than 1,000 fans spilled on the pitch and fought at the start of Leicester City's home match against Nottingham Forest, which Leicester won 2-1. Ten people were arrested.

Twenty-four were arrested in spectator battles at Exeter, where the home team lost 3-0 to Bristol.

ARGUES WITH REF

At Chelsea's ground—where Manchester won 3-2—Best was given his marching orders after arguing with the referee. The star already is under a six-week suspended ban for similar offences.

After the defeat, Chelsea manager Dave Sexton, said Osgood was up for transfer because "I am not satisfied with his performances."

The other players booked were all in trouble for rough tackling.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

Thanks to arrangements made by Rex Field the originator and manufacturer of the Buzz Bomb, I spent a fascinating evening fishing the Comox Bar with up-Island salmon fishing guide Bob Gardner from Royston. Bob has guided and commercially fished the upper east coast of the Island for the past 15 years. He uses a buzz bomb exclusively for salmon, both chinook and coho and has had what can only be called phenomenal success.

We sampled some of that success in our two-hour trip on the Bar, boating six coho, four of which we released, and connected with many more that were only striking the lure lightly.

Similar successes I have had this summer off various kelp beds and in numerous chinook holes has convinced me that the buzz bomb is an extremely effective lure and one that deserves more attention by Vancouver Island salmon anglers.

Many anglers will remember Field for his famous Rex Field plug. He has been manufacturing salmon lures since 1944. He conceived the idea of the buzz bomb as early as 1958 and after eight years of experimentation and observation produced the first marketable buzz bomb lure in 1966. Success with this original lure was outstanding but Rex wasn't entirely satisfied. In 1967 he widened the lure to give it a greater spiralling action and also produced the first-four-inch model. Continued observation and testing finally produced the Centennial model in 1971 being wider than the originals.

Like all inventors, Rex is still not completely satisfied and additional models will probably be forthcoming with his constant drive for perfection. However, outstanding success this summer by many many saltwater anglers has proven the tremendous effectiveness of the buzz bomb.

The buzz bomb is based on many theories according to Rex, the obvious one being the "crippled fish" action. Keen observations with a critical eye, not always agreeing with current fishing theories, and the initiative to try new ideas has given Rex a thorough understanding of the habits and actions of salmon as well as the herring and needlefish they pursue. Observation of bait schools has shown him that there is a considerable mortality from many causes and that this is usually seen by the dying or injured fish spiralling down through the school. It is this action that the buzz bomb imitates for this is what salmon strike at from instinct.

Two basic fishing methods are used with the buzz bomb and these can be mastered in a few minutes by any angler.

The first consists of casting the lure and then retrieving it in a vertical zig-zag fashion through the water. To achieve this the angler should let the lure sink for a few moments when it strikes the water and then retrieve it through a series of pulls, pauses and retrieves. To get this action lift up on the rod pulling the lure through the water towards you. Quickly drop the rod tip near the water to allow the buzz bomb to flutter and spiral down on the slack line. Reel in a few feet of line and then repeat the zig-zag pattern.

The casting method is extremely successful when used near "finning" salmon or salmon schools of "rollers" or "feeders," particularly if the buzz bomb is retrieved through them close to the surface. Its two ounces of weight make it an ideal lure to cast where salmon move in close to shore.

Mooching forms the second basic method for successful angling with the buzz bomb.

Using this method for coho, Bob feels that line should be stripped from the reel until the lure is out of sight beneath the boat. To give action to the lure, the rod tip is lifted sharply and then quickly dropped to the water allowing slack line for the buzz bomb to spiral down. This action is repeated the moment the tightened line pulls the rod tip farther down. Various combinations of rod lifts and depths can be and should be experimented with until fish strike.

The best areas for mooching are usually indicated by clusters of boats. However, feeding areas along the edge of kelp beds or chinook holes where fish are known to stay can be very effectively fished by this method.

For the angler who prefers a single-action reel for the play he can get from a fish, mooching with a buzz bomb will provide outstanding thrills.

Esquimalt 'Cap Draws Big Field

Traffic-lights might well be needed Sunday as Gorge Vale Golf Club plays host to its annual Esquimalt Handicap Tournament.

More than 200 players are scheduled to compete — from Cowichan, Cedar Hill, Glen Meadows, Gregarah, Nanaimo, Port Angeles, Pitt Meadows, Penticton, Royal Colwood, Uplands, Vancouver, Victoria, and the host club.

Prizes worth approximately $1,000 are up for grabs in the 18-hole medal-play competition, which requires a shotgun start on both the morning and afternoon rounds because of the number of competitors.

Forest Hills Wins Second

MONTREAL (CP) — Forest Hills of North Vancouver, remained undefeated after two games in the Canadian Little League baseball championships by defeating Brockville, Ont., 10-7, Wednesday night.

In another game, Lethbridge, Alta., eliminated Sherbrooke, Que., from the double-knockout affair, scoring an 8-7 win.

Forest Hills blanked Lethbridge, 9-0, Tuesday.

Brockville meets Lethbridge tonight for the right to meet Forest Hills Friday in a game to decide the championship.

Whistle Traded For Microphone

TORONTO (CP) — Pat Shetler, National Hockey League linesman, has turned in his whistle for a microphone.

Shetler, who previously worked with armed forces stations in Europe, Wednesday was appointed Philadelphia Flyers' play-by-play commentator.

He won the job over 15 other applicants, all with considerably more experience.

Shetler, who lives in Allis-ton, Ont., used a self-promotion scheme to win the job. Last spring, while doing stand-by duty as a linesman, he privately taped his play-by-play commentary of the third and fourth games of the Chicago Black Hawk-Montreal Canadiens Stanley Cup final.

He asked Brian MacFarlane to listen to the tapes. The Hockey Night in Canada commentator was impressed and suggested Shetler takes his tapes to various hockey clubs and agencies. Soon after that Shetler heard of the Philadelphia job, supplied the tape, and they supplied the job.

Farmers Lead Series After Tough Struggle

Barry Harvey tagged a seventh-inning single which scored two runs Wednesday night as Farmer Construction defeated Greaves Movers, 4-3, at Royal Athletic Park to take a 1-0 lead in the best-of-five Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League semi-final.

The game was a battle to the finish as Greaves scored all their runs in the bottom of the seventh. Bob Moysey was two for three for the losers, driving in two runs. Tony Gage scored twice.

Mike McAvoy was two for three and drove in two runs for Farmers.

The teams meet for the second game in their series tonight at 6:30 at Athletic Park.

Whalley Gets Two-Hit Win

GRAY, Ind. (CP) — Ron Diak struck out 14 batters and allowed only two hits Wednesday as Whalley, B.C., the Canadian entry in the world senior Little League championships, dumped Germany, 14-3.

John Schnyder hit a two-run homer for Whalley to lead the Canadian attack.

Whalley meets either Virginia or California Thursday in the third round of the double-knockout competition. Whalley bowed, 2-0, to top-ranked California in its opening game Tuesday.

Ace, Eagle, Birdie

The 11th hole of the Cedar Hill Golf Course held some magic for four golfers Wednesday.

Bruce Rands scored his first hole-in-one as he sunk a 260-yard tee shot with his No. 3 wood, Bob Patterson collected an eagle two and Paul Moretti birdied the hole. Maury Kozak had to settle for a par four.

The foursome shaved a total of six strokes off the par-four hole.

Rands finished his 18-hole round with a par 65, Patterson with 67, Moretti with 82 and Kozak with 83.

EAGLES QUIT SOCCER LOOP

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eagles of the Western Canada Soccer League appear to have called it quits for this season.

The Eagles, unable to make road trips recently because of financial difficulties, now are without a general manager and at least three players. The players have decided to play for another team in the city and general manager Bob Leask has resigned.

CROWE TOSSES TWO-HITTER . . . . . BLASTS HOME RUN

Carnarvons Tip Caps in Opener

WEST VANCOUVER — Bob Crowe staged a spectacular show Wednesday as Victoria Carnarvons scored a 2-1 victory over North Vancouver Capilano in their opening game of the B.C. Pony League baseball tournament at Ambleside Park.

Crowe, who struck out 14 batters and only gave up two bases on balls while pitching a two-hitter, also connected for a two-run homer in the second inning.

Other teams in the six-team, double-loss elimination tourney for a provincial berth in the Canadian championship at Edmonton are Terrace, Kamloops, Vancouver Dunbar-Point Grey and South Burnaby.

Greg Smith, the losing pitcher, gave Crowe a bit of a battle by striking out 11 and issuing only one base-on-balls.

Victoria's third baseman Randy Price made the big defensive move of the game by spearing a line drive in the seventh inning with a runner on second—to end the contest.

Carnarvons next face the winner of tonight's encounter between Dunbar-Point Grey and South Burnaby on Friday.

North Vancouver 000 100 0— 1 2 0
Victoria Carnarvons 020 000 x— 2 3 0

Greg Smith and Glen Hair; Bob Crowe and Grant Peart. Home run: Victoria — Crowe.

Cables Charge Past Tillicums

Cablevision Juniors captured the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League playoff title Wednesday night at Macdonald Park as they staged a come-from-behind charge for a 8-6 triumph over Tillicum Athletic Club.

Victory gave coach Dave Tribe's Cables the best-of-three series in two straight games.

Tillicums led by five runs after 4½ innings, but Cablevision narrowed the gap to 5-4 in the bottom of the fourth and scored two more runs in the fifth for a 6-6 tie. Juniors added the winning touch in the sixth with two more runs.

INVIDIVUDAL AWARD

Four individual awards were presented Wednesday with Tillicums and Westendale - Constructionettes splitting the prizes. Ron Drayton of the league-champion Tillicums won the coaching award while Neil Bing of Tillicums took pitching honors. Westendale's Julie Hood was voted the most sportsmanlike player. Clubmate Sharon Newcombe was named the league's most-valuable player.

Four teams — Tillicums, Westendale, Independents and Moose Lodge Loyals — will begin competing in the Victoria senior "C" women's tournament Saturday at Beacon Hill Park.

A winner will be decided Sunday.

Lee's Return Anticipated

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Trevino, winner of the Canadian, United States and British Open golf championships, will play in the Greater Hartford Open on Labor Day weekend, the tournament's co-chairman said Wednesday.

Trevino, professional golf's leading money winner this year, had been in hospital for an appendectomy and his participation in the tourney was in question.

MANITOBA CHAMPION

WINNIPEG (CP) — Jack Gardner, 55, of Pine Ridge fired a one-over par 72 Wednesday to win the Manitoba senior golf championship with a 54-hole total of 220.

EXHIBITION TRIUMPH

Campbell River pitcher Pete Landers hurled a three-hitter and slammed a run-scoring triple last night to lead Bate Construction to a 3-1 victory over Seaboard Construction in an exhibition men's softball game at Central Park.

The game was a warm-up session for Bates. The team travels to Edmonton this weekend for a best-of-five series with the Edmonton Playboys for the Western Canada Senior "A" championship.

Landers is one of two pitchers Bates have picked up for the series. The other is Lorne Auvache of Vancouver Molsons.

Errors Help Century Take Lead

Errors and hits proved to be the deciding factor at Heywood Avenue Park Wednesday night as Century Inn trounced Langford Drywall, 12-4, to take a 2-1 series lead in the best-of-five Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League semi-final.

The Inkeepers played havoc on Langford pitchers as they slammed out a total of 15 hits. The winners scored eight runs in the second inning after 12 batters took turns at the plate. Gord Rutherford led the overall attack as he was three for four at bat, scoring two runs and driving in two.

Bob Custance also cracked three hits for the inkeepers and Barney Spaven collected two singles in the big second frame.

Langford committed seven errors, four in the second inning barrage. Ted Penston was the winning pitcher for Century.

Colwood Inn and Bell's Men's Wear meet tonight for the third game of their best-of-five semi-final at Heywood. Game time is 6:45 p.m.

INTRICACIES of hooking a rug are learned by Eddy Waddell from supervisor Mrs. Ellen Bruce at thriving Cowichan Opportunity Centre.

COWICHAN COMES THROUGH FOR CENTRE

A Year Later, Opportunities Galore

By DONNA CLEMENTS

NORTH COWICHAN — What a difference a year makes — and $140,000 in community support.

And because of it, the Cowichan Opportunity Centre is already making strieds in finding useful outlets for the mentally and physically handicapped.

At the sod-turning ceremonies just over a year ago, the Duncan and District Association for Mentally Retarded said the project, on Clements Street adjacent to the Cowichan Exhibition grounds, would proceed only when the community gave adequate support.

It wasn't long coming

"We are just thrilled with the response we have had from local service clubs, businesses and many individuals. It wasn't long coming," president Marjorie Worthy said.

The United Appeal donated $5,400.

Although community support started when North Cowichan leased the association one-third of an acre at $1 a year, Miss Worthy said the project only became a reality when Crofton Pulp and Ppaer Co. donated bunkhouses from its mill site and saved the association $121,500 in construction costs.

Fifteen units were kept to be renovated as housing for the centre while the remaining units were sold for $6,500.

Building from scratch would have cost $175,000, Miss Worthy said.

"With the donation of the buildings our construction costs to complete the renovation up to North Cowichan building codes will be $60,000."

About $20,000 has come from other sources.

In order to have facilities ready for 12 trainees to move into the building in May, $17,000 of that total was spent to complete the handicraft section of the project. About $2,300 is now being spent on footings around the building.

MISS WORTHY
. . . hope for handicapped

The next phase will be completion of a kindergarten-day care section lobby, staff room, office, covered play area and covered ramps.

Miss Worthy said the centre does not have the $10,800 required to go ahead.

She said the association is depending on continuing community support for this work and later for a machine shop, kitchen, laundry and first-aid rooms.

"We are not going ahead with any phase without having the money first," Miss Worthy said. "When each phase is completed we get one-third of the cost back from the provincial government."

Although the association's old facilities, called the Sheltered Workshop, were only for the mentally retarded, Miss Worthy said the new program has been expanded to include all people with handicaps.

"This is why we have called it the Cowichan Opportunity Centre."

She said the facilities will provide either permanent or temporary jobs for these people.

"Through these facilities and our programs, which will expand as we progress with construction, we are helping handicapped people regain skills, courage, and emotional well-being. We are allowing the handicapped person the dignity of making his contribution to society," Miss Worthy said.

The association's programs include projects such as: contracts, which include typing, collating and price-tagging greeting cards; crafts and homeskills, such as weaving, braiding, sewing, ironing and baking, and recreation.

Trainees are able to participate in bowling leagues and attend many social events after taking recreation.

"The trainees do all the janitoring for the centre, helped us with painting in the handicraft section and will care for the grounds and do the gardening once the grounds are completed."

Through the establishment of the kindergarten-day care centre, Miss Worthy said parents of a pre-school handicapped child will be able to take a break from the extra duties involved with such a child.

Legal Action Planned Against Lumber Company

NORTH COWICHAN — Legal action against G. S. Doman Ltd. lumber manufacturing plant in Chemainus is planned by a group of ratepayers.

Spokesman Romeo Chick told council Wednesday: "We can't stand the noise any longer. We have come to advise you that we are going to take legal action to have the noise stopped because that is our only solution."

Alderman urged the ratepayers to delay laying charges until the company has had a fair chance to make changes to reduce the noise, as promised recently.

Chick said the noise from the yard "is outrageous" and the company is working until one and three in the morning.

"We advised the company that you said you were going to take legal action and they said if you want to go to court you can go to court." Mayor Gerry Smith told Chick: "Legally we can't do anything. We have done all we could."

Smith said the company has called bids on the proposed alterations and expected the work to be completed in about nine weeks.

He admitted he was surprised the comany was still working in the early morning hours and that he would contact them again to see if operations would cease at 11 p.m. until the alterations are completed.

ONLY WAY

After the delegation had first appeared at council, Smith said he had asked the company, which is in a light industry zoned area, if it could confine working hours to 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

"They advised me at that time that they could only operate successfully under the union scale with 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. hours," he noted.

After three meetings with the company Smith told council two weeks ago that he felt the engineering report, containing suggestions on how to cut down on noise from the operations, would be the solution to ratepayers' complaints.

Ald. George Whittaker suggested the ratepayers' "suffer" the noise a little longer while council approaches the company to see if it could push the completion date of their renovations ahead about four weeks.

Chick said he would like to make application to have the land surrounding Doman's premises zoned back to commercial from light industry. Smith advised him to apply in writing.

Company manager Peter Small said today the company has no comment and has referred the matter to its solicitor.

$ Shock for U.S. Tourists

Local reaction of American visitors to President Nixon's currency and economic restrictions ranges from ignorance to shock.

According to one motel operator near the Causeway, some tourists checking in still are not aware of the stringent measures imposed Sunday on trade, prices, wages and U.S. dollar exchange. Some are still asking for a premium on U.S. funds.

"But they are quite shocked to learn their dollar is lower," the assistant manager said.

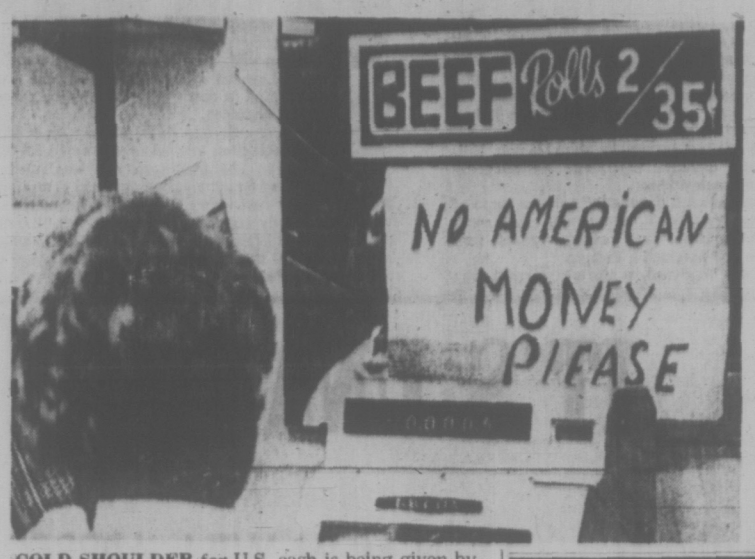
Banks report a calmness quite unlike the U.K. and European situations where there are refusals to accept U.S. currency.

"Everyone seems to be taking this quite calmly," said Bank of B.C. Douglas Street manager Gordon Howard.

The Bank of B.C. has not altered its U.S.-Canada currency exchange rates since last Friday, Howard said.

Elsewhere the exchange rate has narrowed to less than 1 point and as little as ⅛ and on the street there is common acceptance of U.S. money at par with the Canadian dollar.

A Saanich motel said some of its American visitors seemed quite concerned about the drop in U.S. exchange and are anxious to pay in U.S. funds without asking for a premium as Americans normally do.



COLD SHOULDER for U.S. cash is being given by many stores in Toronto which are refusing American money until the confusion over the U.S. currency's new value is cleared up. (CP Wirephoto)

As one bank manager expressed the situation:

"For the last 25 years there was the thought that a Paris cab driver liked nothing more than a U.S. $20 bill in his pocket. That's nonsense. He had to go to the bank to exchange it for francs eventually.

"Now there will be more exchanging or local currencies before the traveller leaves home."

But even if the U.S. dollar is allowed to float, or find its level in relation to other currencies, it remains the primary international exchange medium, he said.

SEMINAR IN VICTORIA

Park officials from many nations are attending a two-day seminar in Victoria on park development and wildlife conservation.

They are members of the 7th International Seminar on National Parks and Equivalent Reserves and have been touring national parks in the United States.

The group includes professionals from Britain, Australia, Japan, Italy, Spain, Jordan, Nigeria, Indonesia, Venezuela, J-a-m-a-i-c-a, Taiwan, Nepal, Ecuador, Argentina, U.S. and Canada.

Meetings are being held at the Provincial Museum and the University of Victoria.

B.C. parks director R. H. Ahrens and J. C. Christakos, superintendent of Jasper National Park, welcomed the delegates today.

On Friday the delegates will visit parks in the capital region and marine parks on the Gulf Islands.

AWARDS FOR CITY GIRL

A Victoria girl has been awarded two scholarships worth $150 each to study classics at the University of Victoria.

Julie Barker of 1565 Wilmot Place, a student at Oak Bay Senior Secondary, won the Classical Association of Pacific States award and a B.C. Association of Teachers of Classics scholarship.

Her average in scholarship examinations this year was 97 per cent.

Housewife Elected

OSLO, Norway (Reuter) — Olive Lanyon Farquharson, a housewife from Essex, England, was elected president of the seven-million-member Association of Country Women of the World Wednesday.

Before the Judge

Judge William Ostler lectured a young couple Wednesday on their outlook on life before imposing suspended sentences with two-year probations for several uttering and forgery offences.

Ostler told Jytte Larsen, 20, 2226 Shakespeare, that she was "a spoiled and overindulged" woman.

She had earlier pleaded guilty to three counts of uttering and two of forgery involving five cheques totalling $290, all cashed in July.

The judge said the girl's father had paid back the $290 to the stores.

Ostler said the father deserved full marks for his honesty but reminded the accused that her father would not always bail her out of trouble.

The judge told Howard J. Shannon, 21, also of 2226 Shakespeare, that he was "a drifter" and lazy.

He said criticism levelled at the older generation by the accused are probably well-founded in some cases but pointed out that his turn would come.

"Young people are going to have to take over and you are not preparing."

Shannon earlier pleaded guilty to two counts of forgery.

The offences involved cheques of $45 and $50, the same ones included in Miss Larsen's charges and reimbursed by her father.

Robert Murdock Norman, 46, of 960 Furber, was fined $300 in traffic court by Judge Edmond St. Jorre for impaired driving. He was also banned from driving for four months except to work.

Norman H. Wilson, 20, of 833 Condor, was fined $550 by St. Jorre for impaired driving and refusing to take a breathalyzer test.

He was prohibited from driving for six months except to work.

Hailstone Injury

BRIVE, France (Reuter) — A hailstone as big as a grapefruit seriously injured an 18-year-old girl when it fell on her head during a storm near here, police said Thursday. Other hailstones, some weighing almost three pounds, crashed through tile roofs of homes during the storm and destroyed tobacco and other crops near this town in south central France.

SPECTACULAR VIEW is in B.C.'s Cathedral Park near Keremeos, but not many people have seen it because the only road access is through a gate on private property and it takes $30 to open the gate.

Private Resort Firm 'Controls' B.C. Park

KEREMEOS, B.C. (CP) — A resort company, which got a 36-year jump on the provincial parks department, is maintaining tight control over an 18,000-acre public park in southern British Columbia.

Cathedral Provincial Park is a narrow finger of land jutting upwards from the Canada-United States border in the heart of the Cascade Mountains.

The 10-mile sliver of land, lying 130 miles east of Vancouver and less than an hour's drive from the southern end of B.C.'s tourist-oriented Okanagan Valley, encompasses one of the most beautiful but little-known alpine areas in the province.

The B.C. recreation and conservation department designated Cathedral a class A park and wilderness reserve two years ago.

But the only road access is through a gate on private property owned by Cathedral Lakes Resort Ltd. The company keeps its gate locked except to guests who pay $10 apiece, minimum $30 a load, for a 45-minute ride over a steep, tortuous road in a four-wheel-drive vehicle to the company's resort in the centre of the park.

ONLY ACCESS

The only other access is a public footbridge across the Ashnola River, half a mile upstream from the gate, then a day-long 4,000-foot climb to the 6,800-foot floor of the park's alpine bowl.

Both offer a spectacular panorama of jagged, snow-tipped peaks, wide alpine meadows carpeted with tiny flowers, crystal-clear lakes surrounded by stands of larch trees, wildlife, fresh mountain air, peace and quiet. The park's regular residents include marmots, ground squirrels, grouse, deer, mountain goats and one of the province's few remaining bands of California bighorn sheep.

The resort company is a partnership of four men—Herb Clark of Keremeos, who purchased the land in the Cathedrals in 1934, Tom Fleet of Penticton and brothers Helmut and Karl Gehringer of Osoyoos, B.C.

They built the road in 1964 on a 64-foot easement of Crown land between their parcels of private land, one the gate location, the other the resort, and opened it as a toll road for four-wheel drive vehicles at $5 a trip. Because some private vehicles stalled, blocking the road, and because of protests over the tolls, the foursome decided to use its own vehicle.

NO AGREEMENT

Karl Gehringer says the provincial government talked about taking over the private property when it established the park but couldn't agree on a price. Without naming the price asked, he said the company had sunk about $100,000 into its resort operation.

Among those upset about the situation are members of the Okanagan Similkameen Parks Society, an active group of more than 600, which was instrumental in getting the province to declare the Cathedral Lakes area a wilderness park.

"The principle of it upsets us very much, that we should have to go through private property to get into a public park," says society president John Woodworth, an architect living in Kelowna.

He admits society members and other wilderness enthusiasts are in something of a quandary. They want free use of the road but are concerned about what might happen if a general public outcry forces the government to open up the area to unlimited public use. Should that happen, he says "the fragile heart of the park will quickly be destroyed."

SON PUTS POLICE ON TO POP'S POT

Man Saved by Fifth Commandment

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Basing its ruling partly on the Fifth Commandment, the 3rd District Court of Appeal Wednesday halted the prosecution of a man turned in by his 12-year-old son on marijuana charges.

The court ordered evidence against Charles Raymond, 32, a state rehabilitation officer, suppressed on grounds it had been obtained in an illegal search and seizure.

Raymond was arrested last December after his son, Bill, turned over to sheriff's deputies marijuana he allegedly found in his father's bedroom dresser.

The youth had arranged with deputies to remove some of the suspicious substance from the dresser while his parents were away. He was taken home by a police sergeant, who waited outside while the boy obtained a sample.

After the sample was analysed, a search warrant was issued, more marijuana was seized and Raymond was arrested.

In an eight-page opinion by the court's acting presiding justice Leonard Friedman, the appeal court noted that the son testified in court "that he was not supposed" to enter his father's bedroom.

The search was flatly illegal and a violation of constitutional protection against unwarranted search and seizure, the court held. The search warrant was ruled invalid because it was based on information obtained in an illegal search.

"By restricting government intrusion into the privacy of the family home," Friedman wrote, "the 4th amendment (to the U.S. Constitution) conceivably incorporates some elements of the Fifth Commandment ("honor thy father and thy mother")."

Seizure Bid, Then Denial Contaminated Eggs Sold

WASHINGTON (AP) — A month after discovering a persistent poison was leaking into fish meal destined for chicken, pig and catfish feed, the U.S. government has acknowledged an unknown quantity of contaminated eggs has been eaten by consumers.

Food and Drug Administration spokesmen say the level at which the eggs were contaminated by the DDT-like chemical — although illegal — is so low there is no health hazard. Ralph Nader says it is a hazard.

"The FDA judges the current problem with eggs to be one of undesirable food adulteration not associated with any health hazard," said an FDA spokesman wednesday. Earlier, a Washington egg distributor said he had no idea 5,000 dozen eggs he received were contaminated and the ggs slipped through the agency's enforcement net a week and a half ago.

The FDA said hotels, restaurants and grocery stores already had received the eggs by the time lab tests were completed.

CHEMICAL BLAMED

Last Friday, five days after a futile seizure attempt, the FDA's spokesmen were saying they knew of no incident in which contaminated eggs had reached consumers but could offer no assurance this had not happened. Wednesday they went one step further: "Well, we just ave to assume some did," said one.

The eggs were tainted with PCBs, or polychlorinated biphenyls, a family of compounds implicated in skin disease, liver damage and birth defects in Japan in 1968, when people spent a month or more eating rice oil laced with PCBs at a level of 200 parts per million.

The legal level for PCB contamination in the United States is the same as DDT: 0.5 parts per million in eggs and five parts per million in meat and poultry.

An FDA spokesman noted the highest level of PCBs found in eggs during the last month was two parts per million. He cited this as part of the scientific evidence leading officials to the conclusion that there is no health hazard.

Nader attacked the FDA reasoning, saying officials should realize legal tolerances are set up to guard against gradual poisoning through small, persistent doses of different kinds of contaminants.

"A little bit of poison here. A little bit of poison there. It adds up to a very serious problem."

CRITICIZES ACTION

Nader called the FDA's action in he PCB episode "regulatory malpractice of the worst sort."

"If individuals did this in private life they'd be prosecuted."

So far the FDA has seized 6,900 dozen eggs and 45,600 pounds of catfish feed. The contamination has been traced to a cooling-system leak at a Wilmington, N.C., fishmeal-processing plant. The agriculture department has detained 53,000 pounds of processed eggs.

Holly Farms, one of the largest poultry producers, had to destroy 77,000 broilers last month because of PCB contamination.

Two British Quints Die

BOLTON, England (Reuter) — Two of the quints born to 24-year-old Pauline Grundy Wednesday died during the night, a hospital spokesman announced today.

Both were boys. The remaining children, two boys and girl, were progressing well, said a spokesman at the Bolton District Hospital where they were born.

The quints, whose average weight was two pounds, were born prematurely after their mother had been treated with a fertility drug.

Mrs. Grundy, wife of a 25-year-old hosiery factory supervisor, was reported to be well. The couple also have a four-year-old daughter.

Meeting Planned

CALGARY (CP) — A meeting has been scheduled for today between Stony Indian leaders and two Alberta cabinet ministers in an attempt to prevent establishment of toll gates on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Highways Minister Gordon Taylor said Wednesday he and Municipal Affairs Minister Fred Colbourne would discuss the mineral rights dispute with the band chiefs.

New Pill

WINNIPEG (CP) — A new type of daily birth control pill and a post-conception birth control agent are being tested in Canadian Laboratories, a national drug manufacturer said Wednesday.

R. L. Mackenzie, president of Orthos Pharmaceutical (Canada) Ltd. said his company hopes to have a new progesterone birth control pill on the market within a year.

The drug can be taken at any time during pregnancy and could also be used to induce labor.

Drug Fight

WINNIPEG (CP) — E. R. Rowe, Chairman of The Drug Manufacturers Association, has asked druggists for cooperation in fighting any legislation aimed at lowering drug costs through product selection.

Speaking Wednesday to the Canadian Pharmaceutical Convention, Rowe warned of a possible end to the pharmacists' profession and the danger to public health inherent in any legislation which would allow pharmacists to avoid use of brand-name drugs when filling prescriptions.

The Elliotts enjoyed Clover Point slumber.

BUT POLICE VIGIL RELAXED

Curbside Is No Pad For Camper Nappers

A Victoria bylaw forbids overnight camping on streets and in parks, but no one informed Mr. and Mrs. Rick Elliott of Bellevue, Wash. who spent Wednesday night parked on Dallas Road.

Victoria traffic inspector Richard Berry told the Times early in August that policy was to tell campers to move on if they appeared to be settling in for a curbside snooze.

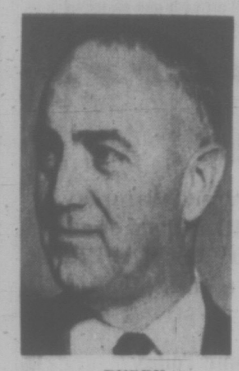
Berry said police would help overnighters find other accommodation. Today, Berry admitted some campers are permitted to stay overnight in the Beacon Hill Park area on Dallas Road.

"If they come in so late and they're bedded down and they're peaceful, we don't like to disturb them. You've got to bend a little bit. It's just a matter of common sense."



BERRY
. . . let 'em sleep

The easy approach of city police does not satisfy Marvin Beaveridge of 1035 Belmont and other citizens who have complained about the campers.

In a letter to council, Beaveridge said at least five camper trucks are parked along Dallas Road each morning. He also said persons sometimes sleep in the park in sleeping bags.

City manager Bill Hooson said Tuesday campers who are not settled in are referred to the Mayfair shopping centre for the night.

Berry said this is done because an all-night restaurant and toilet facilities are nearby. No problems are expected in September after school begins, Berry said.

Boat Escapes With Captive

United States authorities are pondering the case of an American gillnetter which escaped Canadian custody and fled to Washington State with a Canadian patrol boat engineer aboard.

W. R. Hourston of Vancouver, Pacific region fisheries director, said today he has not yet heard from the Americans about their decision and no decision has been made on Canadian charges.

The gillnetter, the My Linda, was one of five vessels seized Monday for fishing in Canadian waters south of Bonilla Point in Juan de Fuca Strait.

Gerry Plotkin, second engineer aboard the patrol vessel Atlin Post, was put aboard the My Linda and was to stay there while it and the other four boats were escorted into Sooke to face charges.

The My Linda, however, set course for Neah Bay, Wash., where it was seized by the U.S. coast guard. Plotkin was returned to Canada Tuesday.

Hourston said normally a fishing boat can be escorted back but this time there were five so crew members were put aboard each of the five.

"You can't ride herd on five vessels. The fifth turned around and ran for Neah Bay. She only had to run a short distance before she got into U.S. waters," he said.

How did Plotkin feel?

"He wasn't going to argue. We don't arm our people. He went along for the ride, he didn't have much choice."

Two of the American fishermen were fined $1,000 each and their salmon catches confiscated.

The fines and seizures were ordered in Sooke court by Judge Eugene Murphy. Charges against two other U.S. fishboat skippers will be heard in the same court next Tuesday.

Gillnetters Leslie Nelson of Seattle and Donald Stanley of Anacortes were apprehended in the strait Monday. Nelson lost 460 fish and White 292 in addition to the fines.

GOLF PROFITS HELP PAVE PARKING LOT

The municipally-owned Cedar Hill golf course is making a profit and $10,000 of it will be spent to pave the parking lot at the course and landscaping at the Gordon Head recreation centre.

"As we hoped and expected, the course is generating dollars for use there and elsewhere in the municipality without affecting the tax rate at all," said Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

The golf course is part of Cedar Hill Park, formerly known as the McRae Estate, which Saanich purchased for $1.2 million in late 1967.

Wallace Bolt Nets Second Resignation

A second Oak Bay Social Credit Association executive member resigned Wednesday in support of MLA Scott Wallace who quit the party Tuesday night.

"Scott Wallace is our man and I'll follow him wherever he goes," said executive member L. F. Dawes after joining association president Mark Preston in quitting the group.

Wallace, who left the party to sit as an independent in the legislature, was immediately invited to join both the Liberal and Conservative parties.

But he indicated he will remain as an independent for the present.

EXTRA WEIGHT

B.C. Conservative Leader John de Wolf said Wallace would carry extra weight and would get additional speaking time in the legislature as the official house leader of the Conservatives if he joined the party.

The standings in the legislature following Wallace's resignation are Social Credit, 37 seats, New Democratic Party, 12, Liberal, 5, and Independent, one.

Premier Bennett, meanwhile, declined to comment on Wallace's decision but after being pressed for a statement he recalled that another Social Credit MLA had once crossed the floor and "faded into oblivion."

He added he didn't necessarily mean that would happen again.

"DICTATORIAL"

Mel Bryan, a North Vancouver MLA, quit the party in 1958 during a bribery scandal that eventually led to the jailing of Robert Sommers, lands and forests minister.

Wallace quit the party because he was dissatisfied with the role of government backbenchers in policy formation and because of "dictatorial" tendencies in the government, he said.

Oak Bay association executive J. H. Britton said Wednesday he still supports Wallace but was still considering his position in the party. He said he felt Wallace could have accomplished more in the long run by staying in the party.

City Planning 'Chaotic'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Pollen Demands Better Response to Wishes

The city's efforts in planning today were termed "uncoordinated and chaotic" by Ald Peter Pollen.

He recommended a special meeting to tackle planning questions.

Pollen won unanimous agreement from council's A Committee after a brief argument over the form such a meeting will take.

In making his surprise presentation, Pollen said he thinks "it is about time the community planning department in the city of Victoria became much much more responsive to the wishes and desires of the city."

Pollen ran into trouble for criticizing the planning department, which Ald. Robert Baird said should be present to "refute" Pollen's comments. Community planning director Geoff Greenhalgh was not at the meeting.

Pollen said "I am not saying this for the crucifixion of anybody."

SPECIFIC ANSWERS

"What I think we should be doing is looking for specific answers which we can act upon in the next five, six or ten years."

He said he has tried and failed to get informatim on a number of planning matters essential to making good decisions.

He said "we have reached the point that our planning is so chaotic and unco-ordinated that the citizens are becoming resigned to not bejng able to do anything about it."

"With no adequate information," he said, "we are not able to exercise a wholesome choice."

CLOSE LOOK

Pollen called for a close look at questions of sewage, James Bay traffic and recreation, the oil tank farm on the west side of the Inner Harbor, the CPR property along Bellville Street, the Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., the McKay Cormack property, Black Ball ferry terminal and Wharf Street traffic plans.

Pollen said the city should squarely face the fact that there are "Secret or quasi secret plans to punch one or two roads through Beacon Hill Park."

He said he has heard no mention of plans for increasing recreational space in James Bay despite the "fantastic buildup" expected in the area.

TRIAL BALLOON

He said he wanted to know more about the "trial balloon" development plans of Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., which he said has a "negative working capital of well over $300,000."

He wanted to know what is the status of Inner Harbor leases which have been transferred from Canadian Pacific to Canadian Pacific Industries to Marathon Realty to Grouse Mountain. The decision to grant certain leases in the Inner Harbor area, he said, lies with "some faceless bureaucrat" in Ottawa.

At one point Baird interjected:

"Are you really saying our community planning department is not doing its job?"

NOT ADEQUATE

Pollen answered that "I am getting no adequate information" on planning decisions. He said he was unable to get information when he was community planning chairman last year, and added nor are citizens able to get information.

When Baird said he knew the answers to many of the questions asked, Ald. Tom Christie interrupted:

"If you have heard the answers to the sewage problem, let's hear it."

Baird replied the provincial government is studying sewage and the city is waiting for the results.

The aim of the meeting of council as a committee of the whole would be to "bring the planning of the city to a much more disciplined approach."

At another point Pollen said he wanted a "more comprehensive" and "more detailed" approach to city planning.

Pollen brought up the topic as A Committee formed itself in health and welfare committee of which Pollen is chairman.

Pollen's motion was described by him, but Christie put it before the committee. Ald. Percy Frampton and Ald. Clyde Savage joined Pollen, Baird and Christie in voting for the move.

No date was set for the meeting.

Uvic Scientists Will Dig For Clues to Lost Tribe

A team of University of Victoria archaeologists will start a dig next week at Witty's Lagoon looking for clues to solve the mystery of a lost tribe.

Don Abbott, Provincial Museum curator of archaeology, said the Metchosin site was at one time inhabited by the Ka-kyaakan people who mysteriously disappeared during the latter part of the 19th century.

The experts will excavate the remains of an old midden for artifacts which may provide them with some information about the tribe, such as the age of the village site and what it was used for by the Ka-kyaakans.

"We are not too hopeful of finding such material," Abbott said. "Most of the midden has been destroyed over the years, but something interesting may turn up."

Historical records disclose little about the tribe which once occupied all the territory from Point McGregor to the inlet of Whoyung.

Whoyung is the Indian name for Pedder Bay.

There are no records of how many villages they occupied, but the site at Witty's Lagoon may have been one of their larger ones. It included a fort which has long since disappeared.

When Fort Victoria was established by Sir James Douglas, the Ka-kyaakans were on their way out. Hudson's Bay Co. documents show the population numbered about 52 in 1850.

Douglas bought their lands for 52 blankets — not a bad bargain for the whole of Metchosin district, including the lagoon which is now a capital regional park.

Car Trunk Spillage Causes Fire

A car trunk erupted in a blaze Wednesday when a cigarette ignited spilled gas.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today damage to vehicle and contents was about $500.

Coates said owner Jan White had the cigarette in his hand when he opened the trunk of the car, parked at the rear of 1250 Acton about 10:25 p.m. White was unhurt.

The gas spill came from an outboard motor that had tipped over in the trunk, the deputy chief said.

City fireman were also called to put out a kitchen fire in an apartment suite at 2508 Douglas about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Coates said Mrs. V. C. Hanson escaped injury in the $200 fire caused when combustible materials on the gas range caught fire and fell to the floor.

Furniture and Equipment Needed for Youth Centre

A supervisor at the youth attendance centre in James Bay appealed today for furniture, personal effects and recreational equipment.

"We are in an old church school which is dilapidated, has little to offer, and there really is no budget to improve it," said Philip Perry.

The centre, at 520 Niagara, operates under the Greater Victoria family court.

The centre offers a rehabilitative program for boys 17 and under who must attend as a condition of their probation.

Perry said it is designed for youths who shouldn't go to institutions like Brannen Lake "and hopefully prevent them from going there." The program included group discussions, camping, swimming and athletics.

"It really teaches them responsibility, how to deal with others, and communication skills," he said.

Anyone wishing to donate to the centre is asked to telephone 388-6123.

Indians Now Catching Out 'Inaccurate' Works of Profs

By ANN DUNSMUIR

British Columbia's Indian languages and cultures are in "a very critical state," according to the chairman of a linguistics conference that ended here Wednesday.

Randy Bouchard, 30, who headed the sixth annual three-day conference on Salish languages, warned that 20 of the region's 30 Indian languages have "less than two generations of speakers left.

"This means that, in most cases, hardly any Indian people under the age of 30 have a thorough knowledge of their native language," Bouchard said.

The conference was held at the Provincial Museum.

Bouchard, a researcher from Victoria whose field is anthropological linguistics, has been working full-time with B.C. Indians since 1968.

Recording Myths

Bouchard is the only non-Indian receiving support from the First Citizens' Fund set up by the provincial government three years ago. The fund, allocated largely by Indians themselves, aids projects in the arts and other cultural areas.

His main project involves the development of a writing system that would enable Indian people to record their own languages and myths for the first time.

So far, working mainly in the Interior and on Vancouver Island, Bouchard has trained 10 native Indian specialists working with 11 languages.

This is the first time that more than a few Indians have attended the conference on their languages. On Wednesday morning, almost as many Indians as linguists listened to native Indians describe efforts to preserve their languages and cultures.

Thirty linguists, some from as far away as Holland and Hawaii, attended the conference.

It's traditional among Indians that older people speak first. And this tradition has followed at the conference.

The first speaker, in order of age, was Louis Miranda, 79, from the B.C. coast. Speaking first in the Squamish dialect and then in English, he addressed the audience as "You, my dear friends.

"My poor heart feels very sad that what happens today did not happen 25 to 40 years ago," Miranda said.

"At that time many of our old people still lived who knew the old traditions. It is very bad that their words were not recorded as we are doing today."

Miranda said that of the 1,200 Squamish Indians in the province "no more than I can count on my two hands" can speak the language.

Taping Old Stories

In the past three months Miranda has transcribed in longhand some 4,000 words.

Miranda is now taping the old stories of his people.

Sam Mitchell, 77, from the B.C. interior, speaking in the Lillooet dialect, said his people had asked him to record their language.

Members of his tribe came to him 15 years ago and said: "When you are gone there will be no one left who speaks our language."

"I am 77," Mitchell said: "In those days, when I was a child, there was no schooling for Indians. That is why I speak my language so well."

In the last three years Mitchell has learned to write his language and produced a 2,000-word dictionary.

The last surviving story teller in the Lillooet area, Charlie Mac, 75, spoke through an interpreter.

He said it "has been 100 years that we have struggled until now to preserve our language."

'You Lift Me Up'

He thanked linguists for showing his people "the road to preserve our language and culture.

"It is a great pleasure and honor that we have found this means to go along in our own way," Mac said.

"Thank you. You take me and lift me up. You are here for the uplift of my people," Mac said.

Mrs. Ellen White, of the Nanaimo tribe, said she had been criticized in the past by her own people for "giving away our culture."

She said her people feel that when whites translated one of the ancient stories they changed it and "destroyed it."

She has been teaching a course in Indian language and culture at Malaspina College in Nanaimo and on the reserve. Mrs. White refused to co-operate with linguists unless they first taught her to write her own language.

'Chicken Scratches'

"Now we have found an alphabet to do away with "chicken scratches" (phonetcs) and the children can learn to read and speak their language," she said.

James Charles King, 72, a chief of the Kwakiutl tribe, which can be found along the B.C. coast, is against French as a second language for Canadian school children.

"Indian, yes, French, no," he said. "We are Indians. We have been for a long time and we are going to keep our identity for an even longer time," he said.

In an interview after the conference, Bouchard described the recent interest of linguists in Northwest Indian do would be to train the older linguists in Northwest Indian languages as "almost too late.

"I felt the best thing I could do would be to train the older people who are fluent in their language," he said.

"I'm training Indians to do work that is considered the exclusive preserve of academics," he said.

Bouchard criticized academics "who get their degrees and 20,000-a-year jobs by writing up things that belong to the Indians and then give them no feedback."

Time Has Come

Few academics even have the courtesy to send a copy of their paper to the Indian who supplied the necessary information, Bouchard said.

"The point is that the time has come when results must be given and discussed, to preserve the Indian languages," Bouchard explained.

He feels that academics are afraid to have their work evaluated by knowledgable Indians.

"Now that I've taught the Indians they can read a dissertation and spot all the mistakes," Bouchard said.

"I took some of these dissertations into the field and with a few exceptions they are grossly inaccurate," he said.

While enrolment of young students in universities is levelling off, the number of mature students returning to education has increased 25 per cent.

Today's Student: On Road to Knowledge

By HELEN MELNYK

Many of today's students prefer to take their university education in small doses rather than in one shot.

"There is a growing trend for students to interrupt their studies or postpone them to take time out," said Ron Jeffels, admissions officer at the University of Victoria.

"An increasing number of students absent themselves from the formal atmosphere of the lecture hall to experience life. They try to gain experience through travelling or taking a job."

Adult enrolment at Uvic has increased by 25 per cent, while over-all enrolment has levelled off, said Dr. L. E. Devlin, director of continuing education. In the past two years, enrolment has not increased by more than 200.

"Adult education is the fastest growing segment of education in Canada," he said. "In our youth-orientated society education is one field in which adults are setting the pattern."

Can't Find Work

Jeffels said other students are unable to continue their studies because of economic considerations, often because they can't find summer employment. Sometimes students leave university after a year or so when they find that their interests and abilities would be better suited to technical school, or industrial or retail training.

The admissions officer said that those who drop out of university to experience "life" are eager to test the theoretical knowledge learned in school out in the practical world. They also wish to expand their knowledge of human beings and institutions.

Reduced airline fares provide students with greater opportunities for travel, Jeffels added. Students have also become interested in transfer courses in Quebec, Japan and Russia.

Jeffels attributed this search for experience to "the new existential philosophy."

"The old traditional approach to life was that your essence — mores, values — were given to you by the moral teachings of the church, school and all the learned cultural heritage," Jeffels said.

"A student would test the conventional wisdom against his own life experiences. Students today don't want preconceived morality — they want to live and formulate things for themselves."

Of the 1,160 students who enrolled at Uvic in 1967-68, only 418, or about 37 per cent graduated with bachelor degrees four years later in 1970-71. This figure, however, does not take into consideration students who switched to other universities to finish their studies.

One third-year student, 21, opted to stay on at his summer job when it was offered as a permanent position. He said that he plans to complete his degree, but the training and experience he will gain by working now will give him an edge in competing on the job market in future.

"A piece of paper with BA printed on it won't get you a job," he said. "If you're lucky enough to get a job offer in a field you're interested in, you've got to hang on to it.

"And after 15 years of studying, I've gone stale academically," he added. "It got so I was no longer trying to really learn, but just covering the bare minimum material for tests. I feel that a temporary absence from school will be beneficial in that it will provide a refreshing change and a new perspective.

"When the mind is involved in the academic cubicle, you often don't take the realities of life into consideration.

"I would also like to travel around the world before I've accumulated too many responsibilities. I want to see first hand what's going on in the world, rather than gaining all my knowledge by looking at words and pictures."

Another 20-year-old student decided to drop out because after three years of university she suddenly "awakened" to the fact that she really didn't know what she was doing or what she wanted to do.

"I'm one of those thousands of kids who just plunged blindly into university after graduating from high school," she said. "A university degree was dangled in front of our eyes as a golden key to the future — it was supposed to open the door to enlightenment and to unlimited job opportunities. In reality, it's done neither.

"In high school most of the kids with average or above average intelligence were encouraged, if not pushed, by their parents and teachers to continue to university," she said.

"Nobody told us about alternative post-secondary training or what job opportunities were available and what training was necessary to qualify for them. So we never gave the matter much thought. We always thought that all that was necessary was to get a degree and after that jobs would somehow materialize. Vocational schools were looked down on as the last resort for 'dummies' and 'greasers'.

"Then I began to discover that employers don't even want to hire students for the summer. I know a lot of kids who come back to university every fall because they can't get a job or they don't know what else to do.

"Sometimes going to university becomes a way of procrastinating from facing up to the reality of your existence," she said.

"Formal academic study is only part of the learning process of a person. If a student's learning experience has been only through books, his conception of reality is bound to be distorted.

"The campus radicals may be brilliant theoreticians, but they're incredibly naive and ignorant to what's really going on in the world. Getting up every morning to punch in at a job at 8 o'clock or seeing places where people don't have any toilets or running water puts a completely different perspective on Thomas More's Utopia or Hegel's political theories."

Hopes to Return

Jean Scott-Moncrieff, 23, quit university for financial reasons. After completing her second year, she got married and could no longer afford the tuition. Now she works at a secretarial job that enables her to pay the rent and other bills, but offers no "challenge." She hopes to return to university in the future.

If and when they do return to university, these three students will probably do well in their studies.

Devlin said mature students — those over 24 years of age usually do.

He said adult students are generally more seriously motivated, with clearer academic goals, and that their experience is beneficial in the understanding of the humanities and social sciences.

Education no longer top priority.

Many students leave studies for jobs.

Noise Abatement Society Fighting 'Progress'

By JOHN CONNELL

LONDON (CP) — The Noise Abatement Society was formed in August, 1959, following a letter published in a London newspaper which drew 4,000 replies from people tormented by noise. At that time there were no regulations governing the noise nuisance and the prevailing view, certainly in industry, was that noise is part of the price of progress.

Yet evidence submitted by doctors, psychiatrists and scientists proves that noise can be the root cause of many diseases. It has led to assault, murder and suicide.

French government scientists have invented a low-frequency noise machine which can disintegrate stone buildings. When the mayor of New York complained of building noise outside City Hall, an ultrasonic machine was invented which, in complete silence to all save birds, animals and sensitive people, breaks up rock foundations.

It has been stated in the British Parliament that noise costs British industry £1 billion a year in lost production.

The Noise Abatement Society's main weapon in the war against noise is publicity. The society is non-political, non-sectarian, and non-profit-making. All officers give their services free.

The aims are to eliminate all excessive and unnecessary noise; take all possible steps under existing law to protect the public from noise; to inform of the dangers of noise to health and pocket and to explain people's legal rights against those who create noise. The society presses for enforcement of present British laws against noise and for new ones where existing laws appear inadequate.

Another aim is to teach at all levels in schools, national press, radio and television that noise is ugly, wasteful, unintelligent and unnecessary and that perpetrators cause damage to themselves and others.

From the beginning the greatest obstacle in this work has been the technical difficulty of actually measuring noise.

The society has also launched a noise warden scheme and campaigned for the existing regulations on the imposition of maximum noise levels for aircraft and road vehicles.

Many Patients to Walk Again With Artificial Knee-Joint

LYON France (CP) — A team of specialists here has perfected an internal artificial knee-joint, after 25 years of practical work and two years of intensive research.

Providing hope for bed-ridden patients, the device will enable many of them to walk again.

The team that developed it is from the orthopedic surgery and traumatology clinic of the Edouard-Herriot Hospital. This clinic is one of four in the world specializing in knee surgery.

The four members of the team are two professors, a doctor and an engineer.

The team prefers not to place the device in young patients because they are not sure how long the cement used to keep the device in place will last.

Dr. Gilles Bousquet, head of the clinic and a member of the team, said they are sure the cement will hold for at least 10 years if not longer. If the device is placed in the knee of a 60-year-old patient, it will permit him to walk for at least 10 years.

If the aid was placed in a 20-year-old patient, the operation would have to be repeated 10 or 15 years later, but a third operation would be impossible.

"For two years we devoted four afternoons a week to research," said Dr. Bousquet.

The prosthesis, made from chrome, cobalt and molybdenum, takes about 50 hours to make and sells for less than $600.

DEAR ABBY...

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Our son (I'll call him Rick) is in high school. Rick and a classmate are best friends. This friend has always been extremely courteous and seemed to be a model lad in every respect. My husband and I were pleased that Rick had chosen a boy of such fine character to pal around with.

Rick's friend went away for a vacation and yesterday Rick received a letter from him. While straightening Rick's room I saw the letter lying on his desk. Without meaning to pry, and because I had a genuine interest in knowing how the friend was getting along, I read the letter and now I wish I hadn't.

Such foul language! I was shocked and revolted. I actually felt contaminated. Could this be the same young man I knew and admired? Is this the language he and our son use together? Why do young people feel they have to use dirty words to express themselves?

Although I know I am prejudiced, I don't think I will ever feel the same toward that boy again. However I don't want to alienate my son.

How do I handle this situation? — Rick's Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: What's to handle? The offensive language was not intended for your eyes. Young people (and some older ones) talk dirty because it makes them feel unrestricted and grown up.

Say nothing to your son about it. And in the future, Mother, if you want to know how any of Rick's friends are getting along, ask Rick.

DEAR ABBY: You answered an inquiry by stating, "— in spite of all the women's 'libbing it up' it's still a man's world."

I maintain that just the opposite is true, and here's proof:

When a MAN is born, everyone asks, "How is the mother?"

When a MAN marries, they ask, "How did the bride look?"

And when a MAN dies, they ask, "How much money did he leave her?" — Nut Sed.

CONFIDENTIAL TO CONNIE: The biggest problem in the world could have been solved when it was small. What are you waiting for?

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped addressed envelope.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Aug. 20, 1971
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): Public attention could accompany efforts. You learn how and where to make changes. Children could figure prominently. Exercise authority without being domineering. Comply with special request.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Stress willingness to make intelligent compromise. Study Aries message. Accent on home, security. Some basic chores need review. Tread water until certain of position. Then make move.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Relatives, neighbors depend on you as news-carrier. Means more persons are attentive, eager to hear your views. Be impartial where controversy is involved. Stand tall. Set fine example.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): Change favored where finances are concerned. Means be flexible. Protect valuables while in transit. Avoid extravagant gestures. A little restraint now goes a long way. Money news forthcoming.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Lunar cycle high; you can be at right place at right time. Profit results. Applies to personal and professional areas. Have faith in your own decisions. Follow through; be independent. Go ahead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Light thrown on problems previously obscured. You gain greater sense of direction. Study Leo message. Be available. Don't give in to self-doubt. Push off secret fears. Confinement is temporary.

LIBRA (Sept 23 - Oct. 22): Accent on friends, hopes, desires. Capricorn individual aids in solidifying efforts. Remember lessons learned in recent past; apply them. Opportunity exists to make professional advancement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Completion of assignment results in added prestige. Aim toward objective. Don't be sidetracked by one who is impatient. Emphasis on career, special abilities. Consult professional.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): New outlook improves long-range potential. Don't feel you are wedded to past. Make way for future projects. One who leans on you needs facts of life. Act accordingly. Protect your own interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Finances affecting mate, partner hold spotlight. Be co-operative. Don't insist, whine or cajole. Patience now is your ally. Time moves. Hidden aspects exist. Perceptive approach needed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): Spotlight on partnership, marriage. Protect image. Legal opinion may be necessary. Judgment, intuition could be slightly off-base. Know this; take time to be sure. Avoid hurried actions.

PISCES (Feb. 19 March 20): Some depend on you to transmit messages. Check details. Be thorough. Neighbor who appears nonchalant may be just the opposite. Look beneath surface indications. Don't risk good will.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are embarked upon new cycle of experiences. What had been restrictive, is removed. You can be gentle, persuasive, but also willing to fight when cause is right. You harmonize with Aries, Libra, Gemini and Sagittarius. Be wary of relations with Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio.

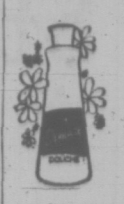
TORONTO, August 19th — "Sanitation for the Nation" is, I'm sure, a slogan familiar to most Canadians. Since 1927 G. H. Wood & Company (whose slogan this is) has been providing worthwhile sanitation products to hospitals, schools and other institutions. Now the same high quality products are available to consumers. One of these is called G. H. WOOD AIR FRESHENER . . . in lovely scents of Cedar, Pine or Lavender. They come in 3 oz. and 8 oz. blocks . . . and can be conveniently hung in closets, kitchens, bathrooms, etc. I find the beauty of G. H. Wood Air Freshener is that it works constantly . . . exuding a delightful scent. This, together with the modest cost, makes G. H. Wood Air Freshener extremely good value!



NOTHING BOOSTS YOUR CONFIDENCE more than knowing that you're clean . . . fresh-as-a-daisy . . . and feminine all over. That's why DEMURE, the mint-fresh feminine douche, should be an important part of your beauty routine. Demure is gently medicated to help destroy odour-causing bacteria. It's easy to use, too, and comes in a practical plastic bottle you can keep handy on your medicine shelf. So if you want the assurance . . . and poise . . . that comes with personal cleanliness, ask for Demure at your family drugstore now. I'm sure you'll agree that this is one of the easiest aids to loveliness.

WHETHER YOUR SUMMER PLANS INCLUDE TRAVELLING to some exotic land . . . or enjoying the comforts of home or cottage . . . be sure to keep DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY handy. Often changes in water, over-indulgence in luscious fresh fruits and vegetables — or just nervous excitement — will cause diarrhea or "Summer complaint". At the very first sign of the nausea, cramps or weakness of diarrhea, Dr. Fowler's Extract will bring quick, gentle relief — without causing constipation. Dr. Fowler's Extract is formulated from roots and herbs and has been helpful to over 6 generations of Canadian adults and children. You, too, can depend on Dr. Fowler's Extract.

Australia Exports Knowledge and Profits

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Australia has embarked on a profitable drive to sell the developing world the knowledge that helped it transform itself into a prosperous nation in less than 200 years.

Consultancy, as it is called, has already become a small but active contributor to export earnings.

Several Australian professional consultants are engaged by overseas governments for civil engineering projects, large-scale planning, urban redevelopment, transport studies and community complexes.

As in most profitable ventures, there is competition from other countries. But Australian firms are building up a strong reputation for competence.

Some evidence of this can be seen in a contract given to the Sydney-based firm of town-planners, architects and engineers, Crooks, Michell, Peacock and Stewart. It has just completed a master plan for an extensive urban and transport development in Singapore.

Preparation of the plan alone cost about $4.4 million, of which the United Nations paid 25 per cent and the Singapore government the rest.

The firm took four years to complete the plan which includes a rapid-transit rail system, motor expressways and intensive residential re-development of the island republic of two million people.

Another Sydney firm of consulting engineers, Macdonald, Wagner and Priddle, has won two contracts worth more than $500,000 in consulting fees for construction projects in Kenya and West Pakistan.

Australian consultants have already advised many of the world's developing countries, including Argentina, South Vietnam, Malaysia, the Philippines, Thailand, New Guinea, Ethiopia and Iran.

Competition for the projects, most of which are financed by the World Bank, United Nations organizations or the Asian Development Bank, is fierce, with Canada, the United States, Britain, Italy, The Netherlands, Scandinavia, Denmark, France and Japan all strong rivals.

QUEBEC FLQ CHARGES WILL STAY ON BOOKS

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec justice department denied Wednesday that charges against 32 persons arrested last fall under the War Measures Act have been dropped.

Jacques Ducros, special Crown prosecutor who handled the major cases arising out of last fall's kidnap crisis, said "not a single charge has been dropped or withdrawn."

The justice department Monday ordered a "nolle prosequi" to Crown prosecutors, or an order to suspend all action in cases involving the 32 persons until further notice.

Solicitor-General Roy Fournier, acting justice minister, said the expiry May 1 of the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act made it difficult to continue proceedings against the persons involved.

This was interpreted as being an order to drop all charges.

STAY ON BOOKS

But Stephen Cuddihy, chief Crown prosecutor for the Montreal district, said the charges remain on the books indefinitely.

"The proceedings could be ordered resumed at any time — that is not to say they will be, but they could be."

Any of the 32 accused could find himself hauled into court to face trial next week, next year, or at any time if the justice department should change its mind.

Pierre Jasmin, executive director of the Quebec Civil Liberties Union, said Wednesday this uncertainty could conceivably be used as a technique of harassment against the people involved.

CAN'T FORCE TRIAL

"I'm not saying it would go that far, but it would be possible to tell these people: 'If you do anything political or don't behave, we'll drag you back to court,' " Mr. Jasmin said.

The 32 persons have no means of trying to force a trial or having the charges removed from the records.

All the persons now affected by the department's stay of proceedings spent more than two months in prison without bail from October to December.

But because they were charged and the charges have not been withdrawn, these persons presumably will not qualify for the compensation which the Quebec government agreed to pay those detained under the War Measures Act without ever being charged.

Among those affected by the justice department statement are labor leader Michel Chartrand, lawyer Robert Lemieux and teacher Charles Gagnon.

Priority Given Population Call

OTTAWA (CP) — The urgent call of the Science Council of Canada for control of population growth will get an early hearing at the new ministry of state for science and technology.

Alastair Gillespie, named to the new policy-advisory portfolio in the federal cabinet Aug. 11, said in an interview Wednesday that one of the first tasks of his new cabinet agency will be to examine recommendations of the Science Council in population as well as other areas.

The Science Council's annual report to Prime Minister Trudeau June 30 urged that Canada immediately set up an institute for study, research and analysis of the future.

It pressed especially for attention to population growth, warning that "disaster is inevitable unless we begin at once to reduce growth of world population."

"This is a problem that all nations have got to consider," Mr. Gillespie acknowledged.

He said he does not want to comment on the possibility that the population studies might be turned over by the federal government to the Institute for Research on Public Policy, the think tank proposed by Ronald S. Ritchie in a report to the government made public earlier this month.

MIGHT GET $20 MILLION

Mr. Trudeau has announced the government will contribute toward initial costs of the independent research body, and has agreed to match dollar-for-dollar private contributions up to $10 million.

Mr. Gillespie's new ministry will differ from other government departments in that it will not be an "operating" department. It will mainly do investigative and advisory work for the cabinet.

Nevertheless, he said, he wants to open channels of communication with the public, "to receive advice and suggestions from many sources as to the appropriate policies for science and technology."

Although the 57-man science secretariat of the privy council has come under Mr. Gillespie's operational control, he now is starting on a recruiting campaign to build a "small, professional, flexible" staff for the new ministry.

RITA JOE COMPOSER IN CALIFORNIA

Fame and Fortune Arrived Too Late for Vesak

By GLENNIS ZILM

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Canadian-born choreographer Norbert Vesak decided to move to California to further his career just a couple of months before his original dance creation The Ecstacy of Rita Joe, won him international fame and critical acclaim.

"It's ironic," he said during an interview at the Banff Festival of the Arts this week. "Now I'm turning down all sorts of Canadian offers I would have enjoyed."

Although he has written a number of ballots it was his Rita Joe, based on a play by Vancouver author George Ryga and danced by the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, that fired up sold-out audiences at Ottawa's Festival Canada earlier this year. Now the production has been signed to tour in the United States and Australia.

Vesak, a dancer, designer and dance teacher as well as choreographer this summer, taught at the Banff School of Fine Arts and two of his dance creations are to be performed at the Banff festival tonight and Friday.

Teaching at the summer school gives a choreographer a chance to be experimental and creative, Vesak said. When he is working with a professional company, there is no time for experiment, for trial and error.

"The pressure is on to produce."

He said the opportunity for the staff to be creative and innovative is one thing that attracts them to the Banff school.

"I'll be coming back next year."

For the students, all of whom are performing in the festival, with the top faculty dancing only in a few guest starring solo roles, the attraction is to work with the world's top dancers. So Banff attracts top student dancers from New York, Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg.

The students themselves are an attraction to good teaching staff, Vesak said. The faculty, coming from a variety of world-famous dance companies, also provide opportunities to exchange ideas and gather information.

This year, the ballet division staff included Denmark's famous Vera Volkova, who previously taught with London's Sadler's Wells Ballet—now the Royal Ballet—Milan's La Scala and Copenhagen's Royal Danish Ballet.

Eva von Gencsy, who choreographed and will dance in a jazz ballet number at the festival tonight and Friday, is another of the teaching staff. She is a former leading ballerina with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet and Montreal's Les Grands Ballets Canadiens. She now teaches with Les Grands Ballets and the Canadian College of Dance in Montreal and the Classical Ballet School in Ottawa.

Jazz Trumpeter Eyes '72 Presidential Race

NEW YORK (AP) — Jazz trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie said Wednesday his hat is in the ring of 1972 presidential aspirants.

Gillespie, whose real name is John Birks Gillespie, has made numerous trips abroad for the U.S. state department.

In an interview taped for airing locally on Thursday's Joe Franklin Show over WOR-TV, Gillespie said he first decided to make the run a few months ago during a chat with President Nixon, who suggested the trumpeter make another trip abroad.

Gillespie said he decided to run for the presidency instead.

Gillespie did not say on what party ticket he would seek to run, but stressed he hoped to unify newly-eligible voters in the 18- to 21-year-old category.

Winged Invasion

MONTREAL (CP) — Millions of grasshoppers, testing their newly-acquired wings, swarmed over the Montreal area Wednesday.

The winged insects which appeared in the downtown area around noon, swarmed on the walls of buildings, flew into open office windows and died by the millions under the wheels of downtown traffic.

Police switchboards and city health officials were kept hopping as well, as hundreds of residents wanted to know how to get rid of the pests.

According to Macdonald College entomologist Dr. V. R. Vickery, the cause of the insect invasion was the snow storms which hit Montreal last February and March.

"The heavy snow cover provided excellent insulation for the grasshopper eggs in the soil, resulting in a greater number of eggs hatching in the spring," he said.

'AS HER WORLD TURNS'

It's Hard to Be Eileen When You're Lisa

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — The mail pours in to Lisa Hughes, offering her advice, asking for dates, telling her what people are saying behind her back, warning her to mend her villainous ways.

To a large number of the 10 million people estimated to watch the program As the World Turns every afternoon on CBS television, Lisa Hughes is a real person. She lies, she cheats, she schemes —they love to hate her.

She is equally real to actress Eileen Fulton, who throws as much fire and spunk into fighting for her own identity as she has in bringing Lisa alive for 12 years on American television's No. 1 soap opera.

REAL NAME

When CBS flew her out to Peoria, Ill., for a publicity appearance on the affiliate station, the first thing she spotted was the marquee out front. It said: "Welcome, Lisa Hughes." Eileen put her foot down and refused to do another thing until it was changed to her real name. The change was quickly made.

"There's a little bit of Lisa in me, the fire and the spunk, but don't carry that analogy too far," said Miss Fulton, a glamorous and petite ash blonde. For instance, she doesn't lie about her age—she just refuses to give it, saying, "I'm not going to tell my age until I'm a little old lady, then people can say, 'Goodness, I didn't know she was that old!'"

NOW OUTDRAWING LISA

She sorts her mail into two piles, one addressed to Lisa Hughes and the other to Eileen Fulton. She happily notes that she is outdrawing Lisa now. Some of the mail takes her to task.

Some people tell Lisa she had better be careful because when she is offscreen people are talking behind her back. One man asked Lisa for a date. Eileen declined politely and he wrote her parents to complain that she had not been brought up properly.

Eileen is establishing her own identity as a singer and nightclub performer and stage actress. She played a leading role in The Fantasticks for three years. At one time she was in As The World Turns, the matinee performances of Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? as the mousy, alcoholic wife, and the nighttime performances of The Fantasticks.

Born a Methodist minister's daughter in North Carolina, Eileen's oldest memories include her longing to be an opera singer. She said, "I loved the opera so much I'd stay home from birthday parties on Saturday afternoon to listen to the opera."

In college she majored in voice, and she says one of her toughest jobs was making the transition from classical to pop. Eileen has two record singles that take nostalgic looks at radio and the movies, and in the fall her first album of ballads and light rock will be out.

WANTS TO DO MUSICAL

"Of course, I want to do other things besides soap opera," she said. "Broadway. I particularly want to do a musical. Recording is important to me. I'd like to do some nighttime variety shows.

"But I see no reason to give up Lisa at this time. It gives me a very large audience and I want to make it work for me.

"It makes me mad to hear people knock soap operas. It makes me mad to hear other actors knock it—especially if they're working on one. If they don't believe in it, they shouldn't be doing it.

"Soap opera is hard work and the hours are long. And it takes a great deal of acting ability and professionalism from everyone to make it all click."

AFTERNOON AND EVENING CLASSES IN INTERIOR DECORATING
Joseph Egoyan
Once again the fascinating study of interior decorating will be introduced to you by theoretical and practical analysis, these lectures will be held above the store and also supplemented by on-location studies in selected homes, including a visit at the residence of Mr. Egoyan to discuss the problems arising in furniture arrangement, color schemes, lighting effects, drapery and carpet selection, and proper use of pictures and accessories.
Mr. Joseph Egoyan, B.A., Ed., your instructor is well qualified with extensive theoretical and practical knowledge. He is a graduate from the Art Institute of Chicago and the California College of Arts and Crafts; has taught at Oakland Tech High, Calif.; the American College in Cairo and the Evening Adult Education program in Victoria. In addition he has a wealth of practical experiences in retail field as proprietor of Ego Arts Gallery in Cairo for five years and Ego Interiors in Victoria for nine years. Mr. Egoyan is also a qualified artist and has exhibited his art works in a number of one man shows in the U.A.R. and U.S.A. He won the first prize in the Vancouver Island Jury Show at the Art Gallery of Victoria, also a one man art show theme "BIRDS" was displayed at the B.C. Provincial Museum, which was on display at Burnaby Art Gallery and is now at Ego Interiors.
For the past six years this course in interior decorating has been given by Mr. Egoyan on the basis of twice yearly in two separate classes weekly. At a average of 25 students in each class a total of 600 students have taken the course to date. The classes will be held afternoons from 1 to 2:30 p.m. Wednesday; and evenings on Monday or Wednesday, 7:30 to 9 p.m., starting in September at Ego Interiors. ELECTRIC HEATING more living space
Homes are for living. Take this home for example. From basement to attic every bit of space is being used for living. That's because it's heated electrically. Compact units take up little or no space. There are no ducts or pipes, no furnace room. Every inch of space is being used . . . and that's important, with today's construction costs.
Most important, every room is comfortable — just the way each individual wants it. That's not always possible with other heating systems because one thermostat must satisfy the demands of all rooms. With electric heating you can have room-by-room temperature control — a thermostat in every room. Simply dial the comfort setting needed to suit each room's activity.
More living space. More comfort. Makes a lot of sense, doesn't it? You'll find that the cost of heating electrically is sensible too.
Give us a call. Our Customer Advisory Service will be happy to discuss your new home plans. Qualified personnel will recommend equipment sizes, amount of insulation required, and give you a written estimate of annual electricity costs for heating. Customer Advisory Service is free — available at all B.C. Hydro offices.

Community Papers Join Weekly Group

VANCOUVER (CP) — Members of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association voted Wednesday to expand the organization under the name Canadian Community Newspapers Association.

Constitutional amendments passed at the association's annual meeting allow bi-weekly, multi-weekly or monthly publications which serve a local community to hold full membership in the association.

The changes were proposed by representatives of suburban newspapers, which are growing quickly in both numbers and total circulation and many of which publish more frequently than once a week.

John A. Parry, publisher of the Rimbey, Alta., Record, was elected president of the association, succeeding Charles G. Hawkins of The Western Canadian of Manitou, Man.

Elected first vice-president was Lou Miller of The Monitor, of Montreal. Andrew Y. McLean of the Huron Expositor, Seaforth, Ont., was elected second vice-president.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during the sad loss of our son. — Mr. and Mrs. Fong Young Lin.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BICHARD—In loving memory of Stan, who passed away Aug. 19, 1970.
"One year has passed since that sad day,
When one we loved was called away.
God took him home—it was His will;
Within our hearts he Liveth still."
—Always remembered by Dad and family.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

DES O'CONNOR. 7:30 p.m., Channel 8. Buddy Greco and comedy writer Jack Douglas (remember 'My Brother Was an Only CHhild' and 'Never Trust a Naked Bus Driver'?) are the guests tonight. Thank goodness, no more Charlie Callas. Connie Stevens sings Proud Mary, Des sings If I Ruled the World and Buddy offers MacArthur Park.

NBC ACTION PLAYHOUSE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. "The Sojourner." This TV version was taken from Carson McCuller's book, and features a strong cast of veteran actors, headed by Efrem Zimbalist Jr., and Vera Miles, ably supported by Herschel Bernardi and Howard Duff. Zimbalist is in the lead as a foreign correspondent in Paris who is called home to the bedside of his dying father. He arrives too late, then seeks reassignment to Rome. Before returning overseas, he visits his ex-wife (Miss Miles) and her new husband (Howard Duff), an encounter which produces some startling information regarding the past and induces some strong soul-searching by Zimbalist. Bernardi is cast as his editor.

LANCER. 8 p.m., Channel 7 (rerun). Lynn Loring guest stars as a young mother who has taken refuge on Lancer property. A bounty-hunter, played by Joe Don Baker, misleads her into thinking she's in danger of attack from Johnny (James Stacy) as he attempts to persuade her to leave with him.

IRONSIDE. 8:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Noel's Gonna Fly." This is a theme that was given a thorough workover last season. A depressed businessman tries to drop out and take up the hippie life. He's lured by a young lady into financing a recording session for her boyfriend, who really doesn't have any talent, and his bitterness at the world only expands. He goes after revenge. Ironside comes to the rescue. Richard Basehart guests.

CBS THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE. 9 p.m., Channel 7. "Kid Rodelo," starring Don Murray, Janet Leigh, Broderick Crawford and Richard Carlson. Reasonably convincing action-drama with an unusual triangle—two bands of killers, and a pack of Indians all after the same cache of stolen gold. In the middle of it all stands Kid Rodelo (Murray), hired to recover the loot, who suddenly finds himself as protector of pretty Nora (Janet Leigh), girl friend of a man killed in a duel over the gold. Carlson starred and directed the 1966 picture.

"GOOD VIBRATIONS FROM CENTRAL PARK." 9:30 p.m., Channel 4. This is a mini-Woodstock, TV version. The setting is Central Park, New York, and the rock concert features Ike and Tina Turner and their revue, the Beach Boys, Carly Simon, Kate Taylor and Boz Scaggs. Actually, the TV version contains the best of two concerts on successive nights.

ADAM 12. 9:30 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Remember child-star Margaret O'Brien? She turns up in tonight's show as an emotionally-distressed mother whose young son is suspected of involvement in a drug case. Officers Malloy and McCord also face a hostile robbery victim who reprimands them for inefficiency until they prove their mettle.

THE DEAN MARTIN SUMMER SHOW STARRING YOUR HOST VIC DAMONE. 10 p.m., Channel 5 (rerun). Just to give you an idea of how old this show is, one of the featured acts is the New Vaudeville Band who hit it big with their Vo-di-o-doh sound in 1967, and faded almost as quickly. Comedy by Clair and McMahon, and George Jessel supports host Vic Damone and his costars Carol Lawrence and Gail Martin.

YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

Many years ago, when chatting with my old friend Dr. Stanley, who was the first great student of viruses, he said to me with much conviction, "Alvarez, I'm certain that someday we will find that cancer is due to a virus."

Now as I pick up a recent issue of "Science News," I find an article about what Dr. Stanley predicted. Now Drs. Elizabeth Priori and Leon Dmochowski, in Texas, have isolated and grown the so-called C-type of virus from the tissues of a child who had a Burkitt's lymphoma, a peculiar cancer of the lymph nodes.

The reason this is such good news is that this is the first time that a virus from a cancer has been grown in a laboratory — a necessary step in the making of a vaccine to prevent the growth of cancer cells. As the author says, the only advance approximating this occurred in the 1960s when two British scientists, Drs. M. Epstein and Y. M. Barr, cultured a herpes-type of virus (the type of virus that makes skin blisters such as cold sores) from blood cells taken from persons with the Burkitt lymphoma.

Drs. Dmochowski and Priori have suddenly found themselves celebrites, receiving phone calls and congratulations from all over the world, for having done what we doctors have been awaiting, eagerly, for years.

Many men working with the tremendously powerful electron-microscope have seen bodies that looked like viruses in very thin sections of cancers, but until now nobody could grow them in the

As Dr. Priori says, the virus has a neat way of multiplying in cells—a way that is not seen in cultures of viruses that cause infections.

For years many research workers have been saying that before we get a cure for cancer, we may get a vaccine against it. Small quantities of the cultured viruses have now been passed on to nine other scientists who will all be working hard to see, first, if perhaps a vaccine can be made which will protect all people from getting cancer.

HEY!
RESTAURANT-CABARET
Forty Thousand buys the business (not the name) and you assume the sub-lease of $350 per month. The "heavy equipment" alone, two years ago, cost more than the asking price. Think before you telephone what imaginative entertainment enterprise can you develop from a 3500 sq. ft. modern fully equipped restaurant on 33,000 sq. ft. of blacktop, and located just outside the City core? Only cash offers considered.

European Money Chiefs Hammering Out Agreement

Times News Services

BRUSSELS (CP-AP) — Key cabinet ministers from the six Common Market countries, the world's biggest trade bloc, were meeting today in emergency session to hammer out an agreed stand in the face of President Nixon's moves to slow imports and raise the value of other currencies against the U.S. dollar.

The meeting was marked by an unprecedented consultation with Anthony Barber, Britain's chancellor of the exchequer.

The ministers' immediate problem: How to get foreign exchange markets going again so that international businessmen can price their goods for buying and selling, and U.S. tourists can be certain of a fair rate for their dollars. Major European currency markets have been closed since President Nixon made his announcement Sunday night, suspending the dollar's gold backing and imposing a 10-per-cent extra charge on dutiable imports.

URGE TWO-LEVEL RATE

Nixon wants other currencies to rise in value against the dollar, so that U.S. imports become more expensive, U.S. exports become cheaper and the U.S. balance of international payments moves out of the red.

France and the Common Market's executive commission are urging adoption of a two-level rate for the dollar in Europe, part fixed and part floating. West Germany wants an all-floating free exchange market, with the rate determined by supply and demand, the system in Germany since the monetary crisis last May.

Britain wants to maintain the system of fixed exchange rates but with the Japanese yen and the stronger European currencies revalued upward as a bargaining point to get Nixon to abandon the 10-per-cent import surcharge.

Japanese newspapers reported that their government was coming to the realization that it would have to raise the value of the yen despite its insistence this week that there would be no revaluation.

The French government blasted President Nixon's new economic measures as violations of international monetary and tariff agreements. The cabinet said it would maintain the gold parity for the franc that was in effect before Nixon announced that foreign dollar holdings could no longer be exchaged for gold.

The two-tier plan, which France said she would propose to her European allies at th meeting today, has been in force in Belgium since the May crisis. The plan calls for two rates between the U.S. dollar and local currency; An official rate for trade in goods and services and a free rate for movements of capital, whether intended as speculation or investment. The free rate would be determined by supply and demand, while the official rate, as in the past, would be maintained by national bank purchases and sales of dollars.

LIMIT ONE PER CENT

In the past, the permissible fluctuation has been one per cent above and below the official exchange rate. The Common Market executive commission is willing to see this distance broadened, so that currencies of its member cosntries could float two or three per cent or perhaps more in either direction. But it wants to see the currencies of the six Common Market countries—France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg — float together, with less than one per cent variation allowed. The aim is to have that margin diminish gradually so that by 1980 the member countries will have a single currency.

Businessmen were pressing for an agreement that would allow the foreign exchange markets to reopen.

Today's Brussels meeting may enable a date to be set for discussion of the issues in a forum that also includes the United States, Canada and Japan: The Group of Ten, the world's most powerful industrial nations.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson of Canada, this year's chairman of the group, said he had received calls from Britain and Japan to convene such a meeting. Preferably, it should be held outside Washington.

DISRUPTION LESS

There has been less disruption in monetary relations between Japan and the United States, through Presiden Nixon's measures were aimed at getting Japan to revalue the yen upward. The Bank of Japan was still accumulating dollars, at an estimated rate of 250 million on Wednesday. The foreign exchange market is to be open today; with the dollar rate unchanged at 360 yen.

But Prime Minister Eisaku Sato mentioned at a cabinet meeting on Wednesday the possibility of widening the margin of fluctuation, now fixed at 0.75 per cent above or below a fixed figure. Under present circumstances, a widening could only mean a movement upwards — just as European currencies are expected to move upwards.

An attack against Nixon's new levy on U.S. imports was led by the Common Market executive commission. Its spokesman, Beniamino Olivi, said it wiped out all the trade concessions granted by the United States since 1932.

Olivi reported the commission was sending its member in charge of external affairs to ask for a study in Geneva of whether the United States is violating the rules of the General Agreements on Tariffs and Trade.

France said it was, and the rules of the International Monetary Fund as well.

Revenue Higher; Fewer Tickets

Revenue from fines in Saanich was up in June and July over the same months last year despite a police "work to rule" campaign.

But tickets and demerits were handed out more frequently in May and June of last year than the same months this year. (July figures are not yet available.)

This paradox is shown in the newest figures released in the wake of settlements between Greater Victoria police unions and municipalities.

Saanich police, in common with their counterparts in Greater Victoria, used a "work to rule" technique during recent negotiations. Saanich police announced their work to rule June 18. It ended Aug. 6 when a new contract was agreed upon.

REVENUE UP

The financial picture, released today by Mayor Hugh Curtis, shows revenue from fines totalling $43,004 in the first seven months of this year compared with $37,206 in the same period last year.

Comparable figures for 1969 were $27,988 and for 1968 $49,026. Introduction of the demerit system in late 1968 accounts for the much lower 1969 figure, said Curtis.

Fine revenue in June was $4,985 compared with $4,080 in the same month last year, while revenue in July was $7,276 against $4,475 in July, 1970.

Curtis, who is also chairman of the Saanich police commission, said a slowdown might not be reflected in the fines figures until a month or two later.

NEED MORE FIGURES

"Before I can make a final statement, we have to get the August and September figures and compare them with previous years," he said.

"But it would appear that the law was manipulated to achieve a certain purpose. I find it disappointing that work-to rule would be employed by members of a law enforcement agency.

"Our estimates for fine revenue have traditionally been most conservative because we don't consider our police department to be a profit-making organization."

Ticket and demerit activity both this year and last year tends to show an increase until the third or fourth month and then a decline.

NONE IN JUNE

In 1970, traffic offence notices hit a peak of 161 in March, dropping to 81 in May and rising to 91 in June. This year they hit a high of 250 in March, then declined to 15 in May and to nothing in June.

In 1970, traffic violation reports hit a peak of 495 in April, falling to 260 in May and to 49 in June. This year, they reached 250 in March and fell to 150 in May and to 30 in June.

Other 1970 statistics for June, with 1971 figures in brackets:

Drinking drivers — 11 (3); Other provincial statutes — 4 (0); Other criminal offences — 54 (29); municipal bylaws — 24 (3).

Deputy Saanich Police Chief Bob Peterson said many factors, such as the number of crimes being committed and the number of policemen working, could influence the statistics.

$15,000 Bail

DUNCAN — Ron Blanc, 24, of Maple Bay Road, Duncan, has been released on $15,000 bail after being charged with conspiracy to traffic in hashish and conspiacy to import hashish into Canada.

Blanc elected trial by judge and jury when when he appeared before provincial court judge George Halliett.

Dollars For Babies

Specially minted silver dollar coins were presented to two Victoria mothers whose babies were born during the first 71 minutes of Tuesday, July 20 — B.C.'s 100th Confederation birthday.

Mrs. Treva Marie Cunningham, who gave birth to a boy eight minutes after midnight, and Mrs. Dianne Clara Roy, a daughter born at one a.m., received each $100 in centennial dollar coins at a tea party at the Empress Hotel.

Laurie J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, made the presentation.

Altogether there were 12 B.C. birthday babies born between the last stroke of midnight, July 19, to 1:11 a.m., July 20.

All children born during Centennial '71 are receiving special certificates, signifying they are Centennial Year babies.

Helicopter Rushes Man To Hospital

A lighthouse keeper is in satisfactory condition in hospital in Courtenay after he was flown by helicopter from Cape Scott at the north end of Vancouver Island early Wednesday.

A Pacific Rescue Centre spokesman said J. A. Tully was suffering severe chest pains.

Tully was taken to St. Joseph's General Hospital in Courtenay where officials reported his condition satisfactory.

The rescue spokesman said the helicopter was based at Port Hardy.

Bush Fires Flare in Park

Oak Bay firemen were called twice Wednesday to Uplands Park to extinguish small bush fires that flared up from the 10-acre blaze at the park Tuesday.

A spokesman said Wednesday's fires were caused by smouldering moss.

OTTAWA — Progressive Conservative trade critic George Hees urged government negotiators Wednesday to use Canadian energy and water resources as a bargaining lever in talks with the United States government on new American import duties. Hees, MP for Prince Edward-Hastings called on Finance Minister Benson and Trade Minister Pepin—the Canadian delegation going to Washington today seeking exemption from the recently-announced surcharge on all U.S. imports subject to duty—to use "every weapon in its (the government's) arsenal" during the talks.

TORONTO — Ald. Reid Scott says he is resigning from Paul Hellyer's Action Canada political movement because his main loyalty is to the New Democratic Party. Scott, chairman of the NDP's municipal caucus, was a member of the founding committee of Action Canada. Scott said he initially saw Action Canada as a non-party protest against the federal government's economic policies. Now it may run candidates in the next ededal election.

"I don't think Canada needs a sixth or seventh political party, or whatever it might be," he said.

NEW YORK — The column of conservative William Buckley Jr. has been dropped by 14 newspapers since he published "hoax" Vietnam war secrets last month in his magazine, National Review. Harry Elmlark, president of the Washington Star Syndicate, which distributes the column, On the Right, said he has received cancellations from the nine papers of the Westchester-Rockland group in the suburb of New York City, plus the Houston Chronicle, the Denver Post, the Kingsport, Tenn., Times News, the New Brunswick, N.J., Home News and the Record of Hackensack, N.J. The column is still carried in more than 350 newspapers.

PORTERVILLE, Calif. — a police chase ended abruptly Wednesday when officers kept their eyes on the suspect instead of the road and their patrol cars crashed into each other. Policemen Gerald Moore and Bert Grazelli collided head-on while trying to run down a fleet-footed burglary suspect in the downtown area. The red-raced officers escaped serious injury but the squad cars were demolished.

Concert In Park

City Streets—Catalogue on Trees

By HILDA BEASTALL

Living in a city whose streets are planted with a wide selection of trees, Victoria gardeners are in an enviable position to see them at all seasons before making a decision for their own garden plantings.

To scan the alphabetical list of Victoria streets with the tree plantings for each street is as good as a tree nursery catalogue. With a city street map and a car or a good pair of feet, a gardener can go and look at any tree in which he has an interest.

Hilda

The more refined sizes in maples and horse chestnuts are two examples of shade trees not too well known as being suitable for gardeners.

One of my favorites each year is the Flowering Ash now blossoming on Pandora east of Douglas and on Quadra south from Yates.

These are quite different from Mountain Ash, not even remotely related.

Flowering Ash is Fraxinua ornus (syn. F. europaea), growing with a dense head of attractive leaves made up of leaflets.

Flowers are borne in large clusters at the ends of the current season's growths, a pleasant change from most boulevard trees which bloom in spring.

In a garden, fragrance will be noted from these clusters of creamy white blossoms, a real feature of the trees during August. The buds in June and July are ornamental too.

Hornbeam is another street tree worthy of the gardener's attention for its handsome, parallel-veined leaves and upright pyramidal habit of the ones seen on Government Street from Fisgard to Pembroke, and on Broad Street at the corner of Pandora.

Hornbeam will be found under Carpinus betulus var. pyramidalis. Other forms are too large for ordinary gardens.

In various parts of the city will be found other trees which over the years have been recommended for garden shade and decoration. It is always hoped gardeners will notice full grown, or young sizes of the trees in which they are interested, to get an idea of how they would suit their needs.

You can see Catalpa, Vine-maple, Dogwood, Liquidambar (which I'm sure to mention each fall), the Red Oak and Liriodendron (Tulip-tree); all these are part of the city street plantings

As well you'll find the more easily identified flowering plums, crabs and cherries, the pink and white thorns, and silver birches.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

One of the expert's strong points is his appreciation that on every deal he must "count out" the distribution of the opponent's cards. Admittedly, on most deals, it will be impossible to obtain a complete count of their distribution. On many deals, the count obtained will be only a partial one. Yet, even in these partial-count situations, the expert will often come up with a line of play that figures to be the best one.

In today's deal, declarer was able to obtain only a partial count of a defender's hand. But it was sufficient for him to come up with the correct percentage play.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♣

On West's opening lead of the club king, East initiated a high-low signal by dropping his nine-spot. On the continuation by West of the club ace, East completed his signal by playing the seven. West then led a third club, which East ruffed.

East now returned a diamond, South's ace winning. The ace, king, and queen of hearts were played next, gathering in the outstanding trumps. Declarer now took a time out for analysis — and counting. The crucial issue, of course, was whether to finesse against East or West for the spade queen.

With East having ruffed the third club lead, West was known to have been dealt four clubs. West had also followed suit to two leads of trumps. And since West had made an overcall at the two level, he most certainly rated to have five diamonds, if not six. That left room in West's hand for a maximum of two spades.

Thus East had been dealt a minimum of three spades, and possibly four (the latter would be the case if West had started with six diamonds). On probability, therefore, since East had definitely started with more spades than West, East figured to have the queen of spades.

And so, after drawing trumps, declarer led the jack of spades. When West followed suit with the deuce, declarer overtook the jack with the board's king. The nine of spades was led next, and when East played low, so did declarer. When West discarded a diamond on this lead, declarer's contract was "in the bag."

Of such stuff are our better players made.

This should be easy, because you can see what digits the letters S, T, A, and R must represent without any testing at all.

TIT-FOR-TAT TRADE WAR

Connally Slaps Canada's Wrist

Labor Splits Over Freeze

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The 1.8 million-member Teamsters Union today pledged grudgingly to "co-operate fully" with President Nixon's new economic policies including the 90-day wage-price-rent freeze.

The statement from Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons was in marked contrast with statements from other labor leaders, including AFL-CIO president George Meany and United Auto Workers president Leonard Woodcock, who have threatened resistance to the policies.

The statement was issued while the AFL-CIO executive council was still meeting in Washington to consider its course of action regarding the new policies.

The Teamsters statement noted there were inequities in Nixon's policies, and said the Teamsters were opposed to economic controls, but "if they are necessary, we hail President Nixon's action . . . as a bold measure to preserve the economy of the nation."

"It is our understanding that authority granted the president in this area did not extend itself to the area of profits, dividends and interest," the Teamsters statement said. "This is legislative omission which should be corrected immediately to give the president the option of clamping the lid on all income until economic recovery is assured."

12% Devaluation Seen for U.S. $

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A rejuggling of the world's major currencies that would result in an average depreciation of 12 per cent in the U.S. dollar is the subject of intense negotiation here and abroad it was learned by the Washington Post last night.

Well-informed sources were optimistic that remaining disagreements would be straightened out in time for key exchange markets in Europe to re-open next week.

Depreciation Varied

If so, this major re-alignment of currency values would in effect be ratified by a meeting of the Group of Ten industrial nations over the weekend, possibly in Washington.

The dollar depreciation will not be the same in all of the world. Because the Japanese yen is considered to be the world's most undervalued currency, it would be expected to be marked up by at least five or six per cent, while the dollar would be marked down perhaps 10 per cent against the yen — or a total adjustment of 15 or 16 per cent in favor of the dollar.

Latin American and less developed countries will probably change their rates almost as much as the dollar.

For Europe as a whole, the dollar might depreciate 10 per cent or less, with a smaller devaluation against West Germany and Holland, whose currencies — via the float begun last May — have already appreciated about eight per cent compared to the dollar.

12 Per Cent Is Target

Officials have arrived at the approximate "target" of a 12-per-cent devaluation of the dollar by assessing how much of a change is needed to restore the U.S. balance of payments to "equilibrium." According to Edward Bernstein, an influential private expert in these matters, an improvement of $7 billion is needed.

Another approximation of the U.S. goal is indicated by the 10 per cent emergency import duty, designed to put a de facto devaluation of at least that amount into effect especially against Japan while a new system of parities is being worked out.

Each of the major countries affected is naturally protecting its interests and seeking the best deal. To decide on a new system of rates is not an easy task. But it is significant that the exchange markets have been kept closed, signifying that the authorities are co-operating in trying to evolve a new system.

$8 Billion Return

Once a new set of currency rates is arranged, eliminating the over-valuation of the dollar, experts suggest that there will be a return of $8 billion to $10 billion to the United States in the next six months, much of it speculative "hot money" sent abroad by American firms.

The first step expected on the road back to normality is merely a commitment to open the markets, with the intention of letting the currencies float toward the level agreed upon. Once de facto new relationships are stabilized, they can be made more formal through legalized parity relationships.

For its part, the U.S. could intervene in the exchange markets, if necessary, with other currencies that it owns or could borrow.

A way could be provided at the same time, to let countries convert dollars into Special Drawing Rights or some other reserve asset.

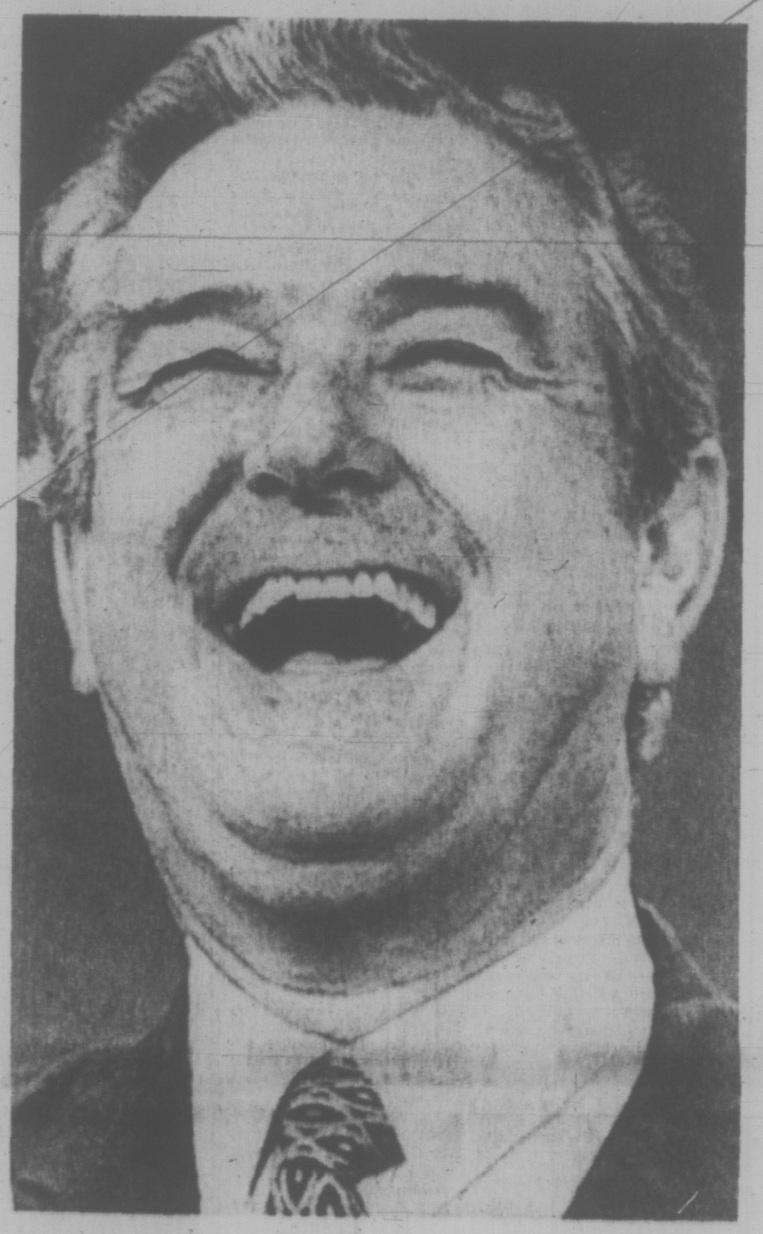
System Not Dead

It is assumed here that this is what U.S. treasury under secretary Paul Volcker had in mind Tuesday when he said on his return from Europe that the U.S. "intention is to re-establish convertibility," but not necessarily in the "same form as in the past."

There is a tendency in Washington to discount the observation earlier made by some that the Bretton Woods system is dead, killed off by the U.S. withdrawal of dollar convertibility into gold.

In all probability, the system will survive drastically altered to provide more flexibility and some form of composite unit that will provide a degree of gold convertibility.

A way for foreign central banks to cash in their dollar balances may be found through an expanded Special Drawing Rights System.



TICKLED PINK discussing aspects of President Nixon's wage-price freeze is U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally. The laughter was brought on by a suggestion that he might be Nixon's vice-presidential running mate in next year's election. Connally today meets the Canadian delegation which is asking for removal of the 10 per cent surcharge placed on imports from Canada. He has already indicated that he will take a hard line on such a request. (AP wirephoto)

Protests Likely In Vain

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally today launched a stinging attack on Canada's trade policies and indicated he would reject Ottawa's plea for an exemption from the new 10 per cent import duty surcharge.

He said Canada in 1962 turned down a U.S. plea for tax concessions.

"I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be," Connally said in a television interview.

A cabinet-level Canadian mission was meeting with Connally this afternoon to seek an exemption from the 10-per-cent extra levy on dutiable imports imposed by the Nixon administration. The surcharge would affect 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the United States, or roughly $3 billion annually.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin were in Washington for the meeting.

The Canadian government sought the exemption on the grounds that Canada does not impose discriminatory tariffs against the U.S. and has not undervalued its dollar to grab off trade.

RECALLS 1962 SITUATION

Connally said that when the tables were turned in 1962, Canada turned down a U.S. request for a similar exemption from their own duty surcharge. Also, he said, the United States imports $1.6 billion more goods from Canada than it sends there, compared with a $650 million U.S. surplus that existed in 1965.

Connally was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today show.

He was asked what outcome he predicted for today's meeting with Benson and Pepin.

"Well, they are going to come down and complain and ask that they be exempt from imposition of the surcharge," Connally said.

"We're certainly going to be co-operative. They are our largest trading partner in the free world, they are our friends. We won't want to irritate them or anger them, but I'm going to very frankly point out to them that when they imposed a surcharge in 1962 and we went up there to ask for relief for American products, they said no, and they never did it.

REFERS TO AUTO PACT

"I'm going to point out that in 1965, when they had real economic problems, we entered into an automotive agreement with them. At that time, we had a surplus trade balance with Canada of approximately $650 million a

STRETCHED FERRY CONTRACT AWARDED

A $2.4 million contract to stretch the Queen of Vancouver was awarded by B.C. Ferries to Vancouver Shipyards Ltd. today.

Highways Minister Wesley Black said work will be carried out between Oct. 25, 1971 and March 20, 1972.

Installation of an 84-foot mid-section will increase the capacity of the ship from 140 to 200.

It will be the third "stretch ferry."

Tenders for the fourth such job will open Friday after being recalled because the one tender previously received to stretch the Queen of Saanich was regarded as too high at $3 million.

The stretch ferries currently in use are the Queen of Victoria and the Queen of Esquimalt. All four operate on the Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen run.

Criticism Puts Army on Defence

BELFAST (AP) — The British Army, while claiming it is on the way to victory in Northern Ireland's shooting warfare, has been flung on the defensive by a sustained barrage of criticism over its conduct as peacemaker.

After a day in which two civilians were shot dead and two members of Parliament arrested by troops who had fought a pitched street battle with gunman, Lt.-Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, commander-in-chief, said Wednesday: "I still think events are going our way—except for the propaganda campaign against the army."

Accusations of brutality spearhead the campaign.

The Guardian, published in London, demanded an impartial inquiry into the allegations. The Irish Republic government is pressing Britain along the same lines. The charges are expected to consume a large part of today's discussions between British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Northern Ireland Premier Brian Faulkner.

A document published in the Irish Times of Dublin today was said to have been smuggled out of Belfast's Girdwood Barracks detention centre.

DESCRIBES BEATINGS

It described beating with nightsticks, clubbing with rifle butts, terrorizing by fierce dogs, the screaming and cursing of abuse.

Government and army officials said such assertions are "monstrous lies" and note that only 20 formal complaints out of a flood of unofficial allegations have been made to police.

The army late Wednesday night came under more immediate criticism for its behavior in scattered violence Wednesday.

A man killed by soldiers for ignoring orders to lay down a pistol turned out to be a deaf mute. Eamon McDevitt, 28, was shot in Strabane, 15 miles from Londonderry, after a civil rights meeting addressed by Bernadette Devlin, a member of the British Parliament.

John McKelvey, chairman of Strabane City Fathers, said he had 23 witnesses who would swear McDevitt was not carrying a gun, but a rubber bullet. These six-inch missiles are fired by soldiers to break up riots.

CROWDS RUN WILD

Crowds in Strabane subsequntly went on orgy of burning and stoning. Three people were arrested.

In Londonderry, where early Wednesday morning troops clearing barricades from Roman Catholic areas were fired on by gunmen 23 times in a devastating hail of more than 300 bullets, soldiers arrested Belfast MPs John Hume, a Catholic, and Ivan Cooper, a Protestant.

They were part of a crowd sprayed with purple dye from water cannon as they tried to obstruct barricade clearing operations.

Hume, Cooper and civil rights leader Hugh Logue were frisked then charged with obstruction and released on bail to appear in court Monday.

During one gun battle a baker's assistant, Eamon Lafferty, 19, was shot as he raised a rifle to his shoulder.

GRASSHOPPERS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (UPI) — Millions of grasshoppers clogged Montreal's streets today dodging traffic and clinging to pedestrians during the great 1971 hopper invasion.

With millions of insects lying dead in the streets, officials do not expect the invasion to last long as there is not much food in downtown Montreal and the hoppers will either starve to death or be killed by traffic.

Unemployment Declines In B.C., Across Nation

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Unemployment in Canada declined to 514,000 in mid-July from 551,000 in June. The number was also down on last July when 518,000 people were without jobs.

The July figure represented 5.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 6.2 per cent in June and 5.9 per cent a year earlier.

In British Columbia the job situation also improved with 59,000 of a labor force of 950,000 out of work. In June the number of unemployed was 66,000 and in July last year 76,000.

In percentage terms B.C.'s unemployment rate was still above the national average with 6.7 per cent without jobs compared with 7 per cent in June and 8 per cent in July last year.

A joint report by Statistics Canada and the manpower department said employment in Canada "showed the usual strength in July" as the number of jobs increased by 246,000 over the June figure to a total of 8,554,000.

The July labor force stood at 9,068,000, an increase of 209,000 over a month earlier.

The statistics are based on a survey of 30,000 households for the employment situation that existed in the week ended July 24.

The report said that persons in the 14-24 age group showed a greater-than-usual gain in employment during the month as 270,000 of them were absorbed into the working force. There was little change for men in the over-25 age group; the decline in employment for women over 25 — 40,000 — is

WHEEL OF JUSTICE

Police Pinch Scofflaws in New Boots

WASHINGTON (WP)—Wheel Boots have proved so successful in bringing U.S. scofflaws to justice that Washington police are expanding their use.

During June and July, when five of the steel wheel locks were used on cars that had a record of unpaid parking tickets, police caught up with about $80,000 worth of violations, Lt. Joseph Mazur, head of the special events unit of the special operations division, said.

As a result, 20 more of the wheel locks were ordered and arrived last week to be put in use throughout the city.

The bright orange wheel lock is clamped to the rim of the front wheel of a car, preventing the car from being driven or the wheel from being removed. Only police can unlock it.

To free his car, the chronic parking violator has to cough up the fee for the charges outstanding against him. This can cost him $15—$5 for the ticket, another $5 if it isn't paid within 15 days and an additional $5 for the warrant if police shackle the car.

Mazur said that in some instances violators whose cars have been locked have paid anywhere between $200 and $400 in warrant fees alone.

Some people, he said, whose cars are old have just surrendered to the boots. These cars are impounded by police and sold later at auction.

Mazur estimated there are now about 250,000 warrants outstanding against parking violators.

He said police have one problem—they can spot a car with a record of violations but can only lock it if it is in violation at the time.

Some car owners become desperate and try to remove the wheel locks, he added. He cited three—one of whom tried to pick the lock, another tried to work it lose with a tire iron and a third to break it with a hammer.

The three were unsuccessful in their efforts and ended up facing another charge, that of attempting to destroy government property, Mazur said.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, AUGUST 19, 1971 —PAGE 25

—Bill Halkett photos

The Elliotts enjoyed Clover Point slumber.

BUT POLICE VIGIL RELAXED

Curbside Is No Pad For Camper Nappers

A Victoria bylaw forbids overnight camping on streets and in parks, but no one informed Mr. and Mrs. Rick Elliott of Bellevue, Wash. who spent Wednesday night parked on Dallas Road.

Victoria traffic inspector Richard Berry told the Times early in August that policy was to tell campers to move on if they appeared to be settling in for a curbside snooze.

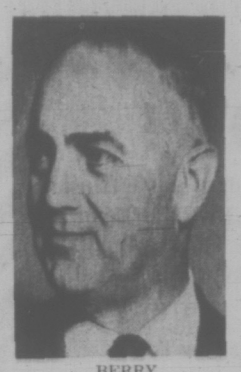
Berry said police would help overnighters find other accommodation. Today, Berry admitted some campers are permitted to stay overnight in the Beacon Hill Park area on Dallas Road.

"If they come in so late and they're bedded down and they're peaceful, we don't like to disturb them. You've got to bend a little bit. It's just a matter of common sense."



BERRY
. . . let 'em sleep

The easy approach of city police does not satisfy Marvin Beaveridge of 1035 Belmont and other citizens who have complained about the campers.

In a letter to council, Beaveridge said at least five camper trucks are parked along Dallas Road each morning. He also said persons sometimes sleep in the park in sleeping bags.

City manager Bill Hooson said Tuesday campers who are not settled in are referred to the Mayfair shopping centre for the night.

Berry said this is done because an all-night restaurant and toilet facilities are nearby. No problems are expected in September after school begins, Berry said.

Boat Escapes With Captive

United States authorities are pondering the case of an American gillnetter which escaped Canadian custody and fled to Washington State with a Canadian patrol boat engineer aboard.

W. R. Hourston of Vancouver, Pacific region fisheries director, said today he has not yet heard from the Americans about their decision and no decision has been made on Canadian charges.

The gillnetter, the My Linda, was one of five vessels seized Monday for fishing in Canadian waters south of Bonilla Point in Juan de Fuca Strait.

Gerry Plotkin, second engineer aboard the patrol vessel Atlin Post, was put aboard the My Linda and was to stay there while it and the other four boats were escorted into Sooke to face charges.

The My Linda, however, set course for Neah Bay, Wash., where it was seized by the U.S. coast guard. Plotkin was returned to Canada Tuesday.

Hourston said normally a fishing boat can be escorted back but this time there were five so crew members were put aboard each of the five.

"You can't ride herd on five vessels. The fifth turned around and ran for Neah Bay. She only had to run a short distance before she got into U.S. waters," he said.

How did Plotkin feel?

"He wasn't going to argue. We don't arm our people. He went along for the ride, he didn't have much choice."

Two of the American fishermen were fined $1,000 each and their salmon catches confiscated.

The fines and seizures were ordered in Sooke court by Judge Eugene Murphy. Charges against two other U.S. fishboat skippers will be heard in the same court next Tuesday.

Gillnetters Leslie Nelson of Seattle and Donald Stanley of Anacortes were apprehended in the Strait Monday. Nelson lost 460 fish and White 292 in addition to the fines.

GOLF PROFITS HELP PAVE PARKING LOT

The municipally-owned Cedar Hill golf course is making a profit and $10,000 of it will be spent to pave the parking lot at the course and landscaping at the Gordon Head recreation centre.

"As we hoped and expected, the course is generating dollars for use there and elsewhere in the municipality without affecting the tax rate at all," said Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

The golf course is part of Cedar Hill Park, formerly known as the McRae Estate, which Saanich purchased for $1.2 million in late 1967.

Wallace Bolt Nets Second Resignation

A second Oak Bay Social Credit Association executive member resigned Wednesday in support of MLA Scott Wallace who quit the party Tuesday night.

"Scott Wallace is our man and I'll follow him wherever he goes," said executive member L. F. Dawes after joining association president Mark Preston in quitting the group.

Wallace, who left the party to sit as an independent in the legislature, was immediately invited to join both the Liberal and Conservative parties.

But he indicated he will remain as an independent for the present.

EXTRA WEIGHT

B.C. Conservative Leader John de Wolf said Wallace would carry extra weight and would get additional speaking time in the legislature as the official house leader of the Conservatives if he joined the party.

The standings in the legislature following Wallace's resignation are Social Credit, 37 seats, New Democratic Party, 12, Liberal, 5, and Independent, one.

Premier Bennett, meanwhile, declined to comment on Wallace's decision but after being pressed for a statement he recalled that another Social Credit MLA had once crossed the floor and "faded into oblivion."

He added he didn't necessarily mean that would happen again.

"DICTATORIAL"

Mel Bryan, a North Vancouver MLA, quit the party in 1958 during a bribery scandal that eventually led to the jailing of Robert Sommers, lands and forests minister.

Wallace quit the party because he was dissatisfied with the role of government backbenchers in policy formation and because of "dictatorial" tendencies in the government, he said.

Oak Bay association executive J. H. Britton said Wednesday he still supports Wallace but was still considering his position in the party. He said he felt Wallace could have accomplished more in the long run by staying in the party.

City Planning 'Chaotic'

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Pollen Demands Better Response to Wishes

The city's efforts in planning today were termed "uncoordinated and chaotic" by Ald Peter Pollen.

He recommended a special meeting to tackle planning questions.

Pollen won unanimous agreement from council's A Committee after a brief argument over the form such a meeting will take.

In making his surprise presentation, Pollen said he thinks "it is about time the community planning department in the city of Victoria became much much more responsive to the wishes and desires of the city."

Pollen ran into trouble for criticizing the planning department, which Ald. Robert Baird said should be present to "refute" Pollen's comments. Community planning director Geoff Greenhalgh was not at the meeting.

Pollen said "I am not saying this for the crucifixion of anybody."

SPECIFIC ANSWERS

"What I think we should be doing is looking for specific answers which we can act upon in the next five, six or ten years."

He said he has tried and failed to get informatim on a number of planning matters essential to making good decisions.

He said "we have reached the point that our planning is so chaotic and uncoordinated that the citizens are becoming resigned to not being able to do anything about it."

"With no adequate information," he said, "we are not able to exercise a wholesome choice."

CLOSE LOOK

Pollen called for a close look at questions of sewage, James Bay traffic and recreation, the oil tank farm on the west side of the Inner Harbor, the CPR property along Bellville Street, the Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd., the McKay Cormack property, Black Ball ferry terminal and Wharf Street traffic plans.

Pollen said the city should squarely face the fact that there are "Secret or quasi secret plans to punch one or two roads through Beacon Hill Park."

He said he has heard no mention of plans for increasing recreational space in James Bay despite the "fantastic buildup" expected in the area.

TRIAL BALOON

He said he wanted to know more about the "trial balloon" development plans of Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., which he said has a "negative working capital of well over $300,000."

He wanted to know what is the status of Inner Harbor leases which have been transferred from Canadian Pacific to Canadian Pacific Industries to Marathon Realty to Grouse Mountain. The decision to grant certain leases in the Inner Harbor area, he said, lies with "some faceless bureaucrat" in Ottawa.

At one point Baird interjected:

"Are you really saying our community planning department is not doing its job?"

NOT ADEQUATE

Pollen answered that "I am getting no adequate information" on planning decisions. He said he was unable to get information when he was community planning chairman last year, and added nor are citizens able to get information.

When Baird said he knew the answers to many of the questions asked, Ald. Tom Christie interrupted:

"If you have heard the answers to the sewage problem, let's hear it."

Baird replied the provincial government is studying sewage and the city is waiting for the results.

The aim of the meeting of council as a committee of the whole would be to "bring the planning of the city to a much more disciplined approach."

At another point he said he wanted a "more comprehensive" and "more detailed" approach to city planning.

Pollen brought up the topic as A Committee formed itself in health and welfare committee of which Pollen is chairman.

Pollen's motion was described by him but Christie put it before the committee. Ald. Percy Frampton and Ald. Clyde Savage joined Pollen. Baird and Christie in voting for the move.

No date was set for the meeting.

Car Trunk Spillage Causes Fire

A car trunk erupted in a blaze Wednesday when a cigarette ignited spilled gas.

Deputy Fire Chief Carl Coates said today damage to vehicle and contents was about $500.

Coates said owner Jan White had the cigarette in his hand when he opened the trunk of the car, parked at the rear of 1250 Acton about 10:25 p.m. White was unhurt.

The gas spill came from an outboard motor that had tipped over in the trunk, the deputy chief said.

City fireman were also called to put out a kitchen fire in an apartment suite at 2508 Douglas about 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Coates said Mrs. V. C. Hanson escaped injury in the $200 fire caused when combustible materials on the gas range caught fire and fell to the floor.

Uvic Scientists Will Dig For Clues to Lost Tribe

A team of University of Victoria archaeologists will start a dig next week at Witty's Lagoon looking for clues to solve the mystery of a lost tribe.

Don Abbott, Provincial Museum curator of archaeology, said the Metchosin site was at one time inhabited by the Ka-kyaakan people who mysteriously disappeared during the latter part of the 19th century.

The experts will excavate the remains of an old midden for artifacts which may provide them with some information about the tribe, such as the age of the village site and what it was used for by the Ka-kyaakans.

"We are not too hopeful of finding such material," Abbott said. "Most of the midden has been destroyed over the years, but something interesting may turn up."

Historical records disclose little about the tribe which once occupied all the territory from Point McGregor to the inlet of Whoyung.

Whoyung is the Indian name for Pedder Bay.

There are no records of how many villages they occupied, but the site at Witty's Lagoon may have been one of their larger ones. It included a fort which has long since disappeared.

When Fort Victoria was established by Sir James Douglas, the Ka-kyaakans were on their way out. Hudson's Bay Co. documents show the population numbered about 52 in 1850.

Douglas bought their lands for 52 blankets — not a bad bargain for the whole of Metchosin district, including the lagoon which is now a capital regional park.

Furniture and Equipment Needed for Youth Centre

A supervisor at the youth attendance centre in James Bay appealed today for furniture, personal effects and recreational equipment.

"We are in an old church school which is dilapidated, has little to offer, and there really is no budget to improve it," said Philip Perry.

The centre, at 520 Niagara, operates under the Greater Victoria family court.

The centre offers a rehabilitative program for boys 17 and under who must attend as a condition of their probation.

Perry said it is designed for youths who shouldn't go to institutions like Brannen Lake "and hopefully prevent them from going there." The program included group discussions, camping, swimming and athletics.

"It really teaches them responsibility, how to deal with others, and communication skills," he said.

Anyone wishing to donate to the centre is asked to telephone 388-6123.

TIT-FOR-TAT TRADE WAR

Connally Slaps Canada's Wrist

Meany Blasts Nixon Measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor leader George Meany called on Congress today to take control of the United States economy away from what he called President Nixon's "mismanagement" and urged all unions to cancel contracts where workers lose money under Nixon's wage-price controls.

Meany, after a plea from top administration officials to co-operate with Nixon's new economic program, told a news conference "We're not going to co-operate."

Meany had some tough words for Treasury Secretary John Connally and Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson, both of whom have said that Meany is out of step with American workers.

Of Hodgson Meany said: "I don't pay much attention to the secretary of labor . . . If you have a problem with the landlord, you don't discuss it with the janitor."

Referring to Connally Meany added: "He wants the horsewhip concession so he can sell horsewhips. Connally doesn't know anything about people's problems."

Connally said it was "sheer nonsense" and "rank demagoguery" to argue, as Meany had, that Nixon's tax-cut requests favor business at the expense of the worker.

The Teamsters Union has announced "reluctantly" that they will go along with the wage-price freeze.

12% Devaluation Seen for U.S. $

By HOBART ROWEN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A rejuggling of the world's major currencies that would result in an average depreciation of 12 per cent in the U.S. dollar is the subject of intense negotiation here and abroad it was learned by the Washington Post last night.

Well-informed sources were optimistic that remaining disagreements would be straightened out in time for key exchange markets in Europe to re-open next week.

Depreciation Varied

If so, this major re-alignment of currency values would in effect be ratified by a meeting of the Group of Ten industrial nations over the weekend, possibly in Washington.

The dollar depreciation will not be the same in all of the world. Because the Japanese yen is considered to be the world's most undervalued currency, it would be expected to be marked up by at least five or six per cent, while the dollar would be marked down perhaps 10 per cent against the yen — or a total adjustment of 15 or 16 per cent in favor of the dollar.

Latin American and less developed countries will probably change their rates almost as much as the dollar.

For Europe as a whole, the dollar might depreciate 10 per cent or less, with a smaller devaluation against West Germany and Holland, whose currencies — via the float begun last May — have already appreciated about eight per cent compared to the dollar.

12 Per Cent Is Target

Officials have arrived at the approximate "target" of a 12-per-cent devaluation of the dollar by assessing how much of a change is needed to restore the U.S. balance of payments to "equilibrium." According to Edward Bernstein, an influential private expert in these matters, an improvement of $7 billion is needed.

Another approximation of the U.S. goal is indicated by the 10 per cent emergency import duty designed to put a de facto devaluation of at least that amount into effect especially against Japan while a new system of parities is being worked out.

Each of the major countries affected is naturally protecting its interests and seeking the best deal. To decide on a new system of rates is not an easy task. But it is significant that the exchange markets have been kept closed, signifying that the authorities are co-operating in trying to evolve a new system.

$8 Billion Return

Once a new set of currency rates is arranged, eliminating the over-valuation of the dollar, experts suggest that there will be a return of $8 billion to $10 billion to the United States in the next six months, much of it speculative "hot money" sent abroad by American firms.

The first step expected on the road back to normality is merely a commitment to open the markets, with the intention of letting the currencies float toward the level agreed upon. Once de facto new relationships are stabilized, they can be made more formal through legalized parity relationships.

For its part, the U.S. could intervene in the exchange markets if necessary with other currencies that it owns or could borrow.

A way could be provided at the same time to let countries convert dollars into Special Drawing Rights or some other reserve asset.

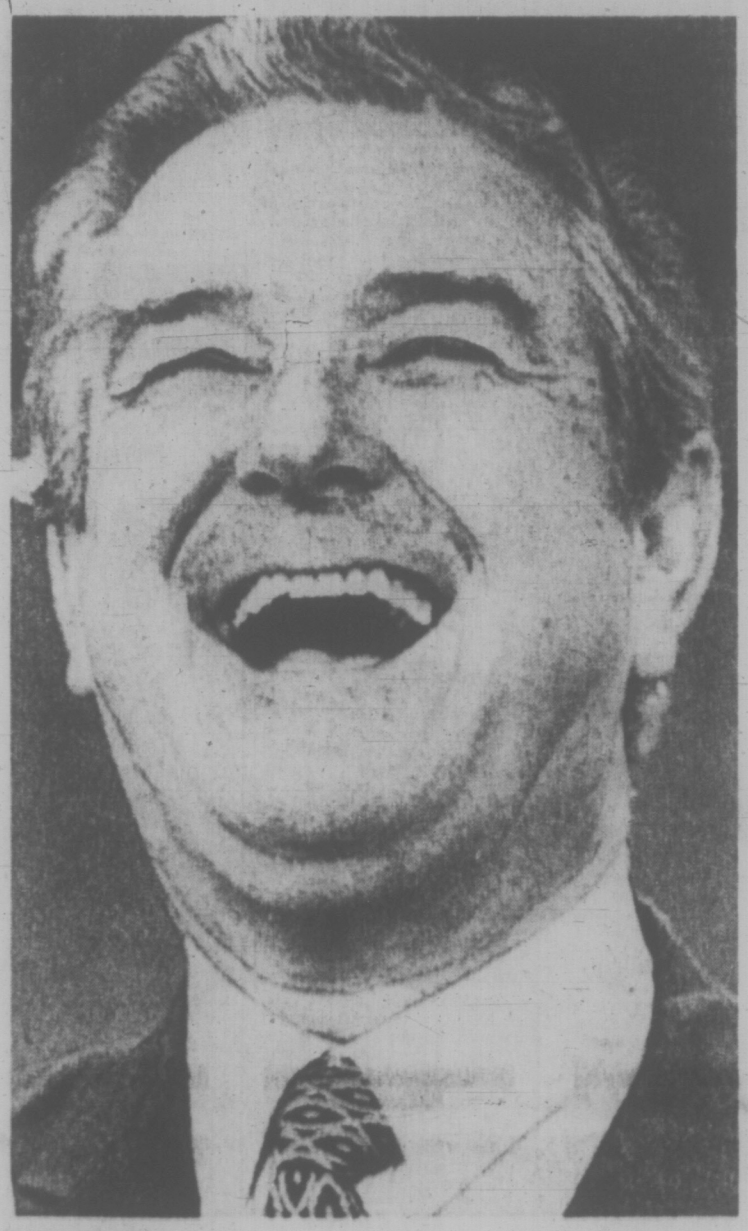
System Not Dead

It is assumed here that this is what U.S. treasury under secretary Paul Volcker had in mind Tuesday when he said on his return from Europe that the U.S. "intention is to re-establish convertibility," but not necessarily in the "same form as in the past."

There is a tendency in Washington to discount the observation earlier made by some that the Bretton Woods system is dead, killed off by the U.S. withdrawal of dollar convertibility into gold.

In all probability, the system will survive drastically altered to provide more flexibility and some form of composite unit that will provide a degree of gold convertibility.

A way for foreign central banks to cash in their dollar balances may be found through an expanded Special Drawing Rights System.



TICKLED PINK discussing aspects of President Nixon's wage-price freeze is U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally. The laughter was brought on by a suggestion that he might be Nixon's vice-presidential running mate in next year's election. Connally today meets the Canadian delegation which is asking for removal of the 10 per cent surcharge placed on imports from Canada. He has already indicated that he will take a hard line on such a request. (AP wirephoto)

Unemployment Declines In B.C., Across Nation

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Unemployment in Canada declined to 514,000 in mid-July from 551,000 in June. The number was also down on last July when 518,000 people were without jobs.

The July figure represented 5.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 6.2 per cent in June and 5.9 per cent a year earlier.

In British Columbia the job situation also improved with 59,000 of a labor force of 950,000 out of work. In June the number of unemployed was 66,000 and in July last year 76,000.

In percentage terms B.C.'s unemployment rate was still above the national average with 6.7 per cent without jobs compared with 7 per cent in June and 8 per cent in July last year.

A joint report by Statistics Canada and the manpower department said employment in Canada "showed the usual strength in July" as the number of jobs increased by 246,000 over the June figure to a total of 8,554,000.

The July labor force stood at 9,068,000, an increase of 209,000 over a month earlier.

The statistics are based on a survey of 30,000 households for the employment situation that existed in the week ended July 24.

The report said that persons in the 14-24 age group showed a greater-than-usual gain in employment during the month as 270,000 of them were absorbed into the working force. There was little change for men in the over-25 age group; the decline in employment for women over 25 — 40,000 — is

Protests Likely In Vain

Times News Services

WASHINGTON—U.S. Treasury Secretary John B. Connally today launched a stinging attack on Canada's trade policies and indicated he would reject Ottawa's plea for an exemption from the new 10 per cent import duty surcharge.

He said Canada in 1962 turned down a U.S. plea for tax concessions.

"I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be," Connally said in a television interview.

A cabinet-level Canadian mission was meeting with Connally this afternoon to seek an exemption from the 10-per-cent extra levy on dutiable imports imposed by the Nixon administration. The surcharge would affect 25 per cent of Canada's exports to the United States, or roughly $3 billion annually.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson and Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin were in Washington for the meeting.

The Canadian government sought the exemption on the grounds that Canada does not impose discriminatory tariffs against the U.S. and has not undervalued its dollar to grab off trade.

RECALLS 1962 SITUATION

Connally said that when the tables were turned in 1962, Canada turned down a U.S. request for a similar exemption from their own duty surcharge. Also, he said, the United States imports $1.6 billion more goods from Canada than it sends there, compared with a $650 million U.S. surplus that existed in 1965.

Connally was interviewed on the NBC-TV Today show.

He was asked what outcome he predicted for today's meeting with Benson and Pepin.

"Well, they are going to come down and complain and ask that they be exempt from imposition of the surcharge," Connally said.

"We're certainly going to be co-operative. They are our largest trading partner in the free world, they are our friends. We won't want to irritate them or anger them, but I'm going to very frankly point out to them that when they imposed a surcharge in 1962 and we went up there to ask for relief for American products, they said no, and they never did it.

REFERS TO AUTO PACT

"I'm going to point out that in 1965, when they had real economic problems, we entered into an automotive agreement with them. At that time, we had a surplus trade balance with Canada of approximately $650 million a

STRETCHED FERRY CONTRACT AWARDED

A $2.4 million contract to stretch the Queen of Vancouver was awarded today by B.C. Ferries to Vancouver Shipyards Ltd.

Highways Minister Wesley Black said work will be carried out between Oct. 25, 1971 and March 20, 1972.

Installation of an 84-foot mid-section will increase the capacity of the ship from 140 to 200 cars.

It will be the third "stretch ferry."

Tenders for the fourth such job will open Friday after being recalled because the one tender previously received to stretch the Queen of Saanich was regarded as too high at $3 million.

The stretch ferries currently in use are the Queen of Victoria and the Queen of Esquimalt. All four operate on the Swartz Bay to Tsawwassen run.

WHEEL OF JUSTICE

Police Pinch Scofflaws in New Boots

WASHINGTON (WP) — Wheel boots have proved so successful in bringing U.S. scofflaws to justice that Washington police are expanding their use.

During June and July, when five of the steel wheel locks were used on cars that had a record of unpaid parking tickets, police caught up with about $80,000 worth of violations, Lt. Joseph Mazur, head of the special events unit of the special operations division, said.

As a result, 30 more of the wheel locks were ordered and arrived last week to be put in use throughout the city.

The bright orange wheel lock is clamped to the rim of the front wheel of a car, preventing the car from being driven or the wheel from being removed. Only police can unlock it.

To free his car, the chronic parking violator has to cough up the fee for the charges outstanding against him. This can cost him $15—$5 for the ticket, another $5 if it isn't paid within 15 days and an additional $5 for the warrant if police shackle the car.

Mazur said that in some instances violators whose cars have been locked have paid anywhere between $200 and $400 in warrant fees alone.

Some people, he said, whose cars are old have just surrendered to the boots. These cars are impounded by police and sold later at auction.

Mazur estimated there are now about 250,000 warrants outstanding against parking violators.

He said police have one problem—they can spot a car with a record of violations but can only lock it if it is in violation at the time.

Some car owners become desperate and try to remove the wheel locks, he added. He cited three—one of whom tried to pick the lock, another tried to work it lose with a tire iron and a third to break it with a hammer.

The three were unsuccessful in their efforts and ended up facing another charge, that of attempting to destroy government property, Mazur said.

Trudeau On Way

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau will arrive in Montreal at 8:15 p.m. EDT today, returning from his holiday abroad to deal with the impact on Canada of emergency economic measures in the United States.

Principal Lassfolk Dies

Sidney Elementary students and teachers lost a good friend with the death Tuesday of principal Mrs. Barbara Lassfolk, 2261 Weiler.

Mrs. Lassfolk, who died while holidaying in Kamloops, was to retire next year. She had completed 27 years as principal of Sidney Elementary.

Under Mrs. Lassfolk administration, Sidney school registration grew from less than 200 to an over-crowded 674 and "Chris" as she was called by friends found herself teaching children of former pupils.

Moving with the times, she was ready to experiment and help her younger teachers to adapt to new techniques.

Discipline, however, was not sacrificed. Saanich School Board chairman Jack Armstrong said he was always impressed by the ordered, happy atmosphere of her school.

"Mrs. Lassfolk had a very shrewd understanding of children and maintained both their liking and respect," he said.

ORGANIZATION

Vice-principal Tom Boyd paid tribute to "open door" philosophy maintained by Mrs. Lassfolk. Communications between parents, teachers and children were stressed and as a result Sidney Elementary PTA has always been a flourishing organization.

Former pupil Carol Collins, 9651 Fourth Street, has three of her own children in the same school.

"Mrs. Lassfolk was a good friend as well as a teacher. She always had time to talk over problems with you."

Before coming to Sidney, Mrs. Lassfolk had taught in the Kettle Valley area and in Fort St. John. Later she became principal of Mill Bay Elementary and was in charge of the school at Paldi and Comox.

Two sons, Jack and David Christian are teaching in the Victoria area. Mrs. Lassfolk is also survived by her husband Einar at home; one daughter, Mrs. Yvonne Mahrt of Courtenay; a brother, Richard Reaney of Kamloops.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Sands Chapel of Roses, Sidney.

Strickland Funeral

Funeral service will be held at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Patrick's Church, 2054 Haultain, for Roger Philip Strickland, owner of the Yates Hotel, who died Wednesday in Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Born in Lakefield, Ont., in 1885, he lived in Saskatchewan from 1910 to 1951 when he moved to Victoria.

Chairman of St. Joseph's Hospital board for a number of years, and owner-managing director of Georgia Properties Ltd, he was also a member of the Victoria Golf Club, St. Patrick's Church, Union Club and the Knights of Columbus.

His wife Olive died in 1966. He is survived by two sons, John of Victoria and Philip of Toronto, and three daughters — Mrs. B. (Peggy) Aust and Mrs. J. H. L. (Bobs) Gillis of Victoria, and Mrs. D. J. (Joan) England of Saskatoon.

Duties Hurt Hog Man

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian hog farmers will be among those most seriously hurt by a recent boost in import duties by the United States, says the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Federation President Charles Munro said Canadian hog producers, "already suffering from disastrously low prices," have had all hopes for price improvements dashed by the new U.S. policy.

"It doesn't make any sense for the U.S. to disrupt traditional trade flows in Canadian farm products," he said in a statement.

The federation has asked the government for a $5 a hog payment to farmers for hogs marketed this year as compensation for low prices.

Hog prices have averaged about $22 a hundredweight in 1971, $2 less than farmers were receiving in 1960, the statement said.

"In the meantime farm costs have gone up more than 30 per cent."

Blacks Charged

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Eleven members of a black separatist organization were charged today with the murder of a Jackson police detective who died 24 hours after a shootout at the Republic of New Africa headquarters.

DENNIS THE MENACE

Criticism Puts Army on Defence

BELFAST (AP) — The British Army, while claiming it is on the way to victory in Northern Ireland's shooting warfare, has been flung on the defensive by a sustained barrage of criticism over its conduct as peacemaker.

After a day in which two civilians were shot dead and two members of Parliament arrested by troops who had fought a pitched street battle with gunman, Lt.-Gen. Sir Harry Tuzo, commander-in-chief, said Wednesday: "I still think events are going our way—except for the propaganda campaign against the army."

Accusations of brutality spearhead the campaign.

The Guardian, published in London, demanded an impartial inquiry into the allegations. The Irish Republic government is pressing Britain along the same lines. The charges are expected to consume a large part of today's discussions between British Prime Minister Edward Heath and Northern Ireland Premier Brian Faulkner.

A document published in the Irish Times of Dublin today was said to have been smuggled out of Belfast's Girdwood Barracks detention centre.

DESCRIBES BEATINGS

It described beating with nightsticks, clubbing with rifle butts, terrorizing by fierce dogs, the screaming and cursing of abuse.

Government and army officials said such assertions are "monstrous lies" and note that only 20 formal complaints out of a flood of unofficial allegations have been made to police.

The army late Wednesday night came under more immediate criticism for its behavior in scattered violence Wednesday.

A man killed by soldiers for ignoring orders to lay down a pistol turned out to be a deaf mute. Eamon McDevitt, 28, was shot in Strabane, 15 miles from Londonderry, after a civil rights meeting addressed by Bernadette Devlin, a member of the British Parliament.

John McKelbey, chairman of Strabane City Fathers, said he had 23 witnesses who would swear McDevitt was not carrying a gun, but a rubber bullet. These six-inch missiles are fired by soldiers to break up riots.

Crowds in Strabane subsequently went on an orgy of burning and stoning. Three people were arrested.

In Londonderry, where early Wednesday morning troops clearing barricades from Roman Catholic areas were fired on by gunmen 23 times in a devastating hail of more than 300 bullets, soldiers arrested Belfast MPs John Hume, a Catholic, and Ivan Cooper, a Protestant.

They were part of a crowd sprayed with purple dye from water cannon as they tried to obstruct barricade clearing operations.

Hume, Cooper and civil rights leader Hugh Logue were frisked then charged with obstruction and released on bail to appear in court Monday.

During one gun battle a baker's assistant, Eamon Lafferty, 19, was shot as he raised a rifle to his shoulder.

GRASSHOPPERS IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL (UPI) — Millions of grasshoppers clogged Montreal's streets today dodging traffic and clinging to pedestrians during the great 1971 hopper invasion.

With millions of insects lying dead in the streets, officials do not expect the invasion to last long as there is not much food in downtown Montreal and the hoppers will either starve to death or be killed by traffic.

'Copter Used

MEXICO CITY (AP) — A helicopter landed secretly in the patio of a Mexico City prison Wednesday, and two prisoners escaped in it.

Informed sources said the helicopter carried enough fuel for eight hours of flight and was believed headed for Honduras or Venezuela.

Appeal Appoints Division Chairmen

Victoria postmaster Jim Deans and accountant Ronald G. Campion have accepted appointments as division chairmen for the 1971 United Appeal Campaign.

Campaign chairman Ernie Charman said today Deans will head the federal services division and Campion the professional division.

Charman said Deans has promised to raise $53,000 by Sept. 15. Federal services consists mostly of armed services people.

At least a 20 per cent increase in donations can be expected from the professional division, Charman said. Last year, the professionals — lawyers, doctors, architects, etc. — donated $37,577 to the appeal.

Charman said early donations show a marked increase over 1970 figures. United Appeal staff are asking Greater Victorians to donate $758,723 in 1871 to supplement budgets for 23 community service organizations.

Even 10-Week-Olds Can't See This Film

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — A "restricted" movie was out of bounds Wednesday for two Chatham parents who attempted to take their 10-weeks-old baby in with them.

The parents, who complained to the police, said the baby wakes at 90-minute intervals for feeding, and they could not afford a baby sitter at home.

Theatre officials said the "restricted" designation means that no person under 18 can be admitted to a movie, and no exceptions are made, even for infants in arms.

The parents told police the problem would be taken up with provincial Treasurer W. Darcy McKeough, MPP for Chatham-Kent.

year. Last year we had a deficit, a negative trade balance of $1.6 billion.

"So we've had a net change of $2.3 billion in our trade balances with Canada in the last five years. So I must say that I don't think their bargaining position is quite as strong as it might be."

Does that mean he will say no, he was asked.

"Well, I don't want to prejudge what I'm going to say," Connally said, "but I think it is apparent that I'm not without some arguments to respond to their request for an exemption to the surcharge."

The Canadian government argues that since Canada is the United States' best customer, such a heavy impost as President Nixon proposed would be counter-productive because it would hurt two-way trade as well as jeopardize future markets for U.S. goods.

Indications that the mission would take a firm stand came in a statement by Benson in Ottawa Wednesday.

"I hope that we wouldn't have to use any pressure," he said.

"The argument itself is that by applying these import charges against Canada, they are not helping their own situation."

TASK MAY BE TOUGH

However, there were hints that the mission may face rough going.

U.S. Treasury Undersecretary Charles Walker said Wednesday he believes exempting any country from the import levy might violate rules of the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs. The Common Market already has accused the U.S. of violating the agreement by imposing the tax in the first place.

Walker said he could not state authoritatively this view — which would block Canada's request for an exemption from the tax — is a correct or final one.

The treasury is confident the surcharge does not violate GATT across-the-board, non-discriminatory."

While the Canadian government sought the tax exemption, reports from Tokyo said that the Japanese government, which has purchased about $2 billion of U.S. dollars this week to maintain the rate of the yen to the dollar, is willing to let its currency float in return for the elimination of the 10-per-cent levy.

Floating of the yen, which generally is regarded as undervalued, would amount to revaluation. The Japanese government was awaiting decisions by the European Common Market on the monetary crisis before acting.

JAPAN MAIN TARGET

Japan was clearly a primary target of Nixon's decision to free the dollar from gold convertibility and allowing it to float. The move was aimed at forcing upward revaluation of the yen and, to a lesser extent, some European currencies.

Again Nixon was believed to have Japan very much in mind in imposing the 10-per-cent surcharge on dutiable imports, the aim being to check the flood of cheap Japanese goods and ultimately to force Tokyo to liberalize its own trade policies and let in more American products.

Other high-level conferences were called today in Washington and foreign capitals to wrestle with details and consequences of the U.S. economic bombshell.

The AFL-CIO's executive council, representing 13.6 million workers, was invited to the White House to throw expectedly hostile questions to three presidential advisers: George P. Shultz, director of the office of management and budget; Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson and J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation Service.

In Brussels, Common Market ministers expected to receive contrasting plans by France and West Germany on how to deal with U.S. dollars divorced from gold.

Paris has proposed a two-tier market in dollars, with one rate for official trading between governments and a punitive rate for speculation. Bonn, on the other hand, proposes to tie Common Market currencies together with fixed rates, but let them float upwards together in relation to the dollar.

Nixon's 90-day wage-price-rent freeze was bringing new headaches to the administration.

Labor chieftains reacted sharply to the freeze, and Nixon's request Tuesday for unions to end current strikes and not start new ones during the 90-day period.

Thousands of West Coast dockworkers and New York telephone workers refused to call off their walkouts, and so did construction men among some 150,000 workers in many areas involved in more than 300 strikes across the country.

The labor rebellion leaves the administration with the choice of carrying out its implied threat to seek court orders or levy fines, which it says it has the power to do.

Mafia Fasting

ISLE OF ASINARA, Sardinia (AP) — Thirty-six reputed Mafia bosses exiled on this penal colony entered the fourth day of a hunger strike today to protest what they called inhuman treatment by the authorities.

An order forbidding them to cook meals in their own rooms touched off the demonstration.

The men, in telegrams to the prosecutor and the newspaper of Sassari, the nearest big town, also complained of inadequate medical facilities, restrictions in using the island's only telephone, and the impossibility of seeing their relatives.

Not Exempt

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Treasury Secretary John Connally indicated today he is personally opposed to exempting the British Rolls-Royce engine for the Lockheed TriStar from the U.S. supplementary import duty of 10 per cent.

In San Francisco, Harry Bridges said the freeze has had a "definite adverse effect" on efforts to end the strike of his 15,000 longshoremen at 24 Pacific ports. And in Boston, United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock served notice his union will consider contracts abrogated if wages controls extend beyond 90 days.

The UAW will meet with the AFL-CIO in Washington to propose that all big unions join in a court test of the legality of the president's freeze, Woodcock said.

In another development, the justice department established an eight-member team of lawyers to handle possible prosecution of freeze violators. Assistant Attorney-General Louis Patrick Gray III stressed "litigation will be instituted to secure compliance only after all avenues seeking voluntary co-operation have been fully exhausted."

CANADA POISED TO RETALIATE?

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — Energy and Resources Minister J. J. Greene warned today that if the United States 10-per-cent supplementary duty on manufactured imports seriously hurts Canada's pulp and paper industry, "we might take some countervailing measures."

He said in an interview that Canada has a right to make changes in its trade arrangements with the U.S. but does not want to start a trade war.

The minister did not elaborate on what "countervailing measures" might be taken.

But he said Canada will be speaking from a position of strength when a Canadian delegation meets with top U.S. officials to discuss the U.S. action.

less than usual for this time of year, said the report.

Reporting on the increased employment activity, the report noted an "unusual increase" of 42,000 jobs in the services area "which appears to reflect the federal government Opportunities for Youth program." There were above-average gains in primary industries — up by 11,000 — in finance, insurance and real estate — up by 10,000 — and there were average gains in agriculture and trade.

There were below-average increases in the areas of public administration, construction, transportation and utilities.

Meanwhile, in Seattle, the unemployment rate is 15 per cent.

The United Kingdom today reported an unemployment rate of 3.7 per cent and Northern Ireland had 8.7 per cent out of work.
